LAST APOLLO LANDS TODAY

HOUSTON (AP) — The last Apollo comes home from space today, ending a history-making flight with the Soviet Union and closing a pioneering chapter in the United States space program.

Astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald Slayton steered their Apollo toward a fiery re-entry and a 2:18 p.m. (Victoria time) splashdown in the Pacific Ocean 200 miles west of Hawaii.

The carrier USS New Orleans waited in the recovery zone to make the last ocean pickup planned in the U.S. space program.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton are to be the last Americans to fly into space for at least four years.

Future astronauts must await the Space Shuttle, the reflyable rocket plane that will operate much like an airliner, landing on concrete runways.

The last Apollo crew returns after nine days in space during which it laid a foundation for a new age of space cooperation with the Soviet Union after linking with a Soyuz spaceship and working in orbit for two days with two cosmonauts.

In Moscow, the cosmonauts, Gen. Alexei Leonov and Col. Valeri Kubasov, who returned to earth Monday, met reporters and Leonov said the joint mission went "smoothly as a peeled egg."

In a news conference from space Wednesday, Apollo commander Stafford said the major accomplishment of the joint flight was the completion with the Soviets of a "very difficult and tedious task."

"It can show that in spite of great political differences, if people meet commitments, then a lot can be achieved."

CALL-UP IN ISRAEL, ALERTS IN EGYPT

War Flirted in M-East

Times News Services

Israel and Egypt are playing a dangerous game of military moves to strengthen their negotiating positions as talks for peace in the Middle East appear to be making progress.

U.S. intelligence officials are concerned that one side or the other might go too far in military gestures and start an outbreak of fighting, even though neither apparently wants it to happen.

The Israelis were reported to have called up about 7,000 military reservists after the Egyptians indicated last week they might not agree to an extension of the UN force in the buffer zone separating Egyptian and Israeli forces.

U.S. diplomats in Israel were told about the call-up by Israeli officials who said the action was in response to Egyptian moves, including some military alerts.

One Egyptian move that caught the attention of both the U.S. and Israel was the deployment of air defence missile radar to within about four miles of the Suez Canal's west bank.

This was the first known movement of Egyptian surface-to-air missile units into this area since the troops disengagement agreement about 18 months ago.

Such missile units, which caused heavy Israeli air losses in the early stages of the 1973 war, would be vital in protecting any major Egyptian troop movement across the canal for an attack on the Israeli army in the Sinai.

Away from the Egyptian-Israeli front, there was no sign of any immediately menacing military moves by other Arab countries which might be expected to join in a co-ordinated assault on Israel in event of another war.

On the political front an Israeli government source in Tel Aviv said today Egypt has "accepted in general terms" Israel's concept for an interim agreement in the Sinai.

It was not known whether Egypt had also agreed to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's call Wednesday night for the withdrawal accord to be completed "in direct negotiations" between the two countries.

The Israeli negotiating team — Rabin, Foreign Minister Yigal Allon and Defence minister Shimon Peres — met today to discuss the Egyptian reply to the latest Israeli proposals received Wednesday night from Washington. U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger had conveyed the Egyptian stand to Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz.

A government source in Jerusalem said that, while the Egyptians accepted Israel's concept of a strong defence line in Sinai, details of the line still had to be worked out. Also to be decided, the source said, was the future of Israeli radar stations in the Sinai mountains and curtailment of anti-Israel political and economic activity by Egypt.

The source said issues in the agreement dealing with Israeli-U.S. relations had been nearly settled. These included the value of American economic assistance and American aid in replacing oil supplies which would be lost if Israel withdrew from the Sinai oilfield of Abu Rudeis. Israel now draws more than 50 per cent of its oil needs from the occupied Egyptian field, which will be returned as part of any agreement.

Meanwhile, an unexpected disagreement over a single word delayed a meeting today of the United Nations Security Council to extend the mandate of the buffer force separating Egypt and Israel in the Sinai. The council had reached an understanding Wednesday night to extend the mandate another three months after Egypt ended objections.

Diplomats said Egypt was objecting to a clause in the proposed resolution "expressing satisfaction" at its last-minute consent and wanted instead the stronger phrase "expressing appreciation."

But Israeli Ambassador Jacob Doron said he was against the resolution even expressing satisfaction at the Egyptian consent.

The Bucks Stop Here

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party, in a letter to Canadian businessmen, is appealing for funds, but there likely will not be any results from some of the addresses.

The letter told Treasury Board President Jean Chretien that "the national sustaining program, made of committed Canadians like yourself, provides the PC party with the resources to continue our efforts to get the federal government back on track."

A similar letter arrived at the transport department, and other Liberal cabinet ministers were believed to have received them.

Million Jobless In U.K.

LONDON (Reuter)— Unemployment in Britain has passed one million, the highest level in 35 years, the government said today.

Employment Minister Michael Foot called the figures "appalling" and said the situation was grim.

He said nothing major could be done to improve the economy and relieve unemployment until inflation is defeated. He urged support for the government's $13.20-a-week ceiling on pay increases.

"The fight against inflation and the fight against unemployment are part of the same struggle," Foot, the government's leading left-wing socialist, said in a radio interview.

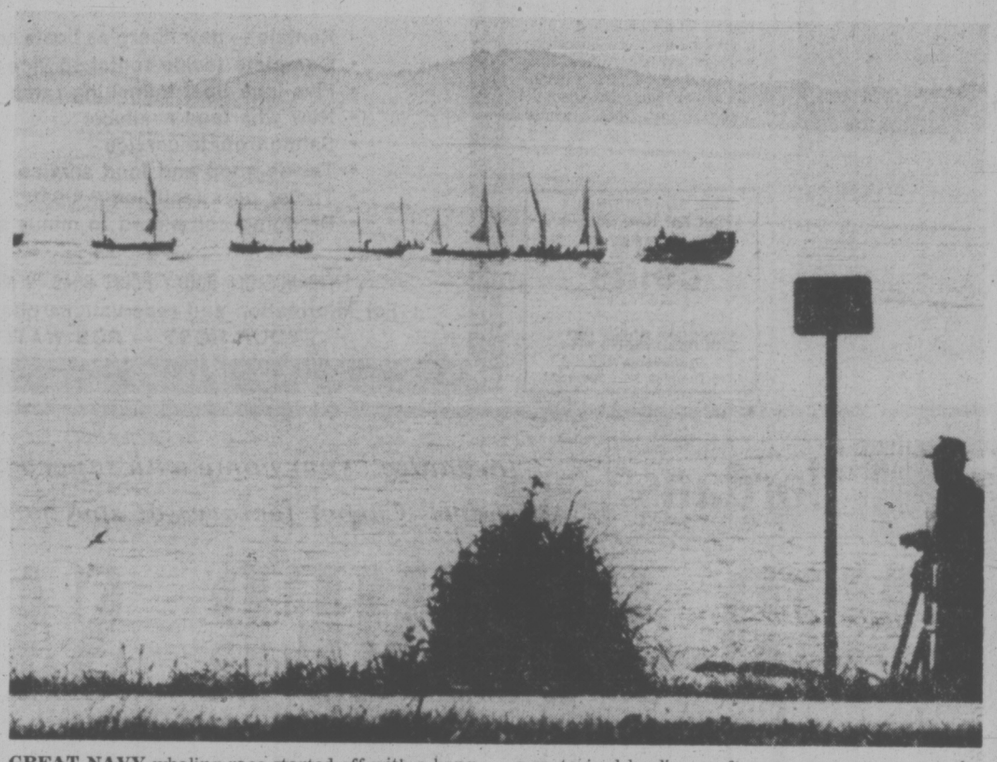
In the European Economic Community about 4.5 million persons are unemployed—50 per cent more than last year —and the number is growing, says an economic survey released today.

The report, prepared by the EEC Commission, said seasonally adjusted unemployment figures for May continued to rise in all EEC countries except Ireland, where the number of jobless has stabilized in recent months. Demand for labor is falling, notably in Belgium, France and West Germany.

The number of people out of work throughout Britain on July 14, when the statistics were gathered, was 1,087,869, or 4.7 per cent of the normal work force. This is a one-per-cent rise over June and the biggest single jump on record.

Three-fifths of July's increase was caused by young adults leaving school and adult students registering for state unemployment benefits. Many of these will leave the ranks of the unemployed by October. Without them, the "hard-core" total of unemployed was 927,936.

The one million milestone was passed a month ahead of most forecasts and suggests a total of about 1.25 million unemployed by the end of the year.



GREAT NAVY whaling race started off with a bang early Wednesday morning with 17 whalers heading off to Race Rocks. But the weatherman, who had predicted moderate breezes throughout the day, didn't keep his part of the bargain and at 3:30 p.m. a motorized landing craft was sent out to rescue the becalmed ships and bring them back to port. Navy is hoping to reschedule the race for sometime in October, when, hopefully, the breezes will blow. (John McKay photo.)

NEWS BRIEFS

Four Missing

PEMBERTON (CP) — RCMP and two mountain rescue squads are searching for four Vancouver-area men who may be buried in a large landslide 40 miles west of Pemberton in the Meager Creek basin, 75 miles north of Vancouver. The four are part of a nine-man geophysical team marking lines in the area. When a helicopter came to pick the men up Tuesday the rendezvous point was covered with a large landslide and there has been no sign of the four men since.

Montreal Walkout

MONTREAL (CP) — Hundreds of thousands of Montrealers were finding their own means of transport today as 3,400 bus drivers, subway operators and other public transit workers stayed away from work to back demands in a contract dispute with the Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission.

Bus Line Talks Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than four months of negotiations to provide a new contract for Pacific Stage Lines employees have broken down. Bill Link, business agent for the Amalgamated Transit Union, said Wednesday the union will hold a strike vote Aug. 1 among the 237 workers.

PEMBERTON (CP) — With 53 members of the Mount Currie Indian band charged with obstructing a public highway, one case was selected to be tried as a test case. Eugene Kwang, a lawyer acting for the band, said one Indian, Melvin John Williams, will be tried Aug. 28 as a test case at the suggestion of David Winkler, crown counsel.

Cuba Snub Nears End

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — The Organization of American States has tentatively endorsed a resolution to end the western hemisphere's economic isolation of Cuba.

Fourteen OAS nations, including the United States, agreed Wednesday night to support a "freedm of action" resolution to circumvent the organization's 11-year-old sanctions against Cuba.

The countries, which have the necessary two-thirds majority for approval, decided to vote in favor of the resolution Tuesday at a meeting of western hemisphere foreign ministers in San Jose.

The resolution, initiated by Mexico and endorsed by the United States, would leave it up to each OAS nation to decide whether to maintain diplomatic and economic relations with Cuba.

The measure would fall short of actually lifting the 1964 sanctions against the Communist government of Premier Fidel Castro, but would make the trade boycott obsolete.

Nations supporting the move were the United States, Argentina, Colombia, Costa Rica, Venezuela, Mexico, Haiti, Panama, Peru, the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Trinidad-Tobago, El Salvador and Honduras.

Diplomats said 12 of the nations have pledged in writing to sponsor the resolution. The remaining two — the United States and the Dominican Republic — have promised in writing to vote in favor of the measure.

Chile, Uruguay and Paraguay were expected to vote against the resolution. The rest of the members — Brazil, Nicaragua, Bolivia and Guatemala — were considered likely to abstain.

The OAS revised the western hemisphere's 1947 Mutual Defense Pact earlier Wednesday, modifying the treaty's adamant opposition to communism with an endorsement of "ideological pluralism."

The updated version of the Treaty of Rio also endorsed "collective economic security" in the hemisphere and made provisions for member nations to appeal to the OAS in case of "special economic problems."

Delegates from the OAS nations began meeting in San Jose July 16 to revise the Mutual Defense Pact under which Cuba was expelled from the hemispheric organization in 1964.

COMPLACENT ON CRIME

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney-General Edward Levi blames the continuing increase of crime in the United States on frightened judges, a complacent public and prosecutors and police who are reluctant to enforce laws in black communities.

"Judges throughout the U.S. are afraid to enforce the criminal law," Levi said in response to questions about the crime rate during an interview recorded Wednesday for Saturday broadcast.

Asked whether he believed the U.S. public accepts the high level of crime, Levi said: "Yes, I do. It's amazing."

Another Big Wheat Buy By Russians

Times News Services

WINNIPEG — The sale of an additonal one million tons of wheat to the Soviet Union was announced today by the Canadian wheat board.

Wheat board officials declined to place a value on the latest order, but based on current Thunder Bay, Ont., export prices, it could bring roughly $226 million.

The announcement of the sale — for approximately 37.3 million bushels of durum wheat — brings total Canadian sales to the Soviet Union for the next crop year to three million long tons or about 112 million bushels.

The sale of two million long tons of wheat to the Soviet Union was announced last week by the wheat board.

The Soviet Union has purchased 12.6 million tons of grain so far this year and speculation that total purchases may top 15 million tons have been partially confirmed, the International Wheat Council said today in London.

The council said in its monthly report this includes between seven million and 10 million tons of wheat, 4.5 million tons of maize and 1.1 million tons of barley.

The council said since last month the grain market has been dominated by rumors that the Soviet Union was negotiating for large purchases of grain including wheat.

Durum is normally used in the making of spaghetti and other pasta products, but it can also be used as a blending wheat for bread flour.

Prisoners Ignore Back-to-Work Call

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Prisoners at the British Columbia Penitentiary have ignored a demand by Andre Therrien, Canadian penitentiary service commissioner, that they call off their strike today.

Nolan Rembruff, acting regional director of the service, reported that the prisoner kitchen crew did not leave their cells to prepare breakfast for the other convicts.

"It looks pretty much like the same kind of day as yesterday," Hembruff observed, adding that other prisoners due to start performing penitentiary tasks later in the morning could be expected to follow suit.

The prison population went on strike Wednesday in a bid to get official recognition of a prisoners' union.

They asked that Therrien come from Ottawa to look into prisoners' grievances and that a collective bargaining system be set up.

But the prisoners were notified Wednesday afternoon that the commissioner had no intention of meeting with them or sending a representative.

A spokesman for the service said this morning it has not been decided what measures will be taken if the prisoners continue to defy the demand.

Prison authorities reported no incidents as the prisoners sat quietly in their cells, at the urging of chanted advice from supporters outside the prison walls.

About 100 members of the Prisoners Union Committee and 50 members of the American Indian Movement demonstrated Wednesday outside the prison in support of the prisoners.

93% Tax Slashes Mine Profit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Western Mines Ltd. reported net profit for the six months ended June 30, 1975, of $122,205 or two cents a share compared with $2,772,469 or 53 cents a share for the first half of 1974.

The effective tax rate for 1975 is 93 per cent of profits, the company said.

In the first half of 1974, the company paid $1,042,323 in dividends, while no dividends were paid in this year's first half.

The 1974 figures for income taxes and royalties are restated in the report in accordance with the tax laws in effect at the end of the year.

Concentrate revenue in this year's first half was $7.5 million compared with $11 million in the 1974 first half.

Provision for income taxes this year is $966,085 compared with $2,035,500 in the 1974 first half.

100 Injured in Athens Riots

More than 100 persons were hurt in the rioting Wednesday, which began after police clashed with 2,000 building workers marching to demand more pay.

The demonstrators attacked police with stones and pieces of wood and overturned cars and buses to use as barricades. The disturbances continued until evening, leaving 106 injured, including 58 policemen.

The government of Prime Minister Constantine Karamanlis said some rioters were former military policemen — considered supporters of the former seven-year-old military regime.

But most of the guards appeared to have been withdrawn this morning.

PLO to Attend UN Conference in Vancouver

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Palestine Liberation Organization intends to attend a United Nations conference in Vancouver next year, despite the controversy over the crime conference in Toronto.

His statement poses serious questions about the planning for the Habitat human resources conference in Vancouver.

Canada asked the UN to postpone the Toronto crime conference, which was to have been held next month, following a bitter domestic controversy about attendance by the PLO.

The decision was "unfortunate, regrettable," PLO spokesman Hassan Rahman said in a telephone interview.

Asked whether the PLO still intends to attend the Habitat conference in Vancouer, he added: "Yes—this is the exercise of our right to participate in the work of the General Assembly and in any conference under the auspices of the UN."

That right, he said, "is clearly indicated" by the General Assembly's approval, last Nov. 22, of observer status for the PLO.

"The action by Canada is clear-cut antagonist to the PLO," Rahman said.

Despite this view, Rahman said the PLO would still send observers to Habitat. "This is not because it is held in Canada, but because it is a conference for the UN," he added.

It was not possible to confirm, either in New York or Washington, reports that Middle Eastern countries might retaliate against Canada. The reports, originating in Beirut, suggested that the retaliation might consist of cancelling economic agreements with Canada.

"I would not be surprised," Rahman said.

In Washington, the U.S. was officially noncommital about Canada's decision.

Privately, however, one official described the decision as "unexpected."

However, he said he wondered whether there would be more trouble with Habitat. One possible problem, he suggested, might be an attempt to bar Israel from participating.

The official pointed out that the U.S. may not like some of the things that have been happening at the UN, but continues to abide by its decisions.

PLO spokesman Rahman made the same point, referring to objections in Canada to PLO observers attending either the crime conference or Habitat.

"We have been conducting our work in the U.S.," he said. "Last year when the Palestinian delegation came to New York, the U.S. provided the appropriate security."

The Habitat situation may become clearer next month, when the UN planning committee meets in New York to discuss arrangements for the Vancouver conference.

Tornado Kills 3

CANTON, Ill. (AP) — A tornado that slashed through a three-block downtown area of the city Wednesday killed three persons and injured at least 55 others, authorities said. Fifteen of the injured were taken to hospital.

Portugal Premier On Top, For Now

LISBON (AP) — Premier Vasco Goncalves emerged as a winner today in a Portuguese power struggle but still faces formal ratification by the military officers' movement that put him in office.

There were reports of wide division among the 240-man assembly of the Armed Forces Movement (AFM) scheduled to meet Friday to endorse a plan putting control of the country in the hands of three generals—Goncalves, President Francisco da Costa Gomes and the natinal security chief, Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho.

Some AFM members, apparently fearing arrest for opposition to the proposed troika, were reported sleeping away from their homes. Lisbon was nervous with talk of coups and counter-coups.

But government and military officials brushed aside such talk and said ratification of the three-man leadership is likely without any serious upsets.

A high government official said Wednesday the three men were preparing to assume power along with the naming of a new cabinet by Goncalves. This, the official said, would bring to an end the worst political crisis since the AFM threw out the old right-wing regime 15 months ago.

But it was not certain how the nation and its two biggest parties—the Socialists and the centrists Popular Democrats —would react.

The two parties, winners of two-thirds of the votes in the April elections, brought on the crisis two weeks ago by walking out of the civilian coalition in the military-dominated government. They charged Goncalves, influenced by the Soviet-line Communist party, with pushing the country into a left-wing dictatorship.

The military has run Portugal ever since the overthrow but authority has been divided. The troika would put power and responsibility in the three generals' hands.

The senior government official indicated the troika would take authority from the currently-ruling Revolutionary Council, a 30-man body of AFM officers that awarded itself near-dictatorial powers after smashing a weak, right-wing coup attempt in March.

Times News Services

NEW DELHI — In a session boycotted by opposition lawmakers, the upper house of parliament today unanimously passed a bill that bars law courts from hearing any petition challenging Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's state of emergency.

The vote on the measure, which would amend the constitution to forbid placing the validity of the June 26 proclamation before the courts, was 164 to 0.

Opposition lawmakers of both houses are boycotting the current week-long parliament session, called Monday primarily to ratify Gandhi's emergency decree.

Her ruling Congress Party commands an easy majority in parliament and ratification of the decree passed overwhelmingly in both houses. the vote was 136-33 Tuesday in the upper house and 336-59 in the lower house Wednesday.

Immediately after the balloting in both houses, opposition lawmakers announced they would boycott the balance of the parliamentary session and walked out in protest of the decree's ratification.

Gandhi made it clear in speeches before both houses that there could be no return to "the licence and political permissiveness of the pre-emergency period", but she gave no indication how long it would remain in force.

Food Minister Jagjivan Ram, who concluded the 14-hour debate in the lower house, indicated that hundreds of opposition workers arrested since June 26 will likely be held in detention rather than prosecuted.

Ram, the most senior member of the cabinet, said regular medical checks are also being made on the political prisoners.

The minister said the government's main emphasis now will be on implementation of its economic program.

Status Quo Rock Group Plays at Arena Friday

Status Quo, the British rock group, will perform at Memorial Arena Friday along with the J. Geils Band of Boston. The show starts at 8 p.m.

A 13-year history of hits, the group's most recent album, On the Level, is tops in England and a single from that album, Down, Down, heads the charts.

"Our gimmick is we haven't got a gimmick," says a spokesman.

"We have no stage show as such. We just come on with a big blast, playing a brand of music known as riff rock."

Described as delivering hard, loud and raunchy rock, the group is made up of Allan Lancaster, bass; Richard Parfitt, and Francis Rossi, guitars, and John Coughlin, drums.

Their big hit in 1967 was Pictures of Matchstick Man and this was followed with Down the Dust Pipe and In My Chair. An album entitled Hello, was the Number one album in England last year.

Safety Was Seconds Away

Firefighter Robert O'Neill, at an apartment fire in Boston Tuesday, was within seconds of reaching safety on a ladder with 19-year-old Diana Bryant and Tiare Jones, 2, when the fire escape gave way. O'Neill caught the ladder, but the woman and child fell five storeys. Tiare survived; her babysitter died. (Photos by Stanley Forman of the Boston Herald-American.)

Police Use Bugging 'Almost Every Day'

Electronic eavesdropping by police has become an every-day occurrence in B.C. according to testimony given Wednesday in Victoria provincial court.

Constable Clifford Spittal, an RCMP electronic technician, said he did installations "almost every day."

Spittal was testifying in the case of James Archie Hancock, 33, and Gilles Paul Proulx, 30, who are charged with two counts of conspiracy to commit armed robberies in Esquimalt and Victoria last April.

Spittal related to the court how he had planted a bugging device in a car in the city April 21 and said he had done between 30 to 40 similar installations in the two-and-a-half years he has been attached to the criminal investigation special services branch.

He said he and three other police officers had gone to a body shop at 8 p.m., entered the target car which had been locked and installed a transmitter next to the radio antenna with wires leading to the battery and chassis.

He said the transmitter gave out a FM signal with a range, varying under city conditions, of between one half to three city blocks.

The device, he said, was sufficient to transmit all sounds made within the car and were picked up by a portable receiver.

He said the power from a cigarette lighter socket was all that was needed to activate the receiver unit.

Spittal testified that at the time of installation the receiver was connected to a tape recorder.

He said he removed the transmitter from the car on April 28.

Earlier in the trial another RCMP electronics technician, Kenneth Kantola, said he came to Victoria on April 13 and went to the fourth floor of the Victoria police station, 625 Fisgard, where police had set up a telecommunications monitoring room.

He said he replaced four Victoria police tape recorders with four others he had brought with him because he felt the RCMP model would give a better quality recording.

He said the purpose of the tapes and recorders was to intercept conversations on two telephones in the Greater Victoria area.

Tapes of three phone conversations were played to the court but details cannot be made public until Judge William Ostler makes a ruling on their admissibility as evidence.

The judge has said the trial is being conducted as a trial within a trial, or voire dire. Traditionally there is a ban on evidence given in voire dires, and defence lawyer Cecil Branson said he would object to its publication at this stage of the proceedings.

One conversation between a man and a woman and then two men was recorded at 9:02 p.m. April 16, and third, a short conversation between first a man and a woman and then two men was taped at 2:07 p.m. April 17.

So far 11 of the 25 witnesses expected to be called in the case have testified.

The trial which started Monday and is the first court test of Canada's 1974 Invasion of Privacy Act, continues today. Seven days have been set aside to hear the evidence.

Tory Leadership Race

Heward Grafftey was first off the mark, but if the preliminary rumblings and jockeying for position are even a half-accurate indication, the list of candidates looking to boss that bunch of perpetual losers known collectively as the federal Progressive Conservative party is going to be surprisingly long.

Grafftey, a bilingual, right-wing conservative Conservative who got his start campaigning much like Ralph Nader against unsafe autos, is given no better than long odds against others who are probable starters — Claude Wagner, Flora Macdonald, John Fraser, Sinclair Stevens, Jack Horner (that's only the MPs), plus outsiders such as Peter Lougheed, the premier of Alberta, Mayor David Crombie of Toronto, and past and present Ontario premiers John Robarts and Bill Davis.

What are the attractions of the job that such a herd of hopefuls are after Robert Stanfield's job? It can't be the prospect of assuming the prime minister's office after the next election. There may be several political earthquakes before Pierre Trudeau's mandate runs out in 1979, but at present there are no portents of the tide running in the Tories' favor. Only six years out of the past three decades have they exercised power, and it's going to take more than just one election to break the Liberals' patented formula for running the country.

Effectively, the job of leader of the Progressive Conservative party means being official leader of Her Majesty's loyal opposition. Every Tory chief must entertain private hopes of someday seeing his name up there with statesmen such as John A. Macdonald, Robert Borden and Arthur Meighen writ large in the history books, but Stanfield's successor is more likely to be put down in the footnotes with the losers—Manion, Bracken, Drew—whom few people remember.

One reason—the party's timing in setting a date for the convention (next February) couldn't be worse. The Liberals are unlikely to oblige by calling a general election shortly after. The excitement and interest in the Tories generated by the various leadership campaigns (and all that free television time devoted to the convention itself) will probably be entirely dissipated by the time the next vote actually does take place. The party has the example of its choice of John Diefenbaker in 1956, and the Liberals' selection of Trudeau in 1968, only months before the ensuing election, as examples of brilliant timing.

Another reason — it looks as though the party is going to refight old ideological battles that should have been settled in 1942 when the word Progressive was inserted in the party's title. In the material Grafftey has distributed, the MP from Quebec says the Trudeau government's "drift towards complete socialism must be How do Grafftey and the other conservative Trudeau is a socialist in this analysis, then the Barrett cabinet must be flaming maoists.

Despite certain bits of evidence that Grafftey and the ultra-conservative Tories in the so-called Chateau clique must have pounced upon — such as public opinion polls showing the public favors a hard line on capital punishment and crime — it's at least doubtful that Canadians want the clock turned back to the laissez-faire days of R. B. Bennett.

The continuing strong core of support for the progressive policies of Robert Stanfield through three successive elections shows this. stopped." If the cautious, small-c right-wingers explain the 35 per cent of Canadian voters (only three points less than the Liberals got) who presumably backed Stanfield's stringent wage and price control plan last year — state socialism if the word has any meaning left at all?

In their singleminded haste to oust Stanfield and to come up with a winner, Tories should not elect a narrow-minded partisan of the right or left wings of the party. Stanfield's success in slowly drawing together a Tory party left in ruins by Diefenbaker perhaps wasn't as flashy as the presidential style of Pierre Trudeau, but it was an important and necessary job.

The party hasn't been helped by the mutterings of the western cowboy fringe, the persistent personality cult around the party's elder statesman (going on 80 and still refusing to retire) and the unpleasant anti-French campaign of a few MPs. It would be a sad day for Progressive Conservatism if the leadership convention provided a nationally-televised platform for all the cranks in the party.

Different Program

Occasionally while reading the paper we have come across typographical errors, a fault in punctuation, but rarely have I witnessed such gross inaccuracies such as appeared in the July 10 article OFY Duplicates Parks Program.

The article begins, "Six Claremont students . . ." Our staff consists of eight personel including one qualified lifeguard, one para-professional and six university students. Even the amount of the grant as reported in the article was inaccurate.

The previous program that was withdrawn from Lochside Park so that the grant would not be "a waste of money" consisted of one instructor with a total registration of 45. We were unable to obtain information as to the number of people the program accommodated on a daily average but since the mothers of the community had neither seen nor heard of such a program we assume it was considerably less than their total application. With over 170 applications we have worked with no less than 50 per cent of the children on a daily basis.

Our program is not a repetition or a replacement of last year's program but something completely different. In addition to planned daily crafts and recreational activities, we provide bus excursions to places of interest. With such a program we feel we have not only provided ourselves with summer jobs but in so doing are providing the community with a valuable service.—Cathy Auburn, Mike Pesek, Janice Bruce, Dave Millburn, Tom Michell, members of the Community Involvement Program.

Editor's note. The report, as printed in the Times, was based on a committee meeting, the amount of the grant and number of students being reported by a Saanich municipal official. In the opinion of the official, as reported, the Community Involvement Program is a duplication of one formerly carried out by the municipality.

Macdonald Replies

The Victoria Times carried a large display advertisement that was inserted in 15 Canadian dailies between July 10 and July 12 by Imperial Oil Ltd. There were two major assertions in this advertisement that I believe were misleading and I would appreciate an opportunity to offer the following corrections.

The ad, headlined Here's Where Your Money Goes for Those Gasoline Price Increases, referred firstly to the 10 cent excise tax on a gallon of gasoline announced in the June budget and proclaimed: "100 per cent to the federal government."

That is 100 per cent wrong. Not a penny of that 10 cents will go the federal government. The purpose of the tax is to keep home heating costs down by permitting the continuance of the oil import compensation program. The revenue — all the revenue — from this tax will pass to consumers in eastern Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces in the form of reduced prices for petroleum products, including home heating oil.

The subsidy is directed to consumers by holding the cost of high-priced imported oil in eastern Canada to the same price level as domestic crude oil from western Canada. Moreover, the method by which these fuel prices are being kept down, is by helping refineries, partly thorugh the revenue from the 10 cent tax, to pay the high price for imported oil. These refineries, who through the subsidy are not called upon themselves to pay as much for this oil, are able to pass the saving along to consumers. These refineries include Imperial Oil.

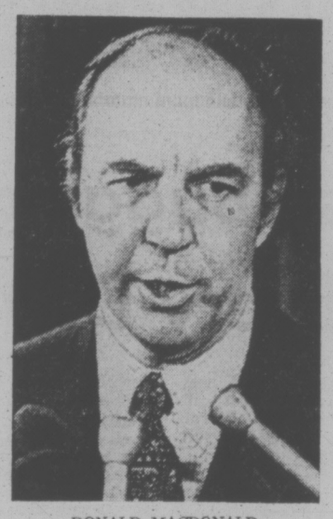
Up to March this year, as a result of the oil import compensation program, a barrel of imported oil cost Imperial Oil $3.91 less than it would have had to pay without the plan. These savings, along with those enjoyed by other refineries, amounted to $254.6 million in savings to consumers in Nova Scotia, and $145.6 million to those in New Brunswick over a 15-month period, to cite just two provincial examples.

The advertisement went on to say that 100 per cent of the $1.50 increase in the price of domestic crude oil will go to federal and provincial governments "until provincial royalties are changed."

Following the announcement of the June 23 budget, Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta announced in the provincial legislature that the Alberta royalty rate would be changed by a reduction permitting part of the $1.50 per barrel price increase to flow to the oil companies to spur exploration and development. Imperial Oil Ltd. may not wish to take the premier's public declaration at face value but I certainly have faith in his word.

Imperial's assumptions as to increased returns to government also assume the following:

- that the old pre-June 23, 1975, federal tax rules will remain in effect (they will not).



DONALD MACDONALD
. . . says Imperial ad misleading

- that Alberta and the other oil-producing provinces will not continue drilling incentives and income tax rebate schemes (none has said they will be withdrawn).
- that Imperial Oil will make no expenditures for exploration and development of additonal oil and gas reserves (Imperial has always said they would continue exploration).

On the basis of the recent budget, and assuming the changes in Alberta's royalty and continued exploration, the industry's cash flow will amount not to zero but 40-50 per cent of the $1.50 increase.

The analyses of independent observers in the nation's press also have concluded that there will be a substantial cash flow to the industry through the federal and provincial tax changes. — Donald S. Macdonald, Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources, Ottawa.

Mea Maxima Culpa

Your headlines are frequently at variance with or actually contradict, the subject matter following. On page 30 of the July 16 edition, your headline writer has excelled himself, and doubtless rendered you liable to "unspecified damages" if the authorities of Eton college deigned to pursue the matter, the subject matter of the article being concerned with Rugby school.

The matter does not however rest there; I have no doubt that you accepted in good faith an article date-lined London. It contains however several glaring inaccuracies, the chief of which is that the famous headmaster of Rugby was Dr. Thomas Arnold, who was to the best of my information never knighted. Possibly the writer got confused with Sir Edwin (not Edward) Arnold who was a poet and wrote a long epic, The Light of Asia.

Possibly accuracy in journalism is not considered important nowadays, but if anyone of your readers took the time and trouble to list all the misleading information which is disseminated through sheer carelessness in checking, I believe it would astonish you. — N. T. Porter, 245 Linden Avenue.

Auxiliary Workers

As a concerned citizen I feel duty-bound to comment on recent actions of the British Columbia Governments Employees Union. Your paper reported an incident a few weeks ago of complaints from Local 101 about the job status of auxiliary workers. This was followed by imposition of trusteeship by the BCGEU and then silence. Since such silence usually suggests guilt I feel it's necessary to inform the public that the silence is due to the "awesome power" of the BCGEU.

In this particular case, although never officially informed, it seems that the Local 101 executive committed the unpardonable offence of talking to the press and radio about the auxiliary problem without first getting the permission of the union's provincial executive. While the method of imposing trusteeship was quite despicable and not at all in the spirit of Canadian justice, the union claims that it has the authority, under its Constitution, to hold their "kangaroo court" hearings and impose punishments such as trusteeships, fines, blacklistings, etc.

Under their agreement with the B.C. government, all workers must be represented by the union — workers must be members of the union and pay dues. If a person is blacklisted by the union that person is no longer able to hold his job (no wonder the silence from Local 101).

At present the government, according to BCGEU secretary John Fryer, has some 8,000 auxiliary employees. These auxiliaries are paying first class fare on the union bandwagon but apparently only rate second class status as they have no job security. It seems a convenient way for the government to hire and fire at will (like the bad old days) while the union fills its coffers, offers platitudes about is maturity and responsibility, and silences any who dare to speak out.

The provincial executive of the BCGEU appear to be centralizing their power and, in my opinion, this bodes ill for the autonomy of the locals, to say nothing of the individual workers.

Considering that the union has control over upwards of 35,000 people, all paying $10 per month or one per cent of their salary (with an increase imminent), I feel that we must insist that our government introduces better laws to protect the workers and society from the new union bosses who already seem to feel that their status puts them above our Canadian laws. — Disgruntled.

CHICAGO — Hundreds of persons, probably more than 1,600, were drowned today when the steamer East and, crowded with 2,500 employees of the Western Electric Co. out on an excursion, capsized in the Chicago River. The crowding of passengers to one side of the vessel is supposed to have caused the accident, but authorities have also ordered the arrest of the officers of the boat. The whole tragedy occupied less than five minutes.

Pair Struggle for Portugal

LISBON — If the Armed Forces Movement of professional officers now running Portugal ever hands over its present governing power it will presumably be to one of two men, Alvaro Cunhal, boss of the tough, efficient communist organization, or Mario Soares, the socialist chief whose party won the April elections.

I deliberately say if the AFM "ever" hands over because military dictatorships (except in Turkey) do not often dissolve themselves. This one has already been awarded a blank cheque valid for from three to five years of rule and seems to want even more than such a promise.

Soares and Cunhal are the two outstanding civilian politicians visible on today's horizon. Both fought the dictatorship that preceded last year's revolution and both suffered prison and exile. The fathers of each were "progressive" revolutionaries, and lawyers (like their sons).

Soares, tall for a Portuguese, with a rumpled appearance, looks something like the first Alexandre Dumas. He gives the impression of being more an intellectual than Cunhal. Both spoke to me in French.

Russian Influence

Soares spent five years in France before returning here in the wake of revolution. "Cunhal came through France," he said, "but from further east." (Apparently Moscow and Prague.)

Soares, now 50, says his career was most influenced by Antonio Sergio, a humanist Portuguese philosopher and "the apostle of co-operatives." Cunhal acknowledges his father "helped my moral development" but he was "primarily" influenced "by our popular masses."

Each man has experienced physical suffering but Cunhal, taut, small with white hair and an intense face older than his 62 years, clearly went through hotter fires. There is a strain in his hazel-brown eyes and fleshless frame.

He spent 13 years as a prisoner, eight in solitary confinement. During two of the latter years he was not allowed any books or writing materials, "not even toilet paper." An impressively courageous man, he led Portugal's most famous jailbreak.

Older and more experienced than Soares, Cunhal is an arch-conspirator and organizer. He impresses me as being bitter, resolute, fanatically determined but neither so humane nor so cultivated as Soares.

The two men know each other (while at the university Soares was in the underground communist youth movement) but admit they have no feelings of friendship.

"He was never my good friend," says Cunhal. "We have no personal contacts now." Soares calls Cunhal "the anti-Berlinguer" — Italy's smooth Communist chief. He regards him as "a Stalinist" who could never tolerate a multi-party system of freedoms. The proof seems manifest today.

Each concedes that the AFM now runs Portugal. Soares says: "The real power is in the hands of the military, but not the only power. The political parties and the popular masses count in decision-making. Our military is something special — it is democratic and progressive. Therefore we don't have a dictatorship. But we don't have real democracy, only a near-democracy. Certainly the principal power is in the hands of the military."

Cunhal says "Portugal isn't under a military dictatorship right now." The AFM is simply "the determining power in a large coalition, but it is a genuine coalition." Every hour seems to belie this statement as the coalition dissolves.

Soares counts ultimately on "the sincerity of the AFM but there are others seeking power, the Communists. There is no more threat from the right; the right is out of the game. Nevertheless the ultra-leftists are also trying to gain power. I am very preoccupied about the situation."

Cunhal insists: "We want broad democratic freedoms, but not in the bourgeois way. We don't want the monopolies to have economic power." He denies that Moscow gives instructions to his party.

Freedom with Reaction

He claims he favors a free press but that "angry workers" had prevented publication of the famous daily Republica, and it was not his fault. "In Portugal you can create any paper you want, write what you want. But you must beware of the reaction." (Who guides the reaction?")

Soares accuses Cunhal of not being "a democrat." That's not news. He adds: "Communism wants autarchy. I think we must use foreign help."

Neither wants to raise the issue of NATO membership yet but Soares is clearly more interested in remaining an ally. Meanwhile, Soares tries to consolidate his party's position among the masses while Cunhal skillfully infiltrates and influences the crucial AFM.

Manned Space Flights Have No Place to Go

By NIGEL HAWKES
London Observer

The American manned space program has had as many farewell performances as an aging diva. But when the three Apollo astronauts splashed down today it was the final curtain call.

The Apollo-Soyuz mission was a complete success. Its ambitions, admittedly, were modest; to show that two spacecraft, designed in different countries for different purposes, could be launched into orbit, make rendezvous, and dock. That aim was achieved with contemptuous ease on the first attempt.

Only a ripple of applause ran round the press room at Johnson Space Centre in Houston at the moment of docking. The excitement of the moon landings — the first, incredibly, now six years ago — could not be recaptured by such a mundane event. Detente in space is a thin diet for reporters raised on the excitement of the first steps on the moon.

For the next few years the Soviet Union will take whatever headlines there are for manned space flight. No American is likely to reach orbit again until 1979 or 1980, when the space shuttle is due to fly. And since this vehicle is designed expressly to make space travel a routine event, it is unlikely to stir much enthusiasm either. Real space buffs may have to wait another 20 years for the drama of a manned landing on one of the planets.

Today is thus a good moment for looking back, for measuring the achievements of man in space. Many of the scientists and engineers most intimately concerned with the program will have ample opportunity to do just that: 1,800 of them were laid off by NASA last Friday.

The Apollo program was conceived as a race, and that is why everything that has happened since the day Neil Armstrong set foot on the moon has come as an anticlimax. Once the tape is broken, why trouble to go on running? The succeeding Apollo shots, the Skylab program, and now the Apollo-Soyuz link-up, have really been no more than the momentum of the program playing itself out.

How much was achieved? Scientifically, the harvest was comparatively meagre. The past decade has seen a much greater return in understanding of the universe from the much smaller investments made in radio and optical astronomy from the earth. Unmanned missions have also provided new knowledge more rapidly and more economically than manned missions.

This is not to say that the Apollo program brought no new knowledge, simply that it became expensive. Even the simple earth orbit gyrations of the Apollo-Soyuz project cost nearly $250 million — and as Dr. Carl Sagan, a distinguished atronomer from Cornell University, remarked last week, that is half the annual budget of the National Science Foundation responsible for supporting most basic science in the United States.

What, then, did landing on the moon do for the human spirit? Less, perhaps, than might have been hoped. It may be a failure of imagination, but the moon landings still seem to have been curiously two-dimensional events. They generated millions of words, but scarcely a memorable remark, no great literature, unless you count Norman Mailer's Fire on the Moon, easily the best account of the Apollo 11 flight.

They did establish a new frontier, as inhospitable as any that could be imagined, but uncovered no new resources and brought forth no profound intellectual innovations. They were free of the moral dilemmas of the atomic bomb, and produced no individuals as interesting as J. Robert Oppenheimer or General Groves. They left the world much as they found it, troubled by the kind of problems that cannot besolved by technicians. This is not to denigrate the program, merely to deflate some of the more high-flown claims that have been made for it.

So where does space research go next? The problems of financing man in space will become less acute if NASA succeeds in developing the space shuttle, which, it is claimed, will do for space what the DC3 did for air travel. By using the same vehicle again and again, the costs of each mission will be dramatically reduced.

This will supply a means of inexpensive space-flight, but not a motive. To find that one must look to science or to military demands — or perhaps to prestige, though the international kudos of space-flight is greatly diminished these days.

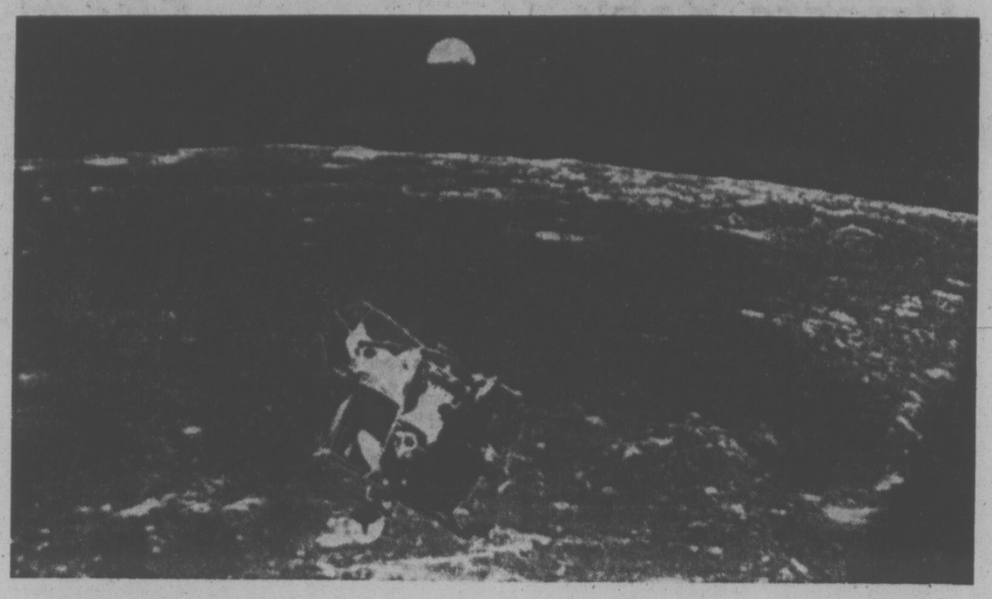
The space shuttle could turn out to be a vehicle without a mission. Its true function would be to supply men and materials to an orbiting space station, which might be used as a scientific base in space. But no such station is planned by the U.S. and it is unlikely, despite the success of Apollo-Soyuz, that NASA would allow its shuttle to fetch and carry for a Soviet space station.

In any case, there is little evidence yet that the experiments would justify the cost. The experiments by astronauts on previous missions have been a mixture of science and occupational therapy and have not produced any very unusual results. A full-scale space station could certainly undertake more ambitious experiments and might even be used as a 'zero-gravity' factory, producing materials of high perfection, but it has yet to be shown that this would pay for itself.

The future for man in space is thus more clouded than it has been since the first manned flights. The explorations of the moon have shown that man can operate in space and have satisfied curiosity about the moon's constitution, but without producing the kind of new insight which would be used to justify further landings.

At the same time, unmanned satellites have become more sophisticated. Nobody doubts that they will continue, and next month will see the launch of two Viking satellites designed to look for life on Mars. They will take the best part of a year to get there, soft-land, and scoop up soil samples to look for living micro-organisms.

This kind of experiment is both much cheaper and much more interesting than anything the Apollo and Soyuz crews have been doing, and the future may lie with unmanned satellites. NASA remains convinced that there are things men can do that machines cannot do, but the case is at best unproven.



SPACE PROGRAMS have been anti-climactic since Apollo 11 moon landing in 1969. Here lunar module prepares to rendezvous with command ship after historic mission.

The Troubles Of Sidney

By ROGER NEWMAN

WINNIPEG — Manitoba Conservative leader Sidney Spivak must be wondering what he has to do to impress his supporters.

Spivak has been under seige for the past six months, with numerous Tory malcontents threatening to challenge him when the party holds a leadership review in December.

His critics insist the 47-year-old Winnipeg lawyer and hotel-owner does not have enough charisma and clout to ever defeat popular NDP Premier Edward Schreyer. But Spivak thought he had permanently silenced his detractors when the Conservatives recently won two mid-term by-elections in ths suburban Winnipeg constituencies of Crescentwood and Wolseley.

Unfortunately for the embattled leader, this has not turned out to be the case. A couple of hours after the by-election votes were counted, a 10-foot-tall Spivak described the dual victories as an endorsement of his leadership. He further announced he was calling his caucus into session the next day to make plans for the 1977 provincial election. But his elation quickly turned into embarrassment when only 11 of 23 Tory MLAs showed up for the planning meeting.

The caucus's lukewarm feelings for Spivak almost guaranteed there will be a December leadership contest. Because of the by-election triumphs, the Tories are absolutely convinced they have an excellent chance to form the next government. In fact, they can almost smell power now that they trail the NDP by only eight seats, 31 to 23. And this makes them doubly determined to ensure that the right man is at the helm when Manitobans go to the polls two years hence.

Spivak's estrangement from his caucus has become progressively more pronounced in the years since he became leader in 1971. Basically, the problem seems to be that the Tory chief is out of tune philosophically with the party's MLAs. He is a progressive who has been known to embrace modern social ideas.

On the other hand most of his followers are rock-ribbed rural conservatives who think it is wrong for the state to interfere with a man's right to be poor and unemployed. Some of them doubt Spivak is a real conservative — and they say the party should have a new leader who will be a "true" alternative to the NDP.

SPIVAK . . . a winner loses

In sum, the Tories are looking for a winner to put them over the top in 1977. And since Spivak was an also-ran in the 1973 election, they may try to replace him with somebody else, possibly Sterling Lyon, a former Roblin cabinet minister, or Jack Murta, the popular Conservative MP for Lisgar. However, at least one candidate will have to declare himself by July 31, in order to meet the party's rule for forcing a leadership review.

Spivak, meanwhile, has no intention of quietly departing from the provincial political scene. He intends to seek support from party members outside caucus, hoping this strategy will maintain him in his job.

The incumbent leader is already mounting a high-powered campaign to hang onto his leadership. He has implied that if present Conservative MLAs do not like serving under him, they may be challenged in their ridings by pro-Spivak candidates.

Spivak's problems, however, are minuscule compared with those of the Manitoba Liberal party. Prior to the recent by-elections, the Liberals held four Legislature seats and were officially recognized as a provincial political party. But they lost their offices, staff and party status when Wolseley voters defected to the Conservatives, reducing Liberal strength to three.

Furthermore, the present Liberal leader, Charles Huband, failed in his bid for the Crescentwood seat, placing his future in doubt.

Huband said the Liberals will live to fight another day.

Getting Half Pipeline Story

By JEFF CARRUTHERS

OTTAWA — Can Canada run the risk of not being told the whole story about the pros and cons of a Mackenzie Valley natural gas pipeline?

Very few Canadians would want to take such a chance. Yet that's exactly what will happen if the National Energy Board accedes to the wishes of Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline Ltd. and its supporters and prohibits El Paso Alaska Co. from intervening at this fall's Mackenzie Valley pipeline hearings.

El Paso and Canadian Arctic Gas are arch-rivals, to put it mildly. Both want the privilege, if that is what it can be called, of transporting Alaskan natural gas to lower United States customers.

Canadian Arctic Gas wants to build a joint Canada-U.S. $10-billion pipeline system that would, almost incidentally, also transport Canadian gas from the North to southern markets.

El Paso proposes to move Alaskan gas by pipeline across the state, liquefy the gas, and then ship it by tanker down the west coast, basically by the same route to be used for moving Alaskan oil.

Canadian Arctic Gas, which seems to enjoy a lead in the race to win government approval, terms El Paso an "inter-meddler" for wanting to intervene in the up-coming Canadian regulatory hearings.

El Paso shouldn't be allowed into the Canadian hearings because it has nothing directly to do with moving Canadian gas. Rather El Paso is obviously trying to advance its own scheme in the U.S. by attacking and perhaps delaying the Canadian Arctic Gas project here in Canada. At least that's how Canadian Arctic Gas lawyer Michael Goldie was arguing at a special pre-hearing here in Ottawa recently.

But the lawyers for the competing Foothills pipeline group, which wants the right to build a smaller, exclusively-Canadian Mackenzie Valley pipeline, say again quite correctly that El Paso's own project is directly affected by what happens in Canada.

Similarly, the Canadian schemes are directly affected by what happens before the U.S. Federal Power Commission, which is already hearing the competing cases being presented by El Paso and the U.S. sister of the Canadian Arctic Gas group.

If Canada gives the nod to Canadian Arctic Gas, then El Paso's chances are reduced somewhat in the U.S.

Canadian Arctic Gas has argued all along that its project is feasible only if it also carries Alaskan gas to the U.S.

The lawyer representing El Paso at the NEB pre-hearing, an experienced courtroom and regulatory hearing fighter from Toronto by the name of Walter Williston, put on a good show of anger and shock at the effrontery of being blocked from intervening by Canadian Arctic Gas.

He charged that all the accusations were so much nonsense, that El Paso was obviously an interested party since the Canadian hearings would affect its pocket book.

The Canadian Arctic Gas scheme being offered to Canadians and Americans is a joint Canada-U.S. project.

Some critics would add it is more American than Canadian and offers the risk of Canadian gas being siphoned off to the U.S. in time.

But it is a project that depends on the availability and economics of both Canadian and U.S. natural gas in the North.

Canadian Arctic Gas in fact argues strongly that the American portion of its project will benefit Canadians in at least two ways: We'll get our own northern gas faster and cheaper than we would with an all-Canadian pipeline.

So obviously Canadians need to be told about the American side of the project to comprehend the advantages and disadvantages of jumping in with the U.S. on such a mammoth undertaking — an undertaking that is becoming all the more critical to Canadians, what with natural gas shortages appearing already in B.C. and Ontario with gas prices rising rapidly.

Canadians not only deserve to be told both sides of the story, they require it. Yet without El Paso's participation at the Canadian hearings, there's all too great a chance that won't happen.

Foothills, established by a renegade former member of the Canadian Arctic Gas project, has a wealth of information about the Canadian scene and can be expected to balance out the regulatory hearings, as well as provide Canadians with an alternative pipeline in case the Canadian Arctic Gas scheme falls into disfavor.

The Sleepy Seventies

The 1970s are boring. The decade is already half over and its chief legacy is an engulfing swamp of boredom. Americans are bored by Watergate, bored by Richard Nixon and bored by the endless tale of skullduggery in the CIA, the FBI and the IRS.

President Ford is boring, which is his chief political strength. Henry Kissinger's brilliance is boring. The president's economists are boring, but not nearly so boring as their incessant, boring predictions that prosperity is just around the corner.

Playboy, Penthouse, Viva, Lui, Oui, Gent, Hustler and Screw are boring. So are Hugh Hefner and Xaviera Hollander. Unless somebody stops them soon, they will make even sex boring.

England's perpetually imminent economic collapse is boring. Harold Wilson may be the most boring man of the 20th century. Incredible crowds at rock concerts are boring, and so is the music they listen to. NATO is boring.

After 10, or 15, or 30 years in Vietnam — depending on how you figure our involvement there — Vietnam had become so boring that hardly anybody even complained when it finally went down.

Jacqueline Onassis and Elizabeth Taylor on magazine covers are as boring as reports of UFO sightings. Beards are boring. Angry demonstrators are boring.

Oil-company announcements of their splendid contributions to Western Civilization are boring, as are OPEC's regular increases in the price of oil, and the ceaseless increases in taxes and the cost of living.

It is a decade without juice, spice or sauce. It is a decade of leftovers from the refrigerator of the 1960s heated up for the table once too often.

The boredom is probably not entirely unhealthy, if you take it as a form of resignation. At least, the time of rising expectations is over, replaced by a time in which we expect little but bad news and accept its inevitability with resignation. After the era of rising expectations, we have entered the age of passive resignation.

Governments, economists, Hefner, Xaviera, England, Wilson, General Thieu, Jackie-and-Liz photographers, oil companies, OPEC, President Ford, NATO, rock musicians — go ahead and do your worst. We expect nothing more.

Soon George Wallace will run for president again, and Hubert Humphrey. We expect it. We have been through it before, and we can take it again. Soon the Kennedy people will be reviving Camelot one more time, and the anti-Kennedy people will return us to the bridge at Chappaquiddick, and we will not scream for mercy. We are becoming gluttons for boredom.

Go ahead, give us Ronald Reagan again, send the Rolling Stones on another fantastic road tour, shuttle Henry Kissinger back and forth across the sands of Araby with plenty of photos of red-carpet airport-greeting ceremonies. And watch us yawn.

Congress is boring. Analyses of why it can't do anything are boring. Politicians announcing that they can do something if elected are boring, which makes elections boring. Big-budget movies whose message is that American life is a sewer are boring. Earl Butz is boring. Johnny Carson is boring. Newspaper columns are boring.

And nobody minds terribly, except possibly the unemployed, who don't count much, since, to the 90 per cent of the workers who have jobs, the unemployed are boring. True, they are necessary to shake the economy down.

A large force of idle labor dampens pressure for wage increases and holds down inflation, which is boring whether it is going up or leveling off, which only means that we are resigned to the bad news which will follow either eventually.

Later, politicians will argue about it, which will be boring, and get elected or defeated, which will be boring; and the taxes will go up again, which will be boring.

The oil companies will boast that, but for the grace of them, America would be sunk, and someone will write an amusing piece about the latest chic way to behave. It will be boring.

In the 1960s, of course, Americans hungered for boredom. A sleepy government, some peace in the streets, a release from passions and phonograph noises. In all that turbulence, it seemed an unattainable dream of paradise.

Now we have it, and may even be enjoying it. After the storm, a quiet. After the carnage, passive human resignation, and we have the boring '70s. In another five years, perhaps, half-mad with boredom, we will be ready to dance to fresh music.

Priests Back Women Clergy

WASHINGTON (WP) — A group of American Roman Catholic priests has organized to press for the ordination of women to the priesthood and to fight sexual discrimination in the church and society.

The chartering members of Priests for Equality said exclusion of women from the priesthood "violates the justice we preach, frustrates the needs of our community for more adequate ministry and contradicts the call which is rising in the hearts of not a few women."

The 79 signers of the charter said their past silence on the subject has been wrongly interpreted as consent of discrimination. They invited all 57,000 priests and 250 bishops in the United States to join their movement.

The signers, solicited by six clergymen in the Baltimore-Washington area, are moderate to liberal priests serving in parishes, religious agencies and administrative positions in 17 states. No bishops were asked to sign the charter. Creation of the priests group follows the organization last March of a coalition of American nuns pushing for Catholic women priests and planning a nationwide convocation on the issue for Thanksgiving weekend in Detroit.

It also comes on the heels of an International Women's Year speech April 18 by Pope Paul VI that women are not called to ordained ministries because they were not among Jesus' twelve Apostles.

Meanwhile, Maine's Episcopal bishop has sent an angry letter to those involved in the controversial ordination of 11 women as priests, saying their conduct had led indirectly to the June 24 death of Louisiana's bishop in an airliner crash at Kennedy International Airport here.

Bishop Frederick Wolf of Portland, Me., said in the letter of the death of Bishop Iveson Noland of New Orleans:

"I do not hold you personally responsible for Iveson Noland's death. However, Iveson Noland would not have died in that plane crash if you had not done what you did in Philadelphia. That is a part, by no means directly so, of the consequences of your ecclesiastical disobedience, and you have a right to be aware of this."

Bishop Wolf's letter said Bishop Noland had been on the way to attend a meeting of the bishops' advisory council, made up of heads of the church's nine provinces and of which Bishop Wolf is convenor, to deal with matters relating to the Philadelphia event and its aftermath."

RC Bishop On CIA Payroll

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA regularly infiltrated church groups and missionaries working abroad and once had a South Vietnamese Catholic bishop on its payroll, says a former U.S. state department intelligence specialist.

John Marks said the bishop, who headed a diocese outside of Saigon, was on the agency's payroll as recently as 1971 and a CIA "case officer" would fly in from Saigon for secret meetings with him.

Marks is director of a research project for the Centre for National Security Studies, a private group frequently critical of the CIA.

In a study of the agency's relationships with church groups, Marks said:

"Congressional and executive pressure has forced the CIA to maintain a hands-off stance toward a few groups like Peace Corps volunteers and Fulbright scholars, but religious organizations have never been treated by the agency with such deference."

A spokesman for the Senate panel probing the CIA said the committee is looking into the CIA's relationships with missionaries.

FBI Agents Rewarded for Burglaries

WASHINGTON (WP) — FBI agents were given bonuses for conducting successful burglaries, according to an FBI source who said he approved many of the illegal break-ins.

The bonuses ranged from $50 to more than $250 and were paid from a confidential fund used to pay informants, the source said.

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley last week confirmed that FBI agents conducted "surreptitious entries," or burglaries, to obtain "information relative to the security of the nation."

With some exceptions, Kelley said, the practice stopped in 1966.

An FBI source has told The Washington Post that dozens and sometimes more than 100 break-ins were conducted by FBI agents each year.

While most of the break-ins were conducted in cases involving domestic or foreign security, many were conducted in ordinary criminal cases, the source said.

With each bonus, he said, former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover sent a letter of commendation to agents who had conducted burglaries that produced useful information, but the letters did not mention the burglaries.

On some occasions, the source said, local police appeared at the wrong times and caught FBI agents in burglaries.

MORE TESTS ON VOLUNTEERS

WASHINGTON (WP) — The US Army is awaiting permission to test further at least two drugs that produced hallucinogenic side-effects on between 50 and 70 military volunteers, the head of the medical research division at Edgewood Arsenal said Wednesday.

Dr. Van Sim said he is waiting for permission from the surgeon general's office to test scopolamine, a depressant that has been used as a truth serum and can produce hallucinations, and a nerve gas antidote similar to atropine. The tests would be made on both male and female volunteers, Sim said.

Sim told a press conference called by the Army that 585 servicemen and civilians who were part of the Army's LSD experiments between 1959 and 1967 were not told in advance either that they were getting LSD or that it might have some long-term effects.

Instead, according to the standard Volunteers Participation Agreement, which all those in the program signed, they were told the tests could cause "transitory discomfiture."

Volunteers who signed up for the program, Sim said, were given a three-day pass every week, an extra $1.50 per day, a letter of commendation and "a lot of appreciation from us."

Sim defended the drug experiment program, which he said Tuesday had drawn 6,940 volunteers since it began about 20 years ago, and said it was "a very popular program." Only 30-40 per cent qualified for the drug tests, Sim said Wednesday and not all actually were given drugs.

He said he knew of no one who required extended hospitalization from their participation in the program, although he said seven participants in the LSD experiments had shown adverse side effects. Doctors handling those cases were sent data on their part in the experiments, said Sim. "We've never heard from any of them since."

ILA Balks At Loading Grain Ships

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — The International Longshoreman's Association says it will refuse to load grain for Russia until its 132,000 dockworkers are assured the price of bread and beer won't go up as a result.

Almost 800 delegates to the ILA (AFL-CIO) convention stomped, whistled, cheered and clapped after voicing unanimous approval of a "don't load" resolution Wednesday.

The statement leaves up to ILA president Thomas Gleason the final decision on whether to load the wheat, corn and barley Russia bought from the United States in a multi-million dollar deal recently.

Gleason said he would meet with officials of other maritime unions in Chicago Tuesday and with AFL-CIO executive council members Wednesday. He said AFL-CIO president George Meany is investigating the grain deal with Russia and particularly Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz' statement that the sale would cause only a "nominal increase" in living costs next year.

ILA officials also said the sale of 51 million bushels of barley to the Soviets could hike the cost of beer in the U.S.

President Ford offered personal assurances, in a filmed address to the longshoremen, that the grain agreement with Russia would prove beneficial to the United States.

But the ILA resolution stated: "The record of the present administration . . . does not inspire confidence in its ability to protect the interest of this nation and its working people in commercial grain sales to the Soviet Union."

City's Viet Refugee Still Jobless

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Former Vietnamese diplomat Nhien Quang Thanh is still among the jobless after nearly seven weeks in Victoria as a refugee from Communist-occupied Saigon.

In an interview at his new home at 1618 Richardson, Thanh said he and his family find Victoria pleasant and comfortable, but he is becoming concerned that he has not yet had a job opportunity, although four children are working.

The one-time consulate-general to Cambodia and Hong Kong is trained in French law, speaks fluent French and is a qualified administrator who could fit easily into government service, education or business.

But such opportunities are limited and Thanh said he is prepared to work at almost anything, even if he were accepted for work requiring on-the-job training.

If nothing transpires in two weeks, Thanh said he intends to contact friends in the east, and seek work in Ontario or Quebec. He has written to acquaintances in the external affairs department in hopes of lining up something in immigration, such as translating.

The 56-year-old lawyer realizes the impossibility of transition from French law to Canadian law without lengthy study and he is reluctant to ask for federal government support for a protracted time.

Thanh wants to stay in Victoria if possible because of the climate. Being accustomed to temperatures in the range of 30 degrees, he abhors the thought of sub-zero weather of the Prairies or eastern Canala.

In addition, his daughters Julie and Mary are attending school in Victoria and a son Tony is at University of B.C.

His eldest sons are also having job problems. Edward, 32, is a doctor specializing in internal medicine and cardiology who works part-time as an orderly at Gorge Road extended care hosptial.

With a wife and two small children to support, Edward is unable to offer much help to the rest of the family as he studies to qualify for the practice of medicine in B.C.

Andy, 30, arrived in Victoria June 27 from Tokyo—three weeks behind the rest. He is a graduate mechanical engineer (Tennessee) who has been studing for his master's in political economy in Japan, where he also worked for a bank and trading company.

He expects to find something relating to engineering in a developing part of the country, perhaps Alberta, he said. Andy's speciality is steam power plants.

The fourth son, Johnny, is 28 and studying in Arizona where he likely will stay until graduation, Thanh said.

One of the avenues Thanh has explored for himself is teaching. But his educational credentials were among the things lost when the family fled their homeland under threat of mistreatment or death at the hands of North Vietnamese who overran the south.

He has applied to the B.C. education department for certification which he hopes can be based on interviews and background information he is able to supply.

But as for a teaching job—all 1976 positions have been filled, he was told.

Meanwhile Emily, who has been here since 1974, works as an alevator operator at the Empress Hotel; Mary is a waitress, and Julie is with a telephone answering service. Lucie, who had her own hairdressing business in Saigon, is still looking for work.

For the first little while they all lived in a small house on Fernwood, including Thanh's wife Nguyet Minh Do and mother Quy Nguyen, but now have a more comfortable house in South Fairfield.

"My first impression was right, that Victoria is a very nice city with a very good climate," Thanh said, citing the many flowers and landscaped properties.

He has since found people hospitable, too.

He pointed around the sparsely-furnished living-room to a fold-a-bed chesterfield, television set and other items that have been given to the family.

"I don't know how they know, but they come along or telephone to see if we need anything."

As a refugee he was asked how he felt about the criticism levelled against one of his countrymen and fellow-refugee, Gen. Dang Van Quang, who was asked to leave Canada after taking up residence in Montreal.

Thanh, who said he did not know the general except for having met him at conferences, noted that he had held a high post in the South Vietnamese security organization and that in making its decision not to admit Quang the "government of Canada must have its reasons for doing so."

"The government of Canada must have very clear proof for such a decision," added Andy.

$500 Bond Releases Driver Charged in Attempted Murder

NANAIMO (CP) — Colin Kelly, 22, of Nanaimo was released on recognizance of $500 in provincial court Wednesday.

Kelly was charged Monday with attempted murder and criminal negligence in operating a motor vehicle following a 4½ hour confrontation with police early Sunday in which 78 persons were arrested.

Police equipped with three-foot riot sticks moved into a crowd of about 300 persons when a near riot occurred in the downtown section of the city.

The confrontation began when a crowd celebrating the annual 30-mile bathtub race across the Georgia Strait to Vancouver became unruly, police said.

Kelly was charged in connection with an incident involving a car driven at high speed which went through police lines and almost hit Mayor Frank Ney and two RCMP officers.

In the ensuing pursuit, by police, the car smashed into a police car and rolled.

Three rioters were sentenced Wednesday, including Donald Andrew Labuik, 23, of Nanaimo, who was sentenced to 30 days in jail for being a member of an unlawful assembly.

In addition, he was given a seven-day jail term for causing a disturbance in a public place by using obscene language. The sentences are to be served concurrently.

Daniel Garth Irvine, 20, of Victoria was sentenced to seven days in jail for being a member of an unlawful assembly and received a conditional discharge for assaulting RCMP Insp. Dan Webster during the disturbance.

The policeman told a probation officer the assault was more of a light push.

Larry Hodson, 20, of Nanaimo was fined $50 for causing a disturbance by swearing and fined $450 for being a member of an unlawful assembly. He was also placed on six months probation.

CATERING to the musical taste of six children, prize-winner Irene Harrison, 3175 Matilda, charged through Kelly-Deyong Sound grabbing $5,998 worth of jazz, folk, rock and classical recordings today. In a contest sponsored by Cadbury's, she won five minutes in the store to select up to $6,000 worth of records at a typical $5.18 value and based her pick on a preview of stock on Wednesday. Her take exceeded the $6,000 total by about $200, amounting to more than 800 recordings. (John McKay photo.)

CDC Close To Public Stock Offer

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Sun says the Canada Development Corporation soon will make a $250 million public stock offer.

The evening newspaper says an official announcement is expected to be made Friday after the CDC board of directors approves the deal at a meeting in Montreal.

The issue apparently will consist of $250 million of preferred shares of $100 units, each carrying interest rates of seven per cent a year. It is expected to be traded on the Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver Stock Exchanges, the Sun says.

Preferred shares could be converted into 10 common shares within a 10-year period. Conversion price was not yet known, the Sun says.

The CDC shares are expected to go on sale next month.

Public Employers Tie Bargaining Knot

Public employers in the Capital district who acted in concert during a three-month civic labor shutdown earlier this year are establishing their own permanent bargaining unit.

The Capital Regional Board approved the concept in principle Wednesday, following similar moves by Victoria and Oak Bay councils.

And board chairman Jim Campbell said he would like to see such a unit include many other employers who spend public funds, such as hospitals and the University of Victoria.

He said the biggest shortcoming with the ad hoc regional employers' group involved in the strike-lockout with the Canadian Union of Public Employees was that it didn't start early enough, nor was it given sufficient explicit ways of dealing with bargaining.

He said later that for employers such as municipalities, but excluding provincial and federal governments, it is a matter of developing a uniform wage policy.

Such a policy would prevent employee groups from "whipsawing" employers against each other with differing settlements and it would provide "fair treatment" throughout the region for employees doing similar work.

Campbell said the most effective form of employers' bargaining unit might be an agent, hired on a contract basis by employers. He would like to see "someone on the job" by the beginning of next year.

Pratte Slams Ex-Colleague As Air Canada Inquiry Ends

MONTREAL (CP) — With a thank-you to the final witness, Chief Justice Willard Estey of the Ontario Supreme Court brought to a close Wednesday public testimony at an inquiry into Air Canada's financial operations.

Today, the lawyers are to present final summations and then Mr. Justice Estey will begin the awesome task of compiling a report from the more than 7,500 pages of testimony which the inquiry has heard.

Yves Pratte, chairman of Air Canada and final witness at the inquiry, had further criticism for officials who arranged a controversial $100,000 payment to Montreal travel agent R. Y. McGregor.

Pratte earlier testified that the deal, purportedly for "consulting services" but in fact an attempt to acquire equity for Air Canada in a national travel agency scheme being developed by McGregor, was "stupid" and "incomprehensible."

On Wednesday he said, ". . . nobody thought about the consequences for the airline.

The chairman denied under cross-examination by A. J. Campbell that he knew about the payment prior to a meeting with the airline's president of finance, Michael Cochrane, on March 7, 1975. Campbell has represented Cochrane during the inquiry.

The chairman said he asked Cochrane at the meeting whether payment could be halted, but was told it was too late.

"He (Cochrane) told me the money's gone and Menard's gone," said the chairman.

That reference was to Yves Menard, former vice-president of marketing for Air Canada who authorized the payment in Nov. 1974. Menard resigned Feb. 27, 1975, over an alleged conflict of interest involved in his ownership of a villa in Barbados.

Just prior to Menard's resignation, Pratte said, he had consulted Transport Minister Jean Marchand to discuss "the Menard villa affair."

"Did you tell the minister you were ready to stand up for Menard," asked Campbell.

"No, I did not," the chairman replied.

Pratte then noted that the minister had already formed an opinion prior to their conversation.

"He (Marchand) made it very clear that Menard ought to go," said Pratte.

As for Menard's judgment in his purchase of the villa, Pratte said his former associate's biggest mistake had been to leave himself open to a conflict-of-interest situation for months prior to his resignation.

A-Plant Engineers Reject Offer

MISSISAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Engineers on strike against Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (AECL) Wednesday voted over-whelmingly against accepting a company contract offer.

The engineers, members of the Society of Professional Engineers and Associates (SPEA), turned down the offer by a vote of 257-2 with nine abstaining.

The offer called for a 24.3-per-cent salary increase over two years. The engineers want 47.5 per cent over 33 months.

The engineers, who went on strike this week, are members of the first professional union certified under the Canada Labor Code. They have been negotiating with the AECL since they were certified last December.

Soviets Fish Despite Bar

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc told the Commons Wednesday that closing the east coast ports to the Soviet fishing fleet did not mean that the Russians would have to halt their fishing operations off the Atlantic coast.

However he believed it would prove to be a great "inconvenience" to the Russian fleet because last year the Russian vessels made 400 visits to Canadian east coast ports.

Edward Broadbent national NDP leader said the minister could hardly give the house any assurances that closing our east coast ports to the Russians would have the effect of ensuring compliance on the part of the Soviet Union with the International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries (CNAE) fishing restrictions. He pointed out that the size of the Russian fishing vessels enabled them to remain at sea for a long period of time.

LeBlanc Wednesday announced the closure of Canada's Atlantic ports to Soviet fishing vessels in a move designed to make the ICNAF meeting in September aware that Canada felt strongly about Soviet overfishing of ICNAF quotas. Canada has closed its ports to the Russian ships and threatened to close them to Portugal and Spain.

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) enquired if the announcement was preceded by negotiations with the government of France to close the port at St. Pierre to the Russian ships.

"Otherwise the minister's announcement would be tantamount to firing an empty shell across the bow of the Soviet fleet," said McGrath.

LeBlanc said the Canadian government has had contact with the government of France. The French government has said that in no way could it increase facilities at the island of St. Pierre and Miquelon to replace what is required from Canadian ports by foreign fleets.

McGrath said the Canadian government should be concerned about the economic impact its actions will have on east coast ports such as the port of St. John's. He asked if any consideration had been given to providing special assistance to such ports because they already have a high rate of unemployment at the east coast.

The minister said the government was worried about the impact of its action in closing the ports.

"But we also felt it was time to do things about which we had been talking for weeks, months and years," he said.

There had been no reaction yet from Soviet officials, the minister said, although Canada was willing to discuss the matter at any time.

MP Wants Proof

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill that would empower Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. to require clients to supply proof of their income level was introduced in the Commons on Wednesday by John Reynolds (PC—Burnaby-Richmond-Delta).

It would permit the crown corporation to demand T-4 slips from persons getting CMHC assistance with private mortgages.

Reynolds said the purpose of his proposed amendment to the National Housing Act, unlikely to be approved because it is a private member's bill, is to ensure that persons getting CMHC assistance are those needing it most.

The Blueberry Caper That Changed My Life

July 25 is the 40th anniversary of my writing a regular newspaper column, though I've taken time off for good behavior and attempts to kick the habit. It's an awful temptation to go on about it. So I will.

The hardest part about being a columnist, I've found, has been to convince your readers that you've absolutely no qualifications whatever for the job. Too many people assume that when you write under your own name you must have some special knowledge that makes it all the easier to hate you or, occasionally, to regard you highly. In other words readers are inclined to take you too seriously,

It's something I've always tried to beat. Don't hate me, please, I've kept saying. Don't love me, please. I'm not worth either. Sure, I believe these things. That doesn't mean you have to. All I'm asking is that you occasionally read me, not that you agree or disagree, approve or disapprove.

The best advice I ever had — his only advice, in fact — came from the editor who first gave me the assignment. "A columnist is just an opinionated guy who lives down the block," as he defined it. "If you ever aspire to be anything more we'll find a replacement for you."

There may be lapses in this philosophy. I have gone through periods when I really thought I was endowed with omnisience and might even be destiny's tot. But after awhile you learn that your opinion rarely changes a reader's opinion that what you say only fortifies—for or against—some judgment that's already been made. In that sense I look back on 40 years of total failure in what you might think is the basic function of the columnist—to influence opinion—without any regrets whatever.

I suppose that's one reason I seldom write about politics any more, though there was a time when I wrote about little else. It's a subject that can only mirror your own deep prejudices. When you've done that once too often you become a Johnny-One-Note, the very worst thing that can happen to a columnist. An example: I happen to think, provincially that the present administration is doing a pretty good job, but it's boring to repeat it for me and I'm sure it's equally boring for the reader.

Yet if the columnist can't be said to influence his audience he may salvage his self-esteem if that's what he wants, with the knowledge that, at least, he reaches them.

I often think that my own coming of age occured when my wife and I went picking blueberries on Grouse Mountain. That was when the road up the mountain to the chalet was open. There were millions of fat, succulent blueberries, a discovery that we appeared to have made almost alone. So, a day or two later, I had a brief, final note in my column suggesting that my readers ought to drive up there on Sunday, maybe, and get their share. "Take a pail along," I advised.

That Sunday the night desk phoned me. There had been enormous day-long log-jam traffic tie-ups on the Grouse Mountain road. A reporter had written that people were angrily shaking empty pails from the windows of their stalled cars and using my name in the most unflattering terms.

It shook me up as nothing had before or since. In fact, it scared the hell out of me. I realized for the first time the awesome responsibility that went with the job and the need to keep in mind that you were reaching a rather large number of people.

My hunch is that that sort of communication is why the daily newspaper column, though hurriedly done, usually expendable, has never waned.

Often it is the only place in the paper where the reader may find a sense of self-identification. The columnist finds, very early, that if he writes of having a fight with his wife or recalls some incident from his youth or chronicles the washing of a Labrador dog or any other trivia it usually has more impact than the earth-shaking pronouncements he yearns to make. It may not be the way he wants it, but the verdict, "Something like that once happened to me" becomes a cherished accolade.

It is fatal, of course, to forget that your first duty is to entertain, that no matter what else you do you must amuse or titilate or somehow grab at your reader by the lapels.

That is the fundamental difference between a reporter and a columnist. The reporter always has the story to tell. He may bring it to life by his powers of description, but even if it is lifeless the reader may peruse it to the end.

The columnist can never rely on such a compunction—though he is never shackled by it, either—but must depend only upon his own devices to keep the reader going.

I have watched readers on buses and ferries coming to my own column, occasionally have seen them flick the page after a paragraph or two and have known that I have failed. Yet once I saw a man actually laugh aloud at a piece that was meant to be funny and lived in a lunatic glow for a whole day.

I don't think that I would do it again if I had a choice, mind you. Even with those columnists like Al Fotheringham who seems born to do it, or Art Mayse, who never writes anything less than beautifully, it may be created out of an anxiety. This makes it hard on a man who was born anxious. You eventually get so that anything that happens to you — tragedy or achievement or whim — is instinctively put to the test —"Will it make a column?—and, believe me, that's no way to live.

Still, it's mostly been fun and isn't that what it's all about? And if it isn't don't blame me.

Curb Remains on Imports To Save B.C.-Made Wines

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Inexpensive imported wines will continue to be excluded from B.C. liquor store shelves in order to give special protection to B.C. wineries.

The B.C. wine industry could be "ruined overnight" if cheap foreign wines were allowed to flood the market, liquor distribution branch manager Keith Warnes said Wednesday.

But local wines have always been given protection on prices and, despite the liquor branches new listing policy, which will set sales quotas, B.C. wineries will continue to corner the market on cheap products.

Some French wines, priced under $2 a bottle, could easily be brought in, said Warnes, and Brazil has been promoting a wine costing under $1 a bottle.

California and Yugoslavia are also offering good inexpensive wines.

But no imported wines priced under $3 have been included in the list of 101 new wines and liquors approved recently for addition to B.C. liquor store stocks.

The new products, chosen from 4,000 applications from outside B.C., are the first new listings approved in two years and the first results of the government's new listing process.

A seven-member listing committee, made up of branch officials, experts and lay people, selected the new listings and also "delisted" 75 products from outside B.C. which were not selling up to quota.

Warnes said most of the delisted products were liqueurs and liquors in bottle sizes which were not proving popular.

About half the new additons are quality imported wines. A handful are from Ontario, a couple from California and the remainder from outside the North American continent, said Warnes.

Also included in the new listings are two new brands of tequila, some lighter rums, several new kinds of liqueurs and Italian grappa.

The listing committee's next task is to deal with local products and Warnes said he expects listing applications for about 60 new B.C. wines.

About 100 B.C. products are not selling up to quota, he said, and wineries will be warned those products may be removed if sales do not improve.

But Warnes said most of the products not selling well are particular sizes of bottles, rather than brands, and wineries will more likely be asked just to eliminate certain sizes of products.

Imported and domestic products will face the same kind of sales quotas and thus be competing for shelf space but Warnes said he did not expect the quotas to hurt B.C. products because of the continuing price protection.

Asked if he thought the restrictions on cheap imported wines was hurting the consumer, Warnes said B.C. offers good quality wines at inexpensive prices and the local products are selling well.

Worker Loses Fingers

Victoria police said Norman John Wolski of 4101 Douglas was re-cutting shakes on a bandsaw when the usable part of the shake fell into a chute instead of into the bin where it should have fallen.

Wolski was one of two workmen who three weeks ago helped a fellow-employee who had his arm caught in a conveyor belt.

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Public Works Minister Bill Hartley entered the former service station on the Causeway this morning and asked for a fill-up — of coffee.

It was the first day of business for the provincial government's new sandwich bar in the converted gasoline outlet, and Hartley was there to supervise preparations for the 11 a.m. start.

The public works department's $10,000 facelift on the old building has apparently tried to create the atmosphere of a European-style sidewalk cafe, complete with outdoor tables, frilly sunshades and flower-filled planters.

Amid the controversy which surrounded the plans for the food operation, city of Victoria officials termed it "Barrett's Beanery," but on opening day at least there wasn't a bean to be seen.

Executive chef Yvon Chouinard, who also runs the catering arrangements in the Legislative Buildings restaurant, said the menu will offer coffee, tea, milk, soft drinks and five or six types of sandwiches.

Forty people can be accommodated at the small tables inside the building, and many more at the 10 picnic benches scattered around the Wharf-Causeway forecourt and the terrace overlooking the Inner Harbor.

Around midnight Wednesday some enterprising person tried to make off with one of the heavy picnic tables in a truck, but security people caught him in the act.

Will the cafeteria go truly European and offer thirsty passers-by wine or beer with their food? Chouinard said he'd welcome that, and Hartley said the cabinet might be prepared to consider the matter.

City council has criticized Hartley for proceeding with the sandwich bar operation, despite city objections that Victoria purchased the site and turned it over to the Capital Improvement District Commission as part of the over-all improvement of the Inner Harbor area.

But, sipping coffee this morning with reporters, the minister denied that he had in any way "betrayed" the city's or the CIDC's plans.

HARTLEY
. . . fill 'er up

"I think more and more of the citizens of Victoria realize that some of these people who lip off really don't know what they're talking about," he said.

"To say this is detracting from the Inner Harbor is rather ridiculous, because everyone who has come by in the past day or two has said it's beautiful . . . a lot better than the old gasoline alley."

Hartley said his department had merely carried out the CIDC's request, embodied in a resolution at the agency's last meeting, "when they asked us to beautify, develop and maintain this property."

Mayor Peter Pollen wanted the city's objections to be aired at a special CIDC meeting, but the meeting set for today was postponed at the request of provincial representatives.

So, You're Itchy After a Swim

Among the hordes of people splashing about in lakes of the Capital district this summer some are ending up scratching — and scratching — and scratching.

They are victims of "swimmer's itch," caused by minute free-swimming organisms called cercaria, and they can blame an unhappy combination of weather and water conditions — and snails, Dr. Allan Arneil, regional health officer, said Wednesday.

"Swimmer's itch" isn't a health problem. But it sure can be irritating for some people, leaving them "really miserable" for a day or two.

The rash on swimmers' bodies, which can vary in the same way some people are highly susceptible to mosquito bites, is caused by the wee beasts burrowing into the skin where they expire.

If that sounds bad, said Arneil, be thankful the situation isn't the same as in the tropics where a related organism doesn't stop at the skin but burrows into internal organs, causing thousands of deaths.

A good deal isn't known about the organism found in B.C. but it's thought to be deposited in the water from feces of gulls and perhaps small animals. In the water it must find a snail to host one of its life stages, emerging as the swimming organism which produces the itch. Where weather, warms shallow waters of lakes in the right combination, as it has this summer, cercaria thrives — and swimmers scratch.

Arneil said the problem isn't any more severe in this region than elsewhere in the province, but there have been a number of complaints.

One way of attacking the problem is to poison the snails and this has been tried in some locations but it is tricky because the poison used can also kill fish, he said.

Is there anything swimmers can do to avoid the itch?

Arneil said towelling oneself dry as soon as one leaves the water appears to help. And swimmers can apply oil to themselves before swimming, an approach he personally doesn't find very appealing.

And if the itch arrives?

He said he favors the old-fashioned approach to such irritations, treating with cold water, perhaps baking soda or calamine lotion.

Any acute stage of itching lasts six to 12 hours, with the rash gone in two to three days.

Saanich Won't Reward Early Birds

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Between $8,000 and $9,000 is owing in interest to Saanich taxpayers who paid their taxes in advance but Mayor Ed Lum says there's little chance they'll ever get it.

He said Wednesday it would cost $25,000 in overtime and other costs to "sort the thing out" and reimburse the taxpayers.

Due to the civic labor dispute Saanich was unable to get its tax notices out on time and had to extend the date taxes are due from June 30 to Aug. 15.

Those Saanich residents who paid in advance are now claiming they should be paid interest for the six-week extension.

One woman, who doesn't want her name used because "my husband is employed by government and this could make things difficult," told the Times:

"It is not our fault the date of payment has been changed. I consider this highly illegal and immoral, providing a very good profit for Saanich."

Lum concedes it's unfair for those residents who paid in advance but says the task of sorting out who should receive interest for the six-week period is staggering.

"It's a monumental job to go through 50,000 tax notices to see who paid in advance," Lum said, "We know we received about $800,000 in early tax money.

"This means there would be about $8,000 to $9,000 due in interest. But it would cost $25,000 in overtime and other costs to sort the thing out."

Since receiving complaints, Lum said he had reviewed the matter with municipal solicitor D. M. Patterson, municipal administrator Bill Tremayne and the municipality's accounting department.

He said Patterson had assured him that Saanich is on sound legal ground because it has a bylaw cutting off the interest-payable date at June 30.

A $1,000 BAD JOKE

It was a phone call worth at least $1,000 of the taxpayers' money — and it may have been someone's idea of a joke.

Just how expensive marine rescue alarms — particularly false ones — can be is illustrated by an example Wednesday.

A "May Day" call about 11 a.m. was relayed through a Vancouver marine operator to Victoria's Pacific Rescue Co-Ordination Centre. The message was that an unidentified boat at the north end of Active Pass was badly holed in her bow and unable to use engine or bilge pumps.

The U.S. Coast Guard immediately dispatched a helicopter under a reciprocal help arrangement which has the closest rescue units responding.

The 41-foot RCMP cutter Harvison, based at Ganges on Salt Spring Island, was sent to the scene, as was a two-man Zodiac inflatable rescue craft of the Canadian Coast Guard.

The B.C. Ferries Sechelt Queen stood by in the area for a time and checked out some locations for the rescue co-ordination centre.

The area was thoroughly searched. There was an armada of pleasure craft at the scene, many of them fishing, but no boat in trouble was found.

Cost of the exercise:

The helicopter, on the call for 1.7 hours — about $850.

The RCMP cutter Harvison, one hour on the job — about $100.

Shares Keep Evaporating In Stock Consolidations

By AL FORREST

Shares continue to evaporate at a rapid pace on the Vancouver Stock Exchange where three companies, including one not yet three years old, were consolidated in the past week to form new companies.

Gone are Remar Resources, Citex Mines Ltd. and Celtic Minerals.

Shares of Remar Resources were consolidated on a 2-for-5 basis to form Golden Shamrock Resources Ltd. Remar shareholders will get 400 shares of Golden Shamrock for every 1,000 Remar held. However, Remar had been formed only 33 months ago. In October, 1972, the shares of Morocco Mines Ltd. had been consolidated 1-for-4 to form Remar. An investor starting with Morocco in 1972 would have only 100 shares of Golden Shamrock for every 1,000 Morocco shares purchased. Golden Shamrock has some mining claims in Nevada but no ore of commercial interest.

Citex Mines Ltd., which was incorporated in 1966, has had its shares consolidated on a 1-for-5 basis to form Consolidated Resources Inc., leaving Citex investors with 200 shares for every 1,000 purchased.

Celtic Minerals Ltd. has become Citlec Minerals (Celtic spelled backwards) and shares have been rolled back on a 1-for-4 basis. The company was five years old. Investors will get 250 shares for every 1,000 shares of Celtic they purchased.

Trading on the Vancouver Stock Exchange has been dull but there has been some activity by short traders seeking to profit from falling prices. During the first half of July 17,500 shares of Thor were sold short, bringing the outstanding position to 30,400 to be bought back eventually.

A total of 19,700 shares of Galveston were sold short, increasing the short position to 22,100. There were 23,000 shares of Barrier sold short, iscreasing the position to 51,400.

Short sellers are hoping for price declines in all three stocks in hopes of buying the shares at low prices to cover their positions.

A total of 923,553 shares have been sold short and remain to be covered, up 89,000 in the first half of July. A high total of short sales is regarded as a feeling of pessimism about the future trend in the prices of those shares. The highest short position continues to be in Carolin Mines, although the total was reduced 12,200 to 132,700 in the first half of July.

Golden Shamrock has announced it has offered its president N. X. Dragovan, the right to buy 10,000 shares of the company at 15 cents next July and 10,000 more at 20 cents the following July.

GBX Mines has had 200,000 shares underwritten at 30 cents each.

Alberta Gas Trunk

Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd. of Calgary has reported net earnings of $11,291,000 or 46 cents per share for the first six months of 1975, up from net earnings of $8,318,000 or 41 cents per share for the same period of 1974.

Operating revenues for the six-month period amounted to $56,174,000, compared to $43,289,000 for the same period a year ago.

Gibraltar

Gibraltar Mines Limited has reported a net loss of $396,000 or .03 a share in the six months ended June 30.

This compares with net earnings of $14.3 million or $1.26 a share in the same period a year ago.

The company said the tremendous drop in earnings is a result of lower prices for copper which have dropped to 57 cents a pound from $1.17.

Gibraltar also said provincial mineral royalties, plus income and mining taxes totalled $980,000 and converted pre-tax earnings of $584,000 to a loss.

The company said that to reduce expenses, its mine at McLeese Lake in the Cariboo will close for three weeks in August. All vacations have been scheduled for then.

B.C. Packers

B.C. Packers Ltd. reports sales for the first 24 weeks of 1975 were down nine per cent from the same period of 1974 and the company recorded a net loss.

Sales were $64,081,000 compared with $70,774,000 in the first half of 1974 and the net loss was $432,000 compared with a net profit of $2,381,000 in the first six months of 1074.

R. I. Nelson, chairman and president, said the fishing industry and the company continue to be aversely affected by depressed markets and rising costs.

Imperial Oil

Imperial Oil Ltd. reports its earnings for the first six months of 1975 are estimated at $143 million or $1.10 a share, down from $162 million or $1.25 a share in the first half of 1974.

J. A. Armstrong, president of the company, said production of crude oil decreased because of reduced demand and that the reduction in export demand reflected the relatively high cost, including export tax, of Canadian crude to United States refiners.

He attributed declining sales of petroleum products, chemicals and fertilizers to higher prices and the slowdown in the Canadian economy.

Cdn. Occidental Pet.

Canadian Occidental Petroleum Ltd. of Calgary has reported net earnings of $6,590,000 or 85 cents per share for the first six months of 1975, up from the restated earnings of $2,945,000 or 44 cents per share for the same period last year.

Revenues during the period increased to $29,827,000 from $20,564,000 a year ago.

Instant Town Proposed for Peace

There are four possible ways to develop the Peace River district, ranging from zero growth to construction by the provincial government of an instant town, according to a report released Tuesday by the provincial department of economic development.

The town, 50 to 70 miles south of Chetwynd, would open up a number of new jobs, rising to 3,500 workers in 15 years. In addition, it would spur development in the whole region.

The study, jointly financed by the federal and provincial government, will serve as a guide to future development in the northeast region of the province.

Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk, in releasing the report jointly with Alf Nunweiler, minister without portfolio responsible for northern affairs, said the key, to development of the region would be the use of coal, forests, oil and natural gas.

Lauk said any development in the region must be consistant with the desires and expectations of the people in northeastern B.C. as well as the needs of British Columbia as a whole.

He stressed the report was only a talking paper at this point and the government had not yet decided which route to take. The report, entitled The North East Report 1975, covers the Peace River-Laird Regional District, an area with 25 per cent of B.C.'s land area but only 45,995 people or 2 per cent of the total population. The current labor force numbers 16,500.

The four options:

Zero development of the region with major concern for the environment and the present way of life of the area.

Massive development in the resource industries by the private sector only, adding as many as 5,700 new jobs quickly through construction of a new pulp mill, natural gas plant and development of three new coal mines.

A third option would be to follow plan 2 but add government capital to provide services such as labor pools to assist the private sector in its expansion.

The fourth option is for government control and direction of resource development in the region with the showpiece being the new town, constructed by the government and paid for by private enterprise on a use basis. The fourth option would provide more jobs in the long run, although employment in the private sector would not rise as quickly because private expansion would be delayed while the new town was being constructed.

Eventually the fourth option would provide as many as 6,900 jobs, with 3,500 of them around the new town. Heavy government spending would be required and an early start made.

Inevitably, the environment would be altered through rapid development but would in some ways be improved. There would be an attempt to create some secondary industries in the region and tourist potential would be developed.

The department of economic development is preparing studies of all other economic regions of the province to be released over the next two years.

TAPES TO BE PLAYED IN LAVERTY TRIAL

Tapes of telephone conversations were to be played to county court today in the sixth day of the trial of Dennis Grant Laverty, accused of possession of methamphetamine (speed) for the purpose of trafficking.

Prosecutor Mike Hutchison said Wednesday there are four tapes of eight telephone conversations in May and June of 1974.

This recordings were made before passage of a new section of the Criminal Code which requires approval of a judge to intercept and record calls.

Okell said the deal for bringing five pounds of speed to Victoria June 5, 1974, involved him and Robert Drainville of Montreal and Laverty knew nothing of what was happening.

Drainville, himself facing two charges from the same incident, testified for the Crown last month that the deal was between him and Laverty.

Okell was arrested along with Drainville and Laverty June 6, 1974, but was later released. He testified Tuesday under the Canada Evidence Act, which protects a witness from incriminating himself.

After Simons closed his case on the possession aspect of the charge, Hutchison said he wished to call rebuttal evidence in the form of taped telephone calls.

These calls, he told Judge Montague Drake, would rebut Okell's testimony that Laverty wasn't involved.

Simons objected saying Hutchison should have called this evidence when he presented the Crown's case. He recalled that the court declined his request to recall Drainville as to whether he has pleaded guilty in Montreal to the speed charges.

Judge Drake, after an adjournment, ruled the Crown can call the tapes.

In a brief afternoon sitting of the court, Simons again objected to the tapes being played, noting the Crown has said none of the tapes purport to involve Okell.

Hutchison said it would be alleged the conversations were between people other than Okell but he couldn't say whether Okell was present when the calls were made.

Simons then said he wanted transcripts in advance. Hutchison said he could provide them by early evening.

Simons asked for an adjournment until the end of the month saying he had another court case away from Victoria today.

But Judge Drake said the case will lose its continuity and ruled the trial would continue today.

No Leadership In B.C.—Author

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The leaders of the three opposition parties in British Columbia are selfish and inept, says ex-reporter Paul Hurmuses, who now is a professional anti-socialist.

Hurmuses, who travelled 65 countries as a journalist, is currently visiting all corners of the province to sell his book warning of the dangers he sees in Premier Barrett's NDP government.

His biggest problem, he says, is convincing the press that he is not in the pay of the Social Credit party or any other political organization.

His credentials in his defence are that he is independently comfortable, if not wealthy, and he is critical of the free enterprise parties, without exception, although he sees some potential in the Socreds.

But leadership? There is none in British Columbia at the present time, he said in an interview.

The only able leader in the house is Premier Barrett and that doesn't count because he is on the wrong side, says Hurmuses (who pronounces his name her-MEWsus).

The others:

Liberal leader David Anderson: "He is mediocrity at its best."

Conservative leader Scott Wallace: "A simple case of self interest and unrequited ambition . . . the last of the Mohicans."

Social Credit Leader Bill Bennett: "In the legislature and in press conferences he is slow on his feet. He's no match for Barrett, unfortunately."

Hurmuses says the three opposition parties should get together under strong leadership this year in preparation for the next election or the NDP will win again "by default."

"A strong leader is the thing all British Columbians are looking for at this time. As a party, Social Credit is doing very well. Their machine is really rolling upcountry. They are opening offices everywhere and their membership is growing."

However, their performance in the legislature is inept, he said. The Socreds, along with the other two parties, have failed to do their homework on legislation and are not adequately representing the interests of the mass of free enterprise voters, he says.

A life-long anti-Socialist, he was dismayed when he semi-retired to his home province of British Columbia to find Barrett had brought in what Hurmuses calls the most militant and authoritarian socialist government on this continent. He says he was also dismayed by the Swedish connection, the close ties between the Barrett government and the socialist government of Sweden.

So he spent four weeks in Sweden this year and produced his first political book called: Sweden 1975, Trouble in the Welfare State Paradise, An Omen for British Columbia. The book is published by Balsam Press Ltd., which Hurmuses formed.

The company has a mail drop in the Bentall Building in Vancouver but in reality exists in the West Vancouver home of Hurmuses. He is handling his own publishing, advertising and distribution — and keeping all the profits.

He grossed $10,500 in the first printing June 18 and expects to gross about $11,400 in the second printing this month.

Still, travel and promotion are expensive and he could use additional funds.

"I am looking for financial help from anyone who is interested in what I am doing," he said.

11 Killed In Ferry Fire

TOULON, France (Reuter) — At least 11 people died and eight seriously burned Wednesday when fire engulfed a ferry boat carrying more than 200 people from Toulon to a nearby island resort in the Mediterranean.

Survivors said panic broke out on the 100-foot long Venus Des Iles II after an explosion in the engine room rocked the ship and flames spread over the ferry in a matter of minutes.

Local Prefect Jean-Marie Robert told a news conference later that 11 bodies had been recovered.

Cause, Cure Claim For Major Crippler

LONDON (AP) — A British medical specialist says he has found both the cause and a cure for rheumatoid arthritis, one of the world's most crippling diseases.

Dr. Roger Wyburn-Mason, a consultant physician at Ealing and Houndslow hospitals in West London, said in an interview that he is convinced the disease is the result of protozoal infections.

Protozoa are minute one-cell animals like the amoeba which live as parasites in the blood stream. Among the diseases they cause are malaria, sleeping sickness and dysentery.

He said rheumatoid arthritis could be treated with the drug Clotrimazole, which is already being used successfully to treat protozoal infections such as malaria. The drug could be administered orally to rheumatoid arthritis sufferers.

Dr. Wyburn-Mason read his findings to the ninth International Congress of Chemotherapy which ended in London last Saturday. His audience of medical specialists gave him a standing ovation.

"I have always thought that rheumatoid arthritis was a protozoal infection," he said. "People who suffer from this disease develop a substance in the blood known as the rheumatoid factor, or RF.

"In my examination of patients with protozoal diseases like infective hepatitis, bacterial inflammation of the heart and leprosy I found the RF factor present, although there was no arthritis involved," he said.

Hospitality Labor Turnover Woes

VANCOUVER (CP) — A province-wide study has been started by the B.C. hospitality industry to find out why there is a high labor turnover in B.C. hotels and restaurants.

Industry spokesmen say two reasons for the turnover are low wages and poor working conditions.

They hope the study, which could cost $50,000, will help to develop methods of attracting and holding qualified workers.

The cost will be shared evenly by Canada Manpower and the industry.

A hospitality manpower development board of B.C., including business, labor, federal and provincial government representatives, will oversee the study and be responsible for implementing recommendations.

"We're looking for permanent, long-range results in a program of attracting, training and retraining the best kind of people for this hospitality industry," board chairman John Levine said in an interview.

Levine said the industry should improve its image, wage scales and working conditions to attract a more efficient and stable working force.

A Canada Manpower official said the number of persons employed in B.C.'s hospitality industry isn't known, "but one estimate is about 68,000."

The official said Canada manpower has no figures on the industry's turnover percentage, but "we know it is a serious problem for hotels, motels and restaurants."

Lawyer Walks Out On Farris Inquiry

VANCOUVER (CP) — James Hogan, the lawyer representing two prisoners charged in connection with a hostage-taking incident at the B.C. Penitentiary, walked off of the Farris inquiry Wednesday after being told transcripts of in-camera evidence would not be made available to him.

Hogan told the commission that if the transcripts were unavailable to lawyers representing three prisoners charged with seizing 16 hostages June 9, then his continued presence at the inquiry would serve no purpose.

He made his request for the transcripts after crown prosecutor Jack Harris Tuesday was quoted as saying murder charges will be laid against one or more of the three prisoners charged with seizing hostages.

Harris said Wednesday that "if any charges were laid the charge would be non-capital murder." He said section 214 of the criminal code, dealing with capital murder, says that a person must cause a death "by his own act" in killing a peace officer or prison employee, to be guilty of capital murder.

Classification officer Mary Steinhauser was killed June 11 when she was shot by guards storming the area after the hostages attempted to overpower their captors.

Harris said any murder charges would probably be laid under section 212, under which a person may be found guilty of murder if he knowingly exposes another person to danger and thereby causes death.

The Inquiry, which reopened to the public Wednesday following in-camera evidence-taking from security staff at the B.C. Penitentiary, is investigating the hostage seizure and the events June 11 in which guards stormed the seizure area.

Hogan is representing prisoners Claire Wilson and Dwight Lucas who, with prisoner Andy Bruce have been charged with taking hostages and holding them at knifepoint.

He told the commission that "either capital or non-capital murder charges" would be laid against his clients and transcripts of seven days of in-camera evidence should be provided to him. If the transcripts are not provided, he said Wilson and Lucas will not testify before the inquiry.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new offer has been made in the dispute that threatens to tie up British Columbia's fishing industry.

Union spokesman Jack Nichol said Wednesday a new offer was made on salmon prices and the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union responded with a counter proposal to the B.C. Fisheries Association. Both sides now are studying their position.

Meanwhile, a provincial mediator, Fred Geddes, met with the shoreworkers section of the union Wednesday and Nichol said the shoreworkers made their position clear.

The UFAWU has threatened to go on strike Friday if there is no progress in negotiations.

★

BURNS LAKE (CP) — Burns Lake Native Logging Ltd., a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Burns Lake Native Development Corp., has started operations 15 miles north of Burns Lake in the Cariboo area 150 miles northwest of Prince George.

The 16 status and non-status Indians employed by the company are working to become heavy equipment owner-operators.

The company has a contract to supply 30,000 units of wood to the Babine Forest Products sawmill complex.

★

LANGLEY (CP) — No injuries were reported Wednesday when 23 cars of a westbound 91-unit CP Rail coal train were derailed about five miles east of here.

A company spokesman said the CNR main line would be closed indefinitely.

All passenger trains were being rerouted from New Westminster through Mission, the spokesman said.

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Russel Quocksister, 26, was remanded without plea to Friday when he appeared in court Wednesday charged with issuing a threat of death and with possession of a weapon dangerous to the public peace.

Quocksister was charged after police were called to the Indian reserve near here Tuesday. A woman had told police a man with a rifle had threatened to kill her.

An RCMP spokesman said that a man had barricaded himself in a house and came out after a three-hour siege when police fired three tear gas canisters into the house.

Several rifles in the house were seized and no one was injured in the incident.

Forest Talks Public? Unions Can't Agree

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor unions involved in current mediated talks on the B.C. forest industry dispute are split on the question of whether future talks should be public hearings or whether they should continue in private.

Jack Munro, regional president of the International Woodworkers of America representing 29,000 coastal woodworkers and 6,000 southern interior workers, said the union is not opposed to a public hearing.

Art Gruntman, president of the Canadian Paperworkers Union, said Wednesday that his union is opposed to a public hearing.

"Historically the way we have operated has always been to keep a low profile," said Gruntman.

'Looking For a Fall Guy'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lower Mainland mayors said Wednesday that Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson's comments on the B.C. housing crisis Tuesday did not tell the full story.

Ron Andrews, mayor of North Vancouver district, said Nicolson was "just looking for a fall guy" when he said part of the problem with housing in the Lower Mainland stemmed from the negative opinions he said councils have had toward multi-family housing.

Mayor Art Phillips of Vancouver said he did not think the solution to the housing crisis lies in turning single family neighborhoods into multi-unit areas.

"The main problem is lack of money and both the federal and provincial governments have run out of money," said Phillips who noted that at least one housing development here has been dumped because senior governments said they have no money.

Gil Blair, mayor of Richmond, said he agreed with Andrews and Phillips and added that such policies as the rent freeze are producing the crisis because "they've stopped any rental development."

Surrey's Mayor Bill Vander Zalm said Provincial governments and developers co-operate to build units that last no longer than the length of the mortgage and are no more than "instant slums." He said he did not want to vote for apartments that bring more problems.

500,000 Homeless

RAWALPINDI (AFP) — More than half a million people have lost their homes in monsoon flooding in Pakistan's Punjab province in the last few days, government officials said. They said cattle and crops also have been lost in the 1,730-square-mile flooded area, where the waters of the Ravi and Chenab rivers are reported to be going down. Only 11 persons so far have been reported to have died in the floods.

Alexander: 'Talented And Intelligent'—Reid

"A couple of years ago, when I first saw Kevin Alexander play, I wasn't impressed. Now, I would have to say that he's got to be the most talented, and also the most intelligent athlete I've worked with."

Kevin Alexander, of course is the scoring whiz of junior lacrosse and who, in four seasons, has never ranked worse than first in any league in which he has participated. This is a pretty fancy record for a 19-year old and Reid was explaining that he comes by his records honestly. Such as Tuesday night at Esquimalt when he rammmed in six goals and had five assists for an 11-point evening as McDonalds outclassed Coquitlam 28-15. It was an impressive display and it's unfortunate more weren't there to see it.

That, for Alexander, made it 92 goals this season, a record compared to his total of 89 last year, and Reid also believes the slender sniper is on his way to a new Canadian mark as well.

This has to be checked out, he explained, but Reid thinks the junior record is 190 points in the East and as Kevin now has 162 with six games to play he stands an excellent chance of surpassing that standard. And, basing the projection on his season's average of seven points a game, it is not unreasonable to suggest that he can achieve the double super total of 100 goals and 200 points.

It is not only that he is perhaps the best shooter lacrosse has produced here in latter years. "it is because of his intelligence," said Reid.

Keeps Book on Checkers

"He keeps a mental book on all the players, not only the first stringers, but the third-string players as well. He watches them carefully, knows how they check and what they will do in a certain situation; and this undoubtedly has helped him."

Reid also considers that Alexander is a vastly improved team player this season, even if the team hasn't been living up to expectations, because "he's more mature and he's not forcing himself when things are going bad."

"I am amazed, too, how much abuse he takes," Reid added, "and the fact that he doesn't flinch as others sometimes do perhaps is the reason some penalties aren't called when he is checked. So he's been a good example to the team in more ways than one."

And as for the team, Reid feels, probably for good reason, that the old injury bugaboo has hurt more than enough. "We've just had a terrible injury year," he allowed, "and maybe we've just lost another. We fear Charlie Randle has a broken bone in his shoulder." Randle was injured when hit with a stick in the first period Tuesday.

"And that will make it nine for the season in the broken-bone category," he added. Still on the inactive list are Steve Hepburn, who suffered a double jaw fracture and Phil Ashbee, out for the year with a broken leg. Hepburn may be back, however, and soon. "He has been working out, wants to play, and may this weekend," said Reid. "To show how much we missed him is the fact that he was still fourth in the scoring race until last night."

Thievery in Open Court

Then there has been the problem of a leaky defence — "it hasn't been that good," Reid admitted, plus two rookie goalkeepers and one salient fact that may have been overlooked. Size. "Players on the other teams are bigger than us."

Reid wasn't complaining. It's just turned out that way. "Yes, we may be small," he said. And the team to beat with Burnaby out in front and moving away from the field? "We haven't been beaten that badly by them — "one, two or three goals since early in the year" — but New Westminster, they could be rough.

"They are big and have good goalkeeping," he declared, and they now have that ex-Coquitlam player Gary Holt in that disputed transfer. "He'll help New Westminster, particularly on the power play," said Reid. "Because before last night he was tied for fourth in the scoring."

Reid also paid tribute to Jim Poelzer, the Salmonbellies' goalkeeper. "He's very good, is an offensive threat and has scored three or four goals." Then, because of Poelzer, his thoughts drifted back to Alexander.

"You know," he said, "he's just a great stick checker and so quick, just like a rapier. One night when Poelzer rushed down the floor, Alexander checked him and it was a thing of beauty.

"He reached up, took the ball right out of Poelzer's stick and raced down the floor. And, for a few seconds, Poelzer didn't even know the ball was gone.

"Sometimes, he's just amazing." With which all should agree.

Victoria Bates, looking ahead to defending the British Columbia senior men's softball championship in less than three weeks, raised their stock Wednesday by sweeping a pair of exhibition games from the touring New Zealand national team.

Ruthowsky and Kern both fired two-hit shutouts. Burrows supplied the winning edge by accounting for the only three hits Victoria managed off New Zealand's exceptionally-strong pitching.

Burrows hit an "inside-the-park" home run in the second inning to win the opener, then singled sharply to set up the winner in the seventh inning of the nightcap.

On both of Burrows' run-producing hits, it must be admitted, Bates benefitted from the bounce of the ball.

On his homer, the only hit off losing pitcher Kevin Herlihy, Burrows' drive to right-centre field rebounded sharply off the outfield fence. By time pursuing fielders chased down the ball, the alert Burrows was rounding third and easily beat the relay from the outfield.

In the second game, Burrows singled crisply to centre fielder Bill Davis. The New Zealand outfielder inadvertantly kicked the ball in trying to scoop it up and the two-base error enabled Burrows to romp all the way to third. With only one out, he scored easily on Bob Holness' sacrifice fly to left field.

Burrows also singled in the second inning to account for the only other hit off youthful Owen Walford.

But for the bounces that aided Burrows, the teams might have played from Wednesday to Doomsday without scoring. The pitchers dominated the night. In addition to holding batters to a mere seven hits, the hurlers accounted for 41 strikeouts — 12 by Kern, 11 by Herlihy and nine each by Ruthowsky and Walford.

"It was the quickest pitching we've seen this year," said Victoria outfielder Ken Bate.

"Yes," added manager Joe Patterson, "and Herlihy and Walford also went to the changeups ... That's something we haven't had thrown too often at us this year."

Herlihy set a strikeout record in the 1972 world championships with 82 in the Manila tournament. New Zealand finished third, behind the U.S. and the winning Richmond Hill team from Canada.

The Kiwis came into Victoria with a 25-8-9 won-lost-tied record after a 43-game tour of the U.S. (one game was washed out after two innings because of rain). New Zealand winds up its eight-game Canadian tour with six games in Vancouver.

Coach Pleased But Ace Missing

Butch Buckholz brought the Hawaii Leis to Victoria Wednesday night and discussed tonight's World Team Tennis match at Memorial Arena with some jubilation, some dejection and a slight amount of apprehension.

Releasing the good news first, the playing-coach of the Leis praised his players for their efforts in Honolulu the previous night, when the Leis finally took the measure of Los Angeles Strings, the same team they will be playing tonight, starting at 8.

After losing their first two contests with the Strings this season, the Leis turned the tables Tuesday, chalking up a 22-20 victory.

Butch's unhappiness stemmed from the absence of big John Newcombe, the three-time Wimbledon singles champion who is the big gun and color guy of the Hawaii squad.

Planning to end a long layoff forced by a knee injury, the Australian ace was expecting to play in Honolulu and Victoria.

"John hit a few shots in Honolulu and it was apparent he wasn't quite ready to play," said Buckholz, "so he just sat on the bench during our matches.

"John will try it again in Annaheim Friday night and he will definitely play in Victoria next Monday and Tuesday."

Hawaii Leis' coach Butch Buckholz here tonight.

In those two nights the Leis will complete their three-match series as Victoria's home team in this season's schedule, meeting Cleveland and San Diego.

Regretting that news of Newcombe's absence from the team was not received in Victoria until Wednesday afternoon, Buckholz was also concerned over the condition of Australian Margaret Court, who delayed her departure from Honolulu to receive treatment for a back problem.

"There's nothing serious," said Butch. "Margaret will be here Thursday afternoon and she will be playing against the Strings."

World Team Tennis competition, consisting of six-game contests in women's doubles, men's singles, men's doubles, women's singles and mixed doubles, usually take about two and one-half hours.

Buckholz will be in the Hawaii lineup tonight along with Mrs. Court, Helen Gourlay, Kathy Kuykendall and doubles ace Owen Davidson.

Expected to fire the shots for Los Angeles on the carpet-like playing surface that arrived in Victoria Wednesday are Rosie Casals, Betty Ann Stuart, Ross Case, Geoff Masters and Mike Machette, who is stepping in for Bob Lutz, currently sidelined with a back injury.

Good Try By U.S.

SASKATOON — The United States women's national volleyball team surprised the Soviet Union before bowing Wednesday in five sets.

The Americans won the first and third games but were overwhelmed in the others by steady defensive play and a diverse attack. Set scores were 9-15, 15-3, 14-16, 15-3, 15-8.

The victory for the Soviets boosted their record on the seven-city tour of Canada to four wins and one loss and left them close behind the Japanese, who are undefeated in four matches.

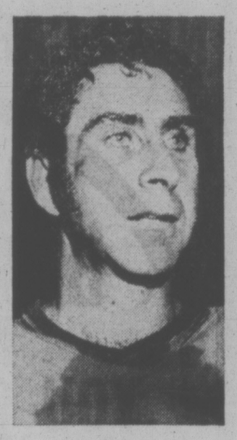
The Japanese and Canadian teams, both idle Wednesday, will play Friday in Victoria at the McKinnon Building.

Although the Canadians are winless in four matches and trail the Americans who have won one of five, they are the only team to even come close to winning a game from the world champion Japanese.

In the opening round of the tour in Montreal, the Canadians lost 15-13, 15-8, 15-3.

The series concludes Saturda yin Vancouver with Canada playing the U.S. and the Soviet Union meeting Japan.

Irish Romp; Skip Outpoints Paul



PAUL PARNELL

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

Paul Parnell named Skip Chapman prior to Wednesday night's game at Memorial Arena as the goalie who has troubled him most in his long, fabulous Western Lacrosse Association career.

Little did the all-time WLA scoring leader realize how prophetic his selection would be. Chapman not only shut out Parnell, in the two periods he played, but outscored him as he sparked the Victoria Shamrocks to a 17-5 win over the New Westminster Salmonbellies before 1,234 fans.

Chapman had four assists in the first two periods while Parnell failed to make the scoresheet as the Irish led 9-1 after the first period and 16-2 after the second.

Parnell, who topped both clubs with 13 shots, did score twice in the third but not against Chapman.

On the way to the finest game of his WLA career, Chapman removed himself in favor of George Grover after the second period.

"He came to me and suggested George go in for the final period," said Victoria coach Archie Browning after the game." George had been fighting the ball the last couple of games and Skip thought he could use the work.

"I was thinking the same thing, that George needed the work to get his confidence back, but I wasn't about to suggest it to a goalie who had allowed just two goals for two periods."

Chapman's wish to help his teammate was fulfilled. With a huge lead, Grover played well in the final period in limiting the Salmonbellies to three goals.

The win moved the Shamrocks into a second-place tie with Vancouver Burrards and kept their first-place hopes alive.

The Irish can still finish first if they win their final two schedule games and the leading Salmonbellies lose thedr remaining game tonight against the visiting Nanaimo Timbermen.

Parnell's appearance Wednesday was his last regular-season- WLA game in Victoria. He has announced he will retire after this season.

"At 37, it's tough to get up in the morning and go to work after a game the night before," he said.

While he may feel the aches and pains more than when he broke into the league in 1960 with Victoria, he still is one of the league's top shooters.

He surpassed the 900-goal barrier earlier this season and has 50 goals and 98 points going into tonight's contest. That points total is also fourth best in the league.

And against Victoria Wednesday, he was easily the top performer for the listless Salmonbellies whose best lacrosse came in the final period with the game well out of reach.

Mike Beaulac led the Victoria attack with four goals and two assists while Jim Browne had three goals. Ron MacNeil and Dave Thomson each scored twice with singles coming from Charn Dhillon, Jerry Kustaski, Tom Somner, Pete Rushton and Ranjit and Nirmal Dillon.

Nirmal also had two assists and the three points gave him a career total of 600 points.

Gil Carmichael Wins Shootoffs

Carmichael bested Californian Frank Vidauri 17-15 in the shootoff last weekend after both had blasted 93 of 100 clay pigeons in the regular competition.

The Victorian captures second place in the singles championship when he out-duelled K. A. Nieland of Alaska, 123-122, after both gunners hit 199 of 200 birds in regular competition.

Times Tourney Semi-Finals Have an International Flavor

THE TENNIS SCENE

By Max Low

International — that's truly the word for the field left in the women's singles event in the Second Annual Victoria Times Public Parks Tennis Tournament.

They're down to the last four in the women's event and one-half of the semi-final line-up pits a player born in the United States against a true-blue Canadian. In the other side a competitor who has only been out from Hungary just over three months meets a woman who was born in Barbados in the West Indies.

The semi-finalists are:

SUSI MILES — Born in Minnesota and raised in California, the petite American emigrated to Canada six years ago and hopes to become a Canadian citizen in about a month's time. Susi, who played quite a bit while at high school and at university for two years in California, is making a return to both tennis and studying after a layoff in both of about eight years. She hopes to attend the University of Victoria in the fall.

CAROL JONES — Born in Nelson, she excelled at badminton last season and picked up several titles in women's doubles and mixed doubles. "Badminton's my game, really," says Carol, who plays for the Esquimalt Club. A Vancouver Island junior golfer in 1972, she describes herself as a "good all-rounder in sport — but never in tennis."

ELVIRA KAPUS — Born in a little town 200 kilometres from Budapest, she has been playing tennis for 15 years since she was 10 years old. Husband Geza Kapus has lived in Canada for 19 years and met his bride when he returned to his native Hungary on holiday in 1972. They wrote to each other and Elvira came to Canada to get married three months ago. She can't speak English yet, but Geza says "she knows the rules and she can hit the ball." Elvira was provincial tegnis champion in Hungary.

PEGGY GLEGG — Born in Barbados, she has played tennis ever since she was at school and has competed in several tournaments. Peggy and husband Alastair Glegg, a teacher at Glenlyon School, have travelled considerably and lived for some time in Rhodesia and South Africa. She entered the Times tournament, says Peggy, for fun and "to meet some people."

It's Susi versus Carol and Elvira against Peggy in the semi-finals, which will be best-of-three-set contests instead of the one pro set to nine played in the early rounds. But those matches will not be scheduled for a week or so to give time for the men's event, which has a larger entry, to catch up.

With the exception of one match, which wasn't able to be played on time, the men's field has reached the last 16 and cards are going out today informing players of fourth-round contests which must be played and results back into the Times by 5 p.m. Monday, Aug. 4.

Results and the men's fourth-round draw:

Stamp Rookie Sacked

REGINA (CP) — It already has been a long season for Joe Pisarcik.

The promising Calgary Stampeder quarterback was the primary target Wednesday night as Saskatchewan Roughriders turned in a brilliant defensive display and trounced the Stampeders 20-2 in the opening game of the Western Football Conference season.

The second game is tonight when Winnipeg Blue Bombers meet British Columbia Lions in Winnipeg.

Pisarcik was sacked several times by the hard-charging front four, which played so well it drew attention from the anticipated battle between the Stampeders and their former team-mate, linebacker Roger Goree.

Asked if Goree had played well after joining the club during the weekend, head coach John Payne admitted he didn't know.

Pisarcik was flattened by defensive end Tim Roth on a pass attempt late in the second quarter. He returned in the last half but evidently was shaky. It was the second battering in two games for Pisarcik, who had his back x-rayed after Dave Fennell of Edmonton thumped him in an exhibition game.

Pisarcik's individual statistics were adequate—12 completions in 17 attempts for 123 yards— but he failed to generate a consistent attack. Calgary coach Jim Wood admitted his disappointment and said Pisarcik and replacement Karl Douglas both missed open men with pass attempts..

Calgary split its four preseason games and lost to Montreal and Edmonton by one point each after opening early leads.

Cyril McFall got singles on wide field goal attempts for both Calgary points. After that, Calgary got no closer than a weak third-down gamble that failed in Saskatchewan territory.

"Maybe we took the wind out of Calgary with our play on that gamble," said Payne, who was pleased with his team's consistency.

George Reed and Rhett Dawson scored Saskatchewan's touchdowns, Reed on a one-yard plunge and Dawson on an 18-yard flip from Ron Lancaster. Reed now has 127 touchdowns as a professional, giving him sole possession of a record he shared at 126 with Jim Brown, former ace running back with Cleveland Browns of the National Football League.

Alouette Offense Impresses

HAMILTON (CP) — Montreal Alouettes' offensive stars were at their best in Wednesday night's Eastern Football Conference season opener but coach Marv Levy would have liked a bigger point spread.

The defending Grey Cup champions, led by split end Johnny Rodgers, fullback Steve Ferrughelli and quarterback Jimmy Jones, beat the Ticats 33-23 before a crowd of 23,150.

The EFC's other two teams get into action tonight when Ottawa Rough Riders visit Toronto Argonauts

"We're not going to win if we don't play better defence," Levy complained. "Particularly when we have someone on the ropes."

The Als defence held the Ticats to only 87 yards rushing but rookie quarterback Jim McMillan led the Hamilton passing attack to a total gain of 146 yards and two touchdowns.

Levy was particularly annoyed about his punting team which allowed the Ticats to block one Dave Lewis kick and Hamilton linebacker Tony Perea recovered the loose ball in the Montreal end zone for a touchdown.

Optimists Eye Babe Ruth Title

Saanich Evening Optimists moved within one win of the B.C. Babe Ruth 14- and 15-year-old baseball championship Wednesday at Sanscha Park.

Optimists used three hits and a walk to score twice in the 10th inning and beat Coquitlam 5-3 in a winners' bracket game that was abandoned Tuesday with the score tied 3-3 after nine innings.

Optimists now meet Vancouver Inter-Community in the final. Should Optimists win tonight's game at 6 p.m., they would take the title. If they lose, a second game will be played Friday.

Inter-Community advanced to the championship final Wednesday by edging Coquitlam 1-0 in the losers' bracket final.

Pat Takes Over

Victoria Cougars' owner-coach Pat Ginnell has purchased complete control of the Western Canada Hockey League's affiliate team in Nanaimo.

Ginnell announced Wednesday that he has purchased the remaining outstanding shares, held by former partners Cliff and Larry McNabb, in Nanaimo Clippers of the B.C. Junior League.

The Clippers, who finished last in the Coastal Division last season but reached the divisional final before being eliminated from the playoffs, will move into a new 3,000-seat arena in Nanaimo this year.

Ginnell said he "is looking" for a manager-coach to take over the Nanaimo operation. He expects to fill the post by the end of next month.

Stingers Get Aubry

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Stingers, who begin play in the World Hockey Association this year, have purchased reserve goalie Serge Aubry from Quebec Nordiques.

Aubrey played behind regular goalie Richard Brodeur in his three seasons with Quebec.

How Teasers Work

The "Super Teasers" cause bait to turn in a slow, looping circle. "Regular" and large teasers roll the bait in fast, tight, counter-clockwise turns. These differences are important, especially when fishing without flashers or dodgers. The faster-turning strip teasers work well at the slow speeds for chinooks. For faster trolling, the "Supers" really work well.

Old Timer Sidelined; City Shooter Advances

BISLEY, England (CP) — A veteran Canadian marksman, who returned to the National Rifle Association shoot here for the first time since 1905, has been put out of action by a pulled muscle, while a Victoria shooter advanced in Wednesday's competition.

Jim Davidson, 87, of West Vancouver, said: "I shot for King Edward's Prize and I was looking forward to having a try at his great-granddaughter's prize, but it can't be this year."

A native of the Liverpool area, he was a shipyard worker on Merseyside before he moved to Canada early this century.

Davidson, now resting in bed in the Canadian pavilion in this Surrey town, pulled a back muscle when he slipped on stairs a few days ago.

He had travelled 6,000 miles — his first trip to Britain in 70 years — to shoot for the Queen's Prize.

More than 1,200 competitors from Britain and the Commonwealth are participating this year in the annual two-week Bisley shoot.

Doctors ruled that Davidson could sit in the pavilion and watch but he couldn't compete.

King Edward VII was on the throne when Davidson last shot at Bisley, before emigrating to Canada.

"I've not been able to get to England for the last 70 years, but I have been shooting regultrly in Canada and I'll be back to have another try," he said.

In the St. George's first-stage competition, fired at 300 yards, seven Canadians made scores of 70 or better out of a possible 75 to advance to the second stage today.

They are Dugas, Gaudet, Joe Gibault of Victoria and Ralph La Boyne, Vancouver, all at 72; Barwise at 71, and Ron Clark, Burlington, Ont., and Phillips, both 70.

HURDLES MARK TIED

PARIS (AP) — Guy Drut of France equalled the world record for the 110-metre hurdles, covering the distance in 13.1 seconds at an outdoor meet.

Australian Cricketers Staggered

MANCHESTER, England (Reuter) — Lancashire's fast-medium bowlers Peter Lee and Peter Lever sent the Australian cricketers staggering to 37 for five on the opening day of their match Wednesday.

The surprises started quickly after the Australians had dismissed Lancashire for a mediocre total of 189. Lever dismissed Bruce Laird and Ross Edwards in his first over. Lee removed Ian Chappell, and later dismissed his brother Greg and night watchman Ashley Mallett with successive balls.

Lee's spell with the new ball yielded figures of five overs, two maidens, 13 runs and three wickets, and Lever had 5-1-22-2.

Tanana Replaces Ryan

That California Angels pitcher who is leading the major leagues in strikeouts and has won eight of his last nine decisions is Frank Tanana.

That other California pitcher who watched Wednesday night's Angles game from the bullpen is Nolan Ryan.

Strange as the role reversal may seem, young Tanana is the pitcher burning up the American League while Ryan languishes with eight consecutive losses.

"He's getting more mature all the time," Angles manager Dick Williams said after the 22-year-old left-hander blanked Baltimore Orioles 1-0 on six singles Wednesday night.

Tanana, 9-5, had eight strikeouts against the Orioles. He raised his major league-leading total to 159 in 143 1-3 innings and avenged a 1-0 loss to the Orioles and Jim Palmer on May 16.

Tanana now leads Ryan by seven strikeouts in 17 2-3 fewer innings. Joe Lahoud gave Tanana all the support he needed with an RBI single in the first inning.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland A's beat Detroit Tigers 3-0, Boston Red Sox defeated Minnesota Twins 4-2, Kansas City Royals beat Milwaukee 4-1 and Texas Rangers beat Cleveland Indians 9-8 in 13 innings while the Yankees' game at Chicago was rained out.

Victoria Pair Wins in Bowling

Jean Nichols and Eileen Allardyce of Victoria Lawn Bowling club edged Marie Sage and Edith Duffle of Burnside 13-11 Wednesday to win the Silver Tray scotch doubles lawn bowling title at the Oak Bay Club.

Ethel McFarlane and Flo Carpetner of Lake Hill won the "B" final with a 26-6 triumph over Gwen Bennett and Hilda Douglas of Vic West.

In competition for the Ashford Trophy on the weekend, Vilsie Wright, Bill Cruickshank and Jim Allen won the championship with a 22-9 victory over Jennie and Bert Bennett and Paul Jenkins in an all Vic West final at the Burnside Club.

Sydney Thomson Nine Shots Back

CHILLIWACK (CP) — Patti Murray of Vernon fired a one-over-par 75 to take a commanding four-shot lead Wednesday after the first round of the British Columbia junior girls golf championship.

Miss Murray, runnerup to Sydney Thomson of Victoria last year, made the turn two under par, but slipped to a 40 on the back nine at the Chilliwack Golf and Country Club course.

Miss Thomson is nine shots behind the leader after an opening-round 84. She won the Pacific Northwest Golf Association junior girls title recently in Seattle.

Paula Phillips of Vancouver was second after 18 holes of the 36-hole event. The Vancouver city and district junior girls champion opened with a five-over-par 79.

Jill Badger of North Vancouver was third with an 81 and Debbie Harris of North Vancouver was fourth at 83.

The final 18 holes will be played today. A field of 34 girls between the ages of 13 and 18 were entered.

Montreal Boxla Jinx Continues

Montreal Quebecois failed again Wednesday to end their National Lacrosse League jinx in Philadelphia against the Wings.

The Quebecois lost their eighth straight game over two years in Philadelphia, dropping a 14-12 decision.

Whalers Sweep

Juan de Fuca Whalers edged Centennial Webb and Trace 10-8 Wednesday at Centennial to complete a sweep of their best-of-three Island Intermediate "B" Lacrosse League semi-final.

Lloyd Watson led the Whalers with four goals while Ken Murray had two. Tom Lothian, Gerry Vonk, Al Webb and Jim Baynas added singles.

Whalers will meet Victoria in the final but a date has yet to be determined.

Richmond Posts Overtime Win

COQUITLAM (CP) — Richmond Roadrunners defeated Coquitlam J-Hawks 13-12 in overtime Wednesday in a Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League game.

Mike Sparks Gorge

Mike Squire's hitting sparked Gorge Hotel to a 10 to 2 win over Greaves Movers in a Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League game Wednesday at Lambrick Park.

Squire slammed three hits, including a two-run home run in the fourth inning, as Gorge moved into a first-place tie with Farmer-Construction.

Winning pitcher Bob Mabee went the distance and allowed only six hits, giving up single runs in the third and fourth innings.

Canadian Third

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Nancy Garapick of Halifax won a bronze medal in the 100-metre backstroke of the world aquatic championships Wednesday night and then immediately looked ahead to a rematch with East Germany in the 200-metre backstroke.

The tiny, 13-year-old blonde was unable to keep up to the pace set by gold medallist Ulrike Richter on her left and silver medalist Birgit Treiber on her right.

Miss Richter finished in 1:03.30, Miss Treiber in 1:04.34, and Miss Garapick in 1:04.73. Wendy Cook of Vancouver was fourth in 1:06.06.

While Canada was celebrating its first medal, the United States was jubilant over its relay world record and a breakthrough of sorts against the powerful East German girls.

But the most surprising race the night was the women's 200-metre freestyle won by Shirley Babashoff of Fountain Valley, Calif. She trailed world record holder Kornelia Ender by almost 10 feet with less than 40 metres remaining but a tremendous kick pushed her ahead of the East German girl at the finish. Miss Babashoff finished in 2:02.50, Miss Ender in 2:02.64.

East Germany picked up another gold medal in the women's 100-metre breaststroke with Hannelore Anke winning and Andras Hargitay gave Hungary a gold medal by winning the men's 400-metre individual medley.

VREDESTEIN RADIAL
MANY TRY TO BUILD A TIRE AS PERFECT AS TIME AND MONEY PERMIT. FEW SUCCEED AS WELL AS VREDESTEIN.

What else? A tremendous advantage in mileage. Long, long mileage. Up to 40,000 miles and more. That's because the belts on a Vredestein radial hold the tread to the road in a way that minimizes 'scrubbing' action. So the tread runs cooler and lasts longer. Its lower rolling resistance gives you better fuel economy, too. As much as 12% more at highway speeds.

Dawdling Child Not Hungry

NUTRITION BUYLINE

My 3 year old dawdles over his meal and doesn't each much. How can I get him to eat?

A:

Dawdling is a sign that the child is just not hungry, so don't worry. A child will always eat when he is hungry.

Often a child's stomach may be full of milk. If you suspect this is so, hold the milk back until most of the meal is eaten. Serve small portions, and give second helpings on request. Do not make your child clean up the plate. This is using food to punish and it will result in a bad attitude towards food, reinforced through the upset of mother and child created during the process. Be patient!

Q:

Do foods such as apples, oranges or potatoes lose any vitamins during storage?

A:

Vitamin C is the chief vitamin lost. The amount oxidized depends on the storage conditions: temperature, humidity and duration. When stored properly, Vitamin C content decreases as follows:

Apples:
6 months — ½ Vit. C left
9 months — 0 Vit. C left

Oranges:
—depends mostly on variety and time picked, as little is lost in storage. e.g. 2-3 months — 10 per cent lost.

Potatoes:
6 months — less than one-third left.

At room temperature losses would be greater and quicker.

Apples:

temp.	humidity
1-2 C	85-90 per cent
8-15 C	85-90 per cent
3-5 C	85-90 per cent

Q:

What's the difference between cane and beet sugar?

A:

There is no difference whatsoever in the final products of the refining processes. Both are 99.9 per cent sucrose. Beet sugar is produced in much the same way as cane sugar; however, beet molasses, unlike cane sugar molasses, is too bitter for human consumption.

PRESSED CHICKEN DISH TONIC FOR SICK FRIEND

By MARY MOORE

I have a sick friend. His appetite is nil. I tried to think of something tempting to take and could not shake the idea of pressed chicken. So I made it, took it and he enjoyed it.

This is such a good and appropriate summer dish I thought my healthy reader friends would welcome it too.

JELLIED CHICKEN LOAF
(serves 6)

3 to 3½-lb. chicken
¼ onion, chopped
1 bay leaf
2 tsp. salt
4 tsp. plain gelatine
¼ cup cold water

Put the chicken in a pot, add the onion, bay leaf and salt and just enough water to cover three-quarters of it — about 3½ cups. Simmer covered until meat falls from bones. Remove bird to utility tray. Remove and discard skin and bones. Strain broth. Chill until set (in freezer or overnight). Skim off ALL fat. Boil broth down until it measures exactly 2 cups. Soak gelatine in cold water. Stir into hot broth until dissolved.

Cut enough chicken meat (using mostly white) into 1½" pieces. You should have 3 cups packed.

Pour ¼" of gelatine liquid into a 5 or 6-cup mould. Arrange one layer of chicken pieces close together in it. Chill until set. Add remaining chicken pieces and pour all remaining gelatine liquid over. Pack it down well with the bowl of a large berry spoon, to be sure liquid flows right through and to smooth top. Chill until firmly set.

Lovely on a salad plate with Potato Salad and sliced tomato and cucumbers and spiced crabapples.

NOTE: Write to Mary Moore, 32 Churchill Ave., Hamilton, Ont., enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents for each specified recipe.

BEAN SALAD

1 lb. fresh green beans
2-3 tablespoons olive oil
Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste
3 hard-cooked eggs

Trim ends of beans. Cook in boiling salted water until just tender; about 6-9 minutes. Drain and cool to room temperature. Add oil to coat beans. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Grate two eggs finely. Add to beans and toss lightly to mix well. Garnish with remaining egg cut in wedges or slices.

Special Salad With Wine

Recently, Chef Fred Adler at the Marina City Club in Los Angeles created an interesting salad for a special wine-tasting event. The event brought together prominent restaurant writers to select wines to complement a meal of hard-to-choose-wine-for foods.

Chef Adler's creation is an Avocado Stuffed with Swedish Beets and Herring Salad. An unusual combination of piquant and sweet tastes — beets, pickled herring, apple, lemon juice, sour cream, dill weed and clove powder — is heaped into avocado half-shells. The half-shell serves as a perfect base for this salad because of its complementary mild, delicate flavor and creamy smooth texture.

The avocado salad was a hit with the restaurant writers, now turned wine connoisseurs. Choosing between four wines they recommended serving a chilled Beaujolais or Sauvignon Blanc with the salad.

The salad could be easily prepared at home and would be nice served at your next dinner party. It can be made ahead of time and refrigerated — just brush the avocados with lemon juice to prevent them from darkening.

AVOCADO STUFFED WITH SWEDISH BEETS AND HERRING SALAD

Filling:
1 (8¼-oz.) can diced beets, drained
⅓ cup pickled herring, drained and diced
⅛ teaspoon dried dill weed
4 avocados, halved and peeled

Garnish:
1 head butter lettuce
1 lemon cut in 8 wedges
1 apple, peeled and diced

Juice of ¼ lemon
¼ cup sour cream
1 pinch clove powder
8 sprigs of water cress
8 radishes

Mix the filling ingredients together. Mound beet and herring filling into avocado half-shells. Serve on a bed of lettuce, surrounding each one with sprigs of water cress, a radish and a wedge of lemon. Garnish with additional sour cream if desired. Serves 8.

Mushroom Halibut Steaks

Salt
Monosodium glutamate
1 can (20 oz.) or 2 cans (10 oz. each) cream of mushroom soup
½ cup crushed sesame crackers or wheat thins
2 tablespoons melted butter

Place halibut steaks in a shallow buttered baking dish and season with salt and monosodium glutamate. Pour soup over. Mix crumbs with melted butter and sprinkle on top. Bake at 450 degrees F. for 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

dear abby

Just a Showpiece

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old wife and mother of two. I am a good-looking girl with a nice figure. My problem is my husband. He wants me to wear sexy clothes to show off what I've got. He buys most of my clothes, which are all midriffs, tight, clingy sweaters, low-cut necks, very mini skirts and tight hip-huggers.

When I say I want to take something back because it is too revealing, he has a fit.

We had a big fight about his wanting me to go bra-less. I just don't like that look, but he says HE likes it and I should dress to please him.

I try to tell him that it gives other guys the impression that I am on the make, but he says if I set them straight, they will leave me alone.

I hate to displease him, but it's getting so we fight about this more and more.

Am I wrong? Or is he? And how do I handle it?

WANTS TO BE ME

DEAR WANTS: He's wrong. And you can handle it by telling him that you will dress to please him in the privacy of your home, but you absolutely refuse to show more in public than YOU consider good taste. And stick to your guns. He is wrong, wrong, wrong!

DEAR ABBY: I am dating a very nice widower. He's taken me to dinner and the movies, but none of my friends or family have met him.

There is going to be a big wedding in my family, and I want him to escort me. His wife died three years ago, and he hasn't dated much, so he is still wearing his wedding band. He is raising three teenagers, which is probably why he hasn't taken his wedding band off yet.

I'd like him to remove his wedding band when he escorts me, but I don't know how to approach him about it. I don't want my friends and family to think that I am dating a married man or that I am secretly married to him.

I considered buying him a large, inexpensive ring to hide the band for that night in case he can't get it off. Any suggestions?

PARENT WITHOUT PARTNER

DEAR PARENT: Don't ask him to remove his wedding band. And don't ask him to "hide" it. When conversing with family and friends, you can subtly let them know that he is a widower.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me some of the most common clues to look for if I already suspect (which I do) that my wife is meeting another man somewhere during the day?

I am not an overly suspicious man, so you will not be generating trouble where none exists.

In this case, simply asking her will not help.—SUSPICIOUS

DEAR SUSPICIOUS: If a woman gets all dressed up to go "shopping," comes home slightly late and out of breath, has no packages and is wearing her pantyhose inside out, I'd wonder where she'd been.

Mexican Cuisine Among Choicest

Craig Clairborne

MEXICO CITY — Maria Quijano stirred a dish of cubed cactus leaves and eggs. "My son," she said, "offered to furnish me with cactus at five pesos a kilo this morning, but I refused. It is cheaper to buy it in the market."

Mrs. Quijano, who has a keen reputation as a hostess in the Mexican capital, was putting the finishing touches on a stuffed fish casserole, one of a series of dishes representative of regional dishes served in her home. The fish dish was a specialty of San Luis Potosi.

The others would include an escabeche of oysters that had been in her family for generations; a creamed vegetable dish made with pinto beans and by far the best baked bean dish we've ever sampled anywhere; and a rich, creamy dessert made with a puree of pecans. Most of the dishes would be representative of Sonora, her birthplace in Northern Mexico, which borders on Arizona.

"In Sonora a long time ago corn was relatively scarce. The tortillas there, for example, were made of wheat. My grandfather, who was Governor, grew his own corn so his table could be provided with corn tortillas and tamales."

We were amused and enlightened to learn that the traditional food of Mexico — which we number among the choicest of the world's cuisines — is generally reserved for special occasions in what might be called middle or upper middle-class homes in Mexico.. These would include holidays and those occasions when visitors arrive from other countries.

"Otherwise," Mrs. Quijano noted, "the food is frequently French or European."

The food on which we dined with the Quijanos was of a high order, indeed, and admirably spiced, although Mrs. Quijano explained to us that it was quite mild by some local standards.

PESCADO CON NOPALITOS
(Mexican fish baked with cactus leaves)

8 to 12 quarter-inch slices fresh fish fillets such as red snapper, striped bass or salmon.
¼ cup lime juice.
2 tablespoons oil.
1-½ cups seeded, unpeeled, cubed fresh tomatoes.
¾ cup chopped onion.
2½ cups cubed, drained cooked nopalites — cactus — available in cans (see note).
6 eggs, well beaten. Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste.
4 tablespoons butter plus enough to butter the dish.
1 cup canned, peeled green chilies, available in cans in many supermarkets and Spanish speaking markets (see note)
1 tablespoon grated onion.
One-third cup water.

1. Preheat the oven to 350 degrees.
2. Place the fish slices in a dish, add the lime juice. Let stand an hour.
3. Heat the oil in a skillet and when it is hot, add the tomatoes and chopped onion. Cook about 10 minutes and add the cactus. Cook about one minute and add the eggs, stirring. Add salt and pepper to taste. Continue cooking and stirring about 10 minutes. Drain but save the solids.
4. Butter an eight-by-eight inch baking dish and arrange one layer of fish over the bottom, the edges slightly overlapping. Spoon in the cactus and egg mixture and pat down to smooth over.
5. Arrange another layer of fish on top with the edges slightly overlapping. Dot the top with two tablespoons butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cover closely with foil. Place in the oven and bake 30 minutes or until the fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Do not overbake.
6. Meanwhile, prepare the sauce as follows: Blend the chilies in a blender to make a puree stirring down with a rubber spatual. If necessary, add up to a quarter cup of water to blend.
7. Heat the remaining butter in a skillet and add the grated onion. Cook briefly and add the pureed chilies and one-third cup of water. Add salt and pepper to taste. Cook about five minutes.
8. Unmold the fish onto a platter. Serve with the hot sauce on the side.

Yield: Six to eight servings.

Note: In Mexico, the surface of the cactus leaves is made smooth with a knife or scraper. The cactus leaves are then rinsed well and cut into fine quarter-inch cubes. The cubes are cooked in boiling salted water until tender, about one-hour.

The chilies used in this recipe are the poblano chilies, which are occasionally available in open-air markets in Spanish-speaking areas. They are broiled the skin chars, skinned, seeded and chopped.

The best brand of nopalitos or cactus in this country is probably Clemente Jacaues. The best brand of canned chilies is probably Ortega. These are available in shops that specialize in fine imported foods.

FRIJOLES MANEADOS
(A creamed bean dish)

1 pound dried pinto or pink beans. Salt to taste.
1 cup plus 3 tablespoons vegetable oil.
Two-thirds cup milk.
2 dried chilies ancho (see note).
1 cup cubed Fontina or Jack cheese.

1. Pick over the beans and put them into a saucepan. Add water to cover, salt, the onion and three tablespoons of oil. Bring to the boil and simmer until the beans are tender. Cooking time will vary with the beans, 20 minutes or longer.
2. Meanwhile, preheat the oven to 350 degrees.
3. Using a slotted spoon, scoop a portion of the beans at a time with a little of the cooking liquid into the container of an electric blender or food processor. Blend with about three tablespoons milk. Continue blending, adding milk as necessary unti all the beans are pureed. This will have to be done in several steps and all the milk should be used. As the beans are processed, pour them into a casserole.
4. Heat the remaining cup of oil and when it is hot and almost smoking, add it to the beans, stirring. Add salt to taste. All of the oil will not blend with the beans, but no matter.
5. Split the chilies and remove seeds and veins. The chilies are sometimes soft when purchased. If not, heat them briefly in a dry skillet without cooking. Tear or break the chilies into strips and add them to the beans. Place the beans in the oven and bake one and one-half to two hours.
6. Remove beans from oven and add cheese, pushing the peices into the beans rather than stirring them in. The pieces of cheese should sort of float around in the beans rather than blending with them. Return the beans to the oven just long enough for the cheese to melt. Serve piping hot.

Yield: Eight or 12 servings.

Note: Chilies ancho are available in Spanish-speaking markets.

POSTRE ANTIGUO DE NUES

1 cup pecans plus whole pecan halves for garnish.
2 cups milk.
4 egg yolks.
⅛ teaspoon bicarbonate of soda.

1. Blend the cup of pecans with three-quarters cup of milk.
2. Combine the remaining milk and sugar in a saucepan and cook, stirring, until sugar dissolves. Stir this with a wooden spoon, using a back and forth rather than a circular motion.
3. Beat the yolks in a mixing bowl and add a little of the hot liquid. Return this with the yolks to the saucepan and continue stirring back. Add the nut mixture and continue cooking over moderate heat, stirring back and forth. Add the soda and continue cooking and stirring over gentle heat about 30 to 40 minutes or until very thick. Spoon the mixture into a serving dish and chill well. Garnish with pecan halves and serve cold.

Yield: Eight to 10 servings.

Western Touch Creates Unique Chinese Food

Some Chinese vegetables are produced in B.C., mainly in the Fraser Valley, including bok choy, mustard greens (gai choy), Chinese broccoli (gai lan), watercress (sai young choy), Chinese radish (lo bak), snow peas (ho long dow), Chinese parsley (yen sai).

Increasing in popularity, Chinese cooking is a fascinating art. Oriental cooking originally was a very frugal way of preparing food with much care and thought given to the simple, yet tasty and colorful dishes. Today, however, the approach to this type of cooking is gourmet-oriented.

If Chinese cooking is a new experience for you, start with the basics. First wash, dry and cut vegetables into bite-size pieces. Cut on the bias as much as possible to expose the inner fibre for quick cooking. This helps to retain its flavor. Choose vegetables with flavor, appearance and texture in mind.

Stir-fry dishes, called chow in Chinese, are also referred to as sauteed or tossed cooked. These may consist of meat, chicken or seafood cut in small pieces and vegetables cut in similar sized pieces. Cook all items quickly. A sauce consisting of oil, spices, and liquid, is usually cooked with the dish.

Prepare all ingredients called for in the recipe. Arrange on a tray in the order in which they will be used. Cook each item as the recipe directs, being extremely careful not to overcook.

Protein foods should be stir-friend thoroughly, but also tender and juicy, to retain their colorful and crisp texture.

High heat is essential. Continual motion of products is required once the food has been added to the sizzling hot oil. Work quickly and stir toss constantly to avoid burning.

WATERCRESS SOUP

4 cups chicken broth (OR 4 bouillon cubes dissolved in 4 cups boiling water)
1 tsp. sugar
¾ tsp. salt
dash pepper
1 tbsp. soy sauce
¼ tsp. fresh ginger, finely chopped
¼ cup green onion, finely chopped
1 bunch watercress (sai yong choy), stems removed, coarsely chopped

In large saucepan combine broth (OR bouillon cubes and water) with sugar, salt, pepper, soy and ginger. Bring to boil; simmer 10 minutes. Bring back to boil; add green onions and watercress. Cover; reduce heat; simmer several minutes. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.

EGG FOO YUNG WITH POULTRY

4 eggs, well beaten
½ lb. bean sprouts
½ cup green onions, thinly sliced
1 cup cooked chicken or turkey, cut in slivers ½ tsp. salt
dash pepper
¼ tsp. garlic powder
2 tbsp. salad oil

Combine eggs, bean sprouts, onions, poultry, salt, pepper and garlic powder, mixing lightly. Heat oil in large skillet, using just enough to coat pan, add remaining oil as needed. Using about ¼ cup of mixture for each, fry patties (like pancakes), turning once. Cook until set and lightly browned. Remove to hot platter. Pour Foo Yung Sauce over top.

Foo Yung Sauce

1 tsp. cornstarch
1 tsp. sugar
2 tsp. soy sauce
1 tsp. vinegar
½ cup chicken broth

In skillet combine cornstarch, sugar, soy sauce and vinegar; stir in chicken broth. Cook over low heat until mixture thickens.

Wine can make even an inexpensive dish special. It is a subtle seasoning which leaves an intriguing flavour. The wholw family can enjoy wine-cooked foods, because the alcohol is transformed in the cooking.

The 20-page "Canadian Wine In Your cooking" ("La cuisine au vin Canadien") offers hints how to use wine in your kitchen and contains dozens of mouthwatering recipes.

For instance, have you ever tried to liven a salad dressing with red wine or mayonnaise with white table wine? Have you ever marinated fish for a couple of hours in dry white wine and then served the dish with the same type of beverage? Have you ever basted roast beef with red wine or lamb with white wine?

Substitute red wine for a cup of liquid when you make a pot roast or stew. Glamourize a simple omelet with a cheese and sherry sauce. For a special treat beat white wine, a little cream, butter and seasoning into mashed potatoes, sprinkle with grated cheese and brown under the broiler.

You can also use wine to fix elegant desserts. Rose Pears, for instance, can be prepared the day before you want to serve them. You will also enjoy a Strawberry Parfait Dessert which can be put together in a few minutes. Another delightful dessert is bananas and pineappple in port, served with whipped cream.

Irritating Reviews

Since the Myron Floren Show in Victoria Memorial Arena a short time ago, I've been getting a considerable amount of flack.

First, because so little was written (review style) in any of our newspapers following the performance.

"If it had been one of those mind-boggling, ear-splitting rock bands, every reporter in town would have been sharpening pencils and recording the event," an irate woman said.

Secondly, there has been irritation — and quite a bit of anger — at the way those who filled the big building for the event, were described in seant reviews that did appear.

One young person, whom I happen to know is in the 20 to 30 age group, sputtered at me one day on the street, "I resent being written up by some young reporter, as belonging to the geritol set."

"There were many there in the 20s and 30s and the 40s and 50s, as well as senior citizens of all ages ... and we were all toe-tapping, clapping hands and singing to the lilting music, no matter how many years we had chalked up," this person continued.

"Do you mean to tell me we cannot enjoy the music we like, without being ridiculed?"

She also believed it would only have taken one couple "to start the ball rolling" and the open space behind seats on the floor of the Arena would have been filled with dancers, young and old.

"And we could have jived it up with the best of the kids who go on a rock band kick."

Then, there was one of Victoria's well-respected citizens who kept me on the telephone for nearly 10 minutes, while he hammered away at the fact "anyone over 30 today is classed as a doddering has-been."

He won't let me use his name but I have permission to repeat here some of the things he said.

Read them and I'm sure you will agree with me, they do make good sense.

It's a pity, he pointed out, that today's youth seem to know so little about "the remarkable people of their parents and grandparents generations."

If they did there would be more respect shown and perhaps more admiration generated.

He reminded me "these are the people who, within the last five or six decades, have increased life expectancy by approximately 50 per cent."

They have given the young who now mouth "geritol set" at them, a healthier world in which there is no longer the great epidemics of flu, typhus, diptheria, smallpox, scarlet fever, measles or mumps."

A moment's pause and polio "which is no longer a medical factor" and TB "which today is almost unheard of," were added to the list.

This intelligent man then went on to say these were also the people who lived through history's greatest depression.

Because of that harrowing experience, they determined their young would have a better life.

So it is that today's youth, if it is their desire, can work fewer hours, learn more, have more leisure time, travel to more distance places and have more chance to follow their life's ambition (again if they so desire).

Just about there I managed to get in a question — what about failures?

Certainly there had been some, this man conceded. They hadn't found an alternative for war nor for racial hatred.

They had, however, made more progress by the sweat of their brows than in any previous era ... "and don't you forget it," he said.

Then, very quietly, "if this present generation of youth can make as much progress in as many areas as these two generations did, they should be able to solve a good many of the earth's remaining ills."

It won't be easy, he concluded, and they won't do it by negative thoughts, nor by tearing down or belittling the older generations.

Nor, by describing them "with sneers on their pencils" as the geritol set.

Water Safety Course Set

A Red Cross-Royal Life Saving Society water safety instructor course will be held Aug. 15-30, using the University of Victoria's pool and the Gordon Head recreation centre.

The course will be taught by Red Cross small craft safety consultants Nancy Greig and Anne Moore, who are touring 15 B.C. communities during the season.

Instruction will be given weekdays from 6:30 to 10 p.m. in the university pool and from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Saturdays at the Gordon Head centre.

All sessions must be attended and participants must be 17 years of age at the end of the course. If under 20, they must hold the water safety leader award. If older, they must have a bronze medallion.

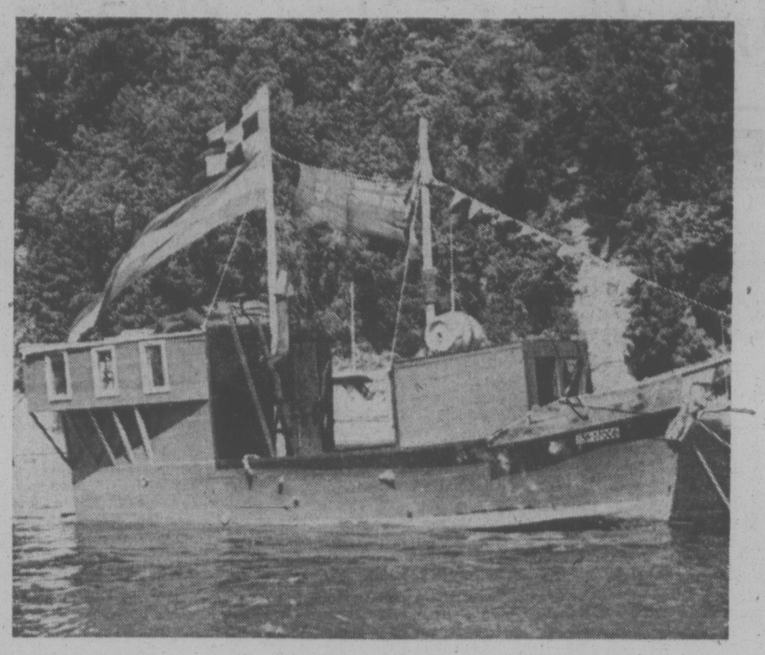
This is a new course, tested in several pilot projects in the province in 1974 and being introduced across Canada.

The objective is to train instructors to teach new boaters the basic skills of canoeing, rowing and power boating, emphasizing safety.



IMAGINATION often runs riot when man takes tools in hand and creates the boat of his dreams, borrowing from the past and adding a few innovations of his own. Anchored at Saturna Island, this eyebrow-raiser adds her own individuality to the boating scene.

Woman Who Takes Risks Is the One Who Makes It

NEW YORK (UPI) — Consider the career woman and advancement. Like the tortoise, she gets ahead only by sticking her neck out.

The woman who makes it in the still male-dominated executive suite does it by taking risks.

Who says so? Margaret V. Higginson, who's up there, and Thomas L. Quick, who's equally successful and whose boss is a woman. The two have combined their experiences of climbing the corporate ladder — plus research on how other women have done it — into a no-nonsense book entitled, The Ambitious Woman's Guide to a Successful Career. It will be published in early September by the American Management Association's book division.

To be "upwardly mobile" (their phrase), a woman needs ambition, motivation, education and experience, they say.

Then there's that added quality of daring which must overcome the conditioning received in their early years. Usual traits of this conditioning are passivity, dependency, diffidence, submissiveness, docility, inferiority and noncompetitiveness.

But the motivated, aggressive woman stifles her qualms about how well she will handle responsibility, unusual tasks, a chance to speak before a group inside or outside the company — and she takes on the job.

If she is given an opportunity to take a job never before held by a woman, she grabs it, even though she realizes she has only a 50-50 chance of succeeding.

If she has too little responsibility or salary in her present job, she directly or indirectly asks her boss for more. If she is turned down, she persists.

When she is in a job she does well and enjoys, but which offers no possibilities for promotion, she leaves it for a more promising job.

If she finds she is being consistently shot down, campaigned against, or harassed by someone in her department or company, she takes measures to change the situation.

"Don't for a minute assume that an ambitious woman always shows her claws," say Higginson and Quick. "She may not be an outspoken, conspicuous superwoman; she may camouflage her daring under a pleasant 'feminine' exterior — if she can manage it."

In the ambitious woman's favor are candor, high self-esteem, high energy level, competitiveness, a healthy attitude about being a female, and ease in relating to men.

Some obstacles the authors found were women's lack of specific career goals, failure to channel resentment over discrimination into a positive direction and not letting it interfere with performane and terfere with performance and failure to resolve sex role conflicts.

In that last area, Mrs. Higginson in an interview talked of her own career-home setup. "I'm married to a man who's good for a working woman," she said. "He wouldn't say, 'Dear, the rug needs vacuuming.' He would simply go get the vacuum cleaner.

"I think more and more couples are sharing, often exchanging, roles."

Publisher Spurred by Lack Of Canadian History Books

EDMONTON (CP) — A trip to the library to pick up some children's books inspired John LeBel to launch his own publishing company.

"There weren't any books available for children that reflected Canadian history," the local publisher says.

"Elementary-age children knew all about Davey Crockett, but not about Louis Riel or Dr. Banting."

So in 1973 he founded J. M. LeBel Enterprises Ltd., a one-man publishing firm which specializes in producing historical novels for children aged 6 to 12.

To date the company, believed the only educational publishing firm in Western Canada, has published two novels — both recommended for use in Alberta and Ontario schools.

Plans are under way for novels on the Riel Rebellion, the Vikings, exploration of the St. Lawrence and a Canadian soccer manual.

The Toronto-born publisher, who worked for major American publishing firms for seven years before striking out on his own, said it is important that children be introduced to history in novel form.

"Social studies can be very dry if presented factually. But if we can get it into novel format, where the readers indentify with the children in the story, it can be a super learning experience."

LeBel's first novel, Packy the Elephant, evolved from a 1,500-word short story submitted by Marjorie Morgan of Edmonton, in reply to an advertisement in a literary publication.

"I was flooded with manuscripts. About seven of them showed promising writing style and were going the direction I was interested in."

The publisher then requested author Morgan to resubmit a 10,000-word manuscript arising from the original, about an elephant at the Alberta Game Farm, near Edmonton.

A second novel, Gold Fever Trail: A Klondike Adventure, tells the story of a motherless brother and sister who search for their father in the Klondike gold fields at the turn of the century.

Written by Monica Hughes of Edmonton, it has elicited an enthusiastic response from young readers, said LeBel's wife, Pauline.

"Kids write in to say it helped them understand the Klondike," she said. "Children are able to relate to the key characters in the book." Published in 1974, it has sold 2,000 copies so far, mainly to schools in Alberta and Ontario.

Survey Shoots Down Volunteer Theories

Wrong, says a study by the Canadian Council of Social Development CCSD released Tuesday.

Among the CCSD findings were:

—Nearly half of all volunteers, 44.5 per cent to be exact, are men, but women tend to dominate the prestige jobs.

—People of all ages do volunteer work, and 15.7 per cent of them are under 25 and 14.6 per cent over 60.

—Nearly half of all volunteers make less than $12,000 a year and 6.5 per cent have annual incomes of less than $4,000.

The study said the government should pay more attention to volunteer work because slightly more than half the population is engaged in some form of volunteer work or charitable giving.

"It seems safe to speculate also that governments will wish to avail themselves increasingly in the future of volunteer time because they cannot possibly accomplish all that might be considered desirable without such help," the 99-page study concludes.

To open volunteer work to more people the CCSD recommends the government consider reimbursing volunteers for out-of-pocket expenses and extending tax credits and exemptions for people who do this work.

OTTAWA — Three Liberal government members narrowly missed serious injury Wednesday when a parliamentary messenger fainted at the wheel of his car and the vehicle mounted a sidewalk on Parliament Hill.

Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp, Martin O'Connell (L — Toronto-Scarborough East) and Senator John Connolly (L — Ontario) all were hit by the slow-moving vehicle, but none was hurt seriously. O'Connell was thrown over the hood of the car, but suffered only minor bruises.

Sharp was hit on the leg, but attended the daily Commons question period a few hours later. He went to hospital for examination, and doctors confirmed there were no serious injuries.

WASHINGTON — President Ford's campaign manager says Ronald Reagan now leads the president in almost every Southern state and the primary reason is Nelson Rockefeller, the Washington Post reported today.

"Ronald Reagan leads the president in almost every Southern state and 'the No. 1 problem' is Vice-President Rockefeller's place on the ticket," The Post quotes Howard (Bo) Callaway as saying.

Callaway said if the former California governor announces that he will seek the Republican presidential nomination he would start ahead of Ford in California, Florida and "any Southern state," largely due to opposition to Rockefeller, The Post reported.

'WRONG' BUTTON PICKED WINNER

TORONTO (UPI) — Part-time parimutuel operator Jerry Organ figured he was out $10 when he punched a wrong ticket at Greenwood Racetrack the other night.

Instead he wound up a $3,501 winner.

Organ, a 21-year-old college student majoring in urban development, said he was asked by a bettor for a $10 exactor ticket on the No. 9 and No. 5 horses in the last race.

Organ accidentally punched 9 and 6.

The bettor refused to accept the ticket and demanded another. Nobody else wanted a 9 and 6 combination so Organ was stuck with it.

"I was getting only $13.50 for the night for working four races," he said. "I thought, 'bang, there goes most of my pay,' because we have to make up the loss on any mistakes we make.

"I started getting mad at myself . . ."

Minutes later the two horses covered by the ticket, TV Shiaway and Royal Brat, flashed across the finish line; first and second.

Marching Orders Given to Quang

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Wednesday that Dang Van Quang, the controversial former South Vietnamese general, has "his marching orders" to leave Canada.

The remaining problem is to find a country that will accept Quang and there is no indication the United States is willing, Mr. Andras told reporters.

The immigration appeal board has rejected Quang's application to appeal a deportation order because he made it too late.

Quang, a former top Saigon official, was admitted to Canada from a U.S. refugee camp but was ordered deported earlier this month after checks on allegations that he had been involved in corruption and narcotics trafficking in South Vietnam.

Andras said Quang might still appeal the deportation order to the Federal Court "but it may be a futile effort."

He said Quang will have to continue efforts to find a country that will accept him. Taiwan was a possibility and the new Saigon government would be willing to take him back.

"We want to make sure he finds a country before we put him on a plane."

BEE RUSTLERS NIPPED

JUPITER, Fla. (AP) — Florida lawmen have broken up a bee-rustling operation in which they say thieves harvested nearly $500,000 in honey by switching brands on stolen hives.

Beekeepers from seven south Florida counties were busy Wednesday picking out their hives from nearly 1,200 recovered in a Tuesday raid on a Quonset hut "honey factory" in a rural area of Palm Beach County.

"All the beekeepers have their own brands on their hives. Some of them know their stock so well they can identify the bees themselves," said Sgt. James Greer of the sheriffs department.

Officers from nine state and local enforcement agencies were involved in the raid on one edge of Palm Beach County, centre of production of 30 million pounds of honey a year. In the state, beekeeping is a $10-million-a-year industry.

Three Jupiter men were arrested in the raid and spokesmen said more arrests were expected.

Museum 'Carnival' Doesn't Bother Tourists

Tourists don't seem to share concerns of some Provinical Museum staff that a "carnival atmosphere" is developing outside the museum.

"Oh, I think they're great," said Louis Imhof of Tacoma, Wash. when asked what he thought of the tables and chairs outside the main museum entrance.

"Why be stuffy?" asked Imhof. "Let people stop and enjoy themselves."

Museum staff recently protested in a letter to the Times about the growing "clutter" outside the museum, including a soft drink machine, chairs and office tables, "the tables covered, incongruously, with red check cloths to become an outdoor pub."

The statement objected as well to the Western Canada lottery booth and a portable stage, also in Heritage Court.

"I think they're nice," Anne Walker of Vancouver said of the tables. "They make the place look less of a museum and more of a community place."

"My feet are pretty tired and I think it looks pretty good," said Karen Penington of Bend, Ore.

"I think it's great," said William Van Oene of Fergus, Ont. "It reminds me of Europe."

"You can always eat in a restaurant," said Mrs. Joel Starr of Riverside, Calif. "But with your nice weather and all the flowers it's nice to sit outside."

"I think they're charming, but I think they'd be more comfortable if they had umbrellas over them," said Helen Benner of New York City.

One or two museum visitors, like Bernard Verwiel of Wheaton, Ill. felt the outdoor cafe was rather commercial right next to the museum.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

As frequently happens, especially in a duplicate game, one arrives at a highly precarious contract; and as the trick-by-trick play develops, he realizes that at any moment a catastrophe may strike him.

The latter point is embodied in today's deal, with declarer being scared to death every step of the way. But his voyage had a happy ending. The deal came up in a duplicate game.

East-West vulnerable. South deals.

	SOUTH
	♥A52
	♦K32
	♣AQ532

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♦	Pass
1NT	Pass	3NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♥.

After West had opened the ten of hearts and the dummy came into view, declarer was delighted that West had not opened a spade. With a spade opening, declarer appreciated that his contract might have been defeated immediately (which would have been the case if East had happened to possess the spade ace.)

Upon winning the opening heart lead with his ace, South cashed the king of diamonds, East discarding a spade. Another diamond was led, dummy's six being finessed when West followed suit with the five-spot. Then came the ten of clubs, which was taken by West's jack when both East and South followed suit with low clubs.

West now paused for reflection — and South prayed that West wouldn't lead a spade. Eventually West led the heart nine, which was allowed to win the trick. Another heart lead came next, dummy's king winning. The nine of clubs was then led, with a finesse being taken against East's hoped-for king. As is evident, the nine won the trick (had West possessed the king, South would have done some more praying). A third club lead brought forth East's king and South's ace. South then cashed his two remaining clubs.

On the last three club leads West had three discards to make. He couldn't discard a diamond, for to do so would enable declarer to cash all five of dummy's diamonds. So, on the third and fourth club lead, West had no choice but to part with the jack and queen of spades. On the fifth club lead, West was squeezed.

If West discarded the spade ace, dummy's king would become a winner (dummy's fifth diamond being discarded). And if, instead, West discarded a diamond, dummy's king of spades would be tossed away, and dummy's diamonds would take the rest of the tricks. So declarer ended up making 11 tricks.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

Friday, July 25, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You have fun being yourself. You shine at social gathering. Your own style is best, most creative. Some fond hopes, wishes may be fulfilled. Leo, Aquarius persons figure in picture. Romance is highlighted. Be direct enough to say what you mean.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent is on what you do to promote personal interests. Means don't depend on others to sing your praises. Key is to state your case, to contact professional superiors, to rise above petty details, jealousies. Aquarian figures prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You learn how to get message across. Publisher is interested in your views, work. Spread influence. Refuse to be confined. Gemini, Sagittarius persons are involved. Accent is on travel, language, education and the breaking down of barriers between people.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your concern with who owns what, who controls leases, what taxes must be honored — these are spotlighted. Aquarius and Leo figure in picture. You are able now to delve deep beneath surface indications.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Cycle is such that you do best by waiting, listening and observing. Eschew direct assault. Let others take initiative. Give special attention to improving image, to making amends, for recent slights to partner, mate. Gemini, Virgo persons figure prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Music, harmony, family reconciliation — these areas are featured. Taurus, Scorpio and Libra persons could be in picture. Accent is on employment, health, pacing, ability to learn by sharing knowledge. Remember recent diet resolutions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emotional involvements are featured. Love is very much in picture. Your judgment is not apt to be calm, clear — instead, impulse, perhaps wishful thinking attempt to take command. One who advocates the tossing aside of reality is whistling in dark. Know it and heed your own common sense.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get appraisal. Be sure of costs, inventory. Take nothing for granted. Count your change, too. Your position is strong. Don't sell yourself short. Build on solid base. Older person is in your corner and will give you benefit of experience.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on transforming idea into viable concept. Don't leave loose ends. Find ways of obtaining better display, more effective distribution. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently. You need not be painted into any corner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Payments, collections are featured. New starts in new directions are also accented. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. Highlight independence of thought, action. One who is "romantic" is willing to take chances — at your expense.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Cycle is high — your timing is on target. Have faith in your own intuitive intellect. One who teaches takes a special interest in your welfare. Take initiative. Be a self-starter. Your best qualities surge to forefront.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Some of your fears, doubts can be overcome. Your intellectual curiosity is activated. You obtain answers to questions. Gemini, Sagittarius persons are in picture. Social activity increases. Leave fine points, details for another time.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are basically introspective. You are a spiritual person. You are selective and a perfectionist. You are finishing a major cycle and August should be your most significant month of 1975. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. At times, you appear to lead a double life. Very few persons, in fact, can understand the "real you."

Dozens of Uses for Coldframe

A coldframe is a most useful structure to add to the home garden. It can be used for storage, for early and late sowings of food crops, and for protection of hardy vegetables over winter. Construction is as simple or elaborate as you care to make it.

It is essential to the successful operation of an amateur greenhouse, providing the extra space and ideal conditions for hardening small plants before transplanted to the open garden, for rooting cuttings and germinating seeds in summer and protecting them over winter.

In addition, the home gardner finds a dozen other uses particularly suited to his type of gardening.

Yet few gardens contain a coldframe and the excuses given are not reasonable. No one-lot garden lacks a suitable spot, nor is it too small to accommodate a simple frame 6 ft. long and 3 ft. wide.

Concrete or brick are not needed. Cedar planks 2 ins. thick are ideal, but a structure made from old shiplap and discarded window sash can be used with good results. Warmth within the frame during winter is increased when shiplap is nailed each side of 2 by 4 spacers and the opening filled with sawdust.

Don't be deluded by stories that plastic film is as good as glass and easier to work with. The two have entirely different properties.

Glass permits short waves of light to enter and prevents long waves of radiated heat from escaping; therefore the plants do not suffer rapid changes in temperatures.

Plastic allows short waves to enter and long waves to escape, so that the inside temperature drops to the level of outside temperature within one-half hour after the sun is off the frame. In fact, on a cold night, the inside temperature can go lower than outside due to the lack of air turbulence within.

The best time to construct a coldframe is now, while conditions are conducive to outdoor work; it will never be started in rain and cool temperatures.

First obtain the discarded window sash to use as covers, then build the frame to suit the size of the sash. Depth will depend on the purpose for which the frame will be mainly used.

With the front 6 ins. high, the back should be 12 ins. so as to let as much low angle winter sun as possible reach the plants.

Construction can be solid and permanent, or the back, front, and end pieces can be made as separate units to be assembled and dismantled as needed. The latter construction gives you a "portable frame" to put over rows of late sown vegetables in the open garden, and over early spring sowings, greatly increasing the value of the frame.

Whether portable or fixed, make the end-pieces the same height as the back and nail a sloping piece of 2 by 2 on the inside of each to support the cover. These "wings" give some protection from cold winds and help conserve inside warmth.

For winter use the frame is backed against a south facing wall or fence. The base inside can be 2 ins. of sand over rocks when used for pots or plant boxes, or 6 to 8 ins. of screened compost over a rock base for direct sowing of seeds.

A "blanket", made from an old crib mattress, or a 2 inch sponge rubber camping mattress, goes over the glass covers in extremely cold weather. Old rugs, or a wooden cover made from shiplap, are alternatives.

The convenience and usefulness of a cold frame cannot be fully realized until you have built one and used it for a year and this is the time to start.

Eddy and his Douglas St. store

Trail-Blazer Mallek Remembers $5 Suits

After 41 years running Eddy's Ltd. clothing store at 1661 Douglas, Eddy Mallek is going out of business.

"You see, I believe that when a person no longer has new ideas on how to improve the business he is in, he should step aside and let someone else do it."

Mallek, who just turned 65 two months ago, has sold the building and is selling everything that's not nailed down, including women's clothes of all kinds and all the light fixtures and counters.

"New ideas are very important in this business, in any business. When I started this store, it was the bottom of the depression, 1934. They said I was crazy going into business when nobody had any money.

"Well, it was a little rough at first. We would sell top-quality women's suits, really good merchandise, for $5. And nobody had the $5. That's hard for young people to believe now, but it's true.

"I started selling on credit. Six months to pay with no interest charges. My competitors said I would go broke. I also offered a policy of exchanges and refunds. Well, I survived. It's always new ideas that are important.

"I'm sure there are new methods, new ideas for selling clothes that should be tried now. I don't know what they are. That's why I'm stepping aside for someone who does."

Mallek was born in Tacoma, Washington, and came to Victoria at age 3. His father Harry Mallek opened a clothing store at Government and Yates, where the post office now stands.

At age 24 Eddy Mallek went into the clothing business on his own at the site of the present store beside The Bay. He subsequently had constructed the Mallek block right across the street from Eddy's but sold it one year ago. The Eddy's building has just been sold and the long closing out sale is under way.

"There is so much merchandise in the store it would take about a week just to carry it all out. The sale will take several weeks but I hope to have it wound up by the end of August."

Mallek, who is married and has two daughters and five grandchildren, divides his time between Hawaii, where he lives for six months a year, Victoria, where his business is and Vancouver, where he owns a house in the Kerrisdale area.

"I'm not going to change the pattern of my life now that I'm retired. I've been going to Hawaii for 29 years and I love it. The only change will be that I will have a little more time to work on my golf game."

Besides business and travel, Mallek has had a life-long interest in service club work. He has been in Kiwanis for 40 years, having joined in the 1930s because he wanted to start a school patrol system similar to one he saw in the United States.

In 1936 he helped form a school patrol in Victoria, the first one for Canada. He was also instrumental in the creation of Kiwanis Village, a senior citizens housing development.

His mother, Alice, ran the original Mallek store for about 20 years after her husband died. She is now 90 and living in Vancouver. The two Mallek stores together were in business 96 years, with Mallek's goin gfor 55 years and Eddy's for 41 years.

Bike-In Routes Sought

'Quest' Founder Gives Workshop

Project Quest founder Tom Dykes has been invited to give a three-day workshop for social studies teachers at the University of B.C. starting Aug. 11.

Dykes' theme for the workshop, sponsored by the Canadian Association of Social Studies Teachers, will be The Pacific Coast Is My Classroom.

The workshop is one more sign of recognition for Dykes, who has been working for five years to win acceptance for his idea of educational boat trips up the B.C.-Alaska coastline.

His non-profit group, Project Quest, has never managed to win funding from any government or private agency, but nonetheless has organized two boat trips and is planning a third for this fall.

"The trips have been financed by the kids that go on them," Dykes said today.

The upcoming 10-day trip will be to Glacier Bay, Alaska and back and will emphasize esthetics more than geography or biology, he said.

Among the 50 making the trip will be flutist Paul Horn, photographer Wilf Hatch, Indian carver Richard Hunt and anthropologist Hilary Stewart, he said.

Even though officialdom hasn't given Dykes the backing he'd hoped for, he said local high school students are enthusiastic about Project Quest.

There is talk of setting up Project Quest clubs in schools so students could prepare themselves during the year for the floating field trips, he said.

And Dykes is still seeking financial backing. He said he's scheduled to meet federal Local Initiatives Project officials to talk about funding and is hopeful something will come from it.

UVic Physicist At SFU Course

University of Victoria graduate student Edward L. Mathie was among 25 western scientists who took part in a five-day inter-disciplinary course in nuclear science at Simon Fraser University last week.

Mathie said the special course open to people already settled in a narrow aspect of study or research in the field of nuclear science offered a chance to give them a broader appreciation of what is taking place in other fields.

"The more courses like this, the more open-minded people are," he said.

Nuclear science involves biology, chemistry and physics and the idea of the course was to allow participants to discuss topics in common from each point of view, said Mathie, who is working toward his masters in nuclear physics while employed at UVic by TRIUMF.

The latter is a nuclear research facility housed at University of B.C. and supported by UBC, UVic, Simon Fraser and the University of Alberta, and the course last week took advantage of this connection through special equipment and experience at SFU.

There have been two previous short courses of a similar kind held at University of Calgary and U of A, sponsored by the Committee of Western Canadian Graduate Deans to make maximum use of resource facilities in the western provinces.

Any graduate student attending a western university was entitled to take part, said program co-ordinator Dr. John D'Auria. He said all three courses have been financed by the Western Canada Post-Secondary Co-ordinating Committee, consisting of the education ministers of the western provinces.

Heat Mirror Developed By Scientists

BEDFORD, Mass. (Reuter) — Three scientists at Massachusetts Institute of Technology say they have developed a mirror which can preserve heat in anything from a house to a high-temperature furnace.

John Fan, Thomas Reed, and John Goodenough of Lincoln Laboratories said the heat mirror consits of a pyrex glass with a special two-millionths-of-an-inch thick layer of metals such as gold, silver or tin oxide.

The mirror reflects the heat but is transparent to light so it can be utilized in windows to conserve solar heat energy which passes into houses, Dr. Reed said.

Reed estimates two per cent of U.S. total energy consumption and 10 per cent of home heating consumption could be conserved if the specially coated glass was used in homes and buildings. The scientists say the metal coatings would cost 10 cents per square foot to apply on regular glass.

The scientists believe the heat mirrors have excellent potential for functioning as solar heat reflectors which can compile and transfer its heat into storage.

Reed says scientists will still have to discover how to apply the metal coating to windows in buildings already in use.

Before The Judge

The body of Patricia Rose Nicholet, 18, was discovered March 1 on the shore at the foot of Barnard Street in Victoria West.

Only one factor saved Grant James Williams from going to jail, Judge William Ostler said when the 20-year-old Victorian appeared before him for sentencing for possession of marijuana and hashish. And that was a favorable report from the probation office.

Ostler noted police had seized 39 plants growing in the backyard and another 192 in planters inside the house, as well as three plates of germinating seeds, a set of scales and five hash pipes.

The judge expressed surprise the accused had not been charged with the more serious offence—cultivation—as he had "obviously been engaged in marijuana husbandry."

He called the attitude of the probation service and that of the Crown "generous", especially as Williams had a prior conviction for possession of marijuana and had manifested a "deep-seated drug problem."

Ostler, referring to the probation officer's presence report, said Williams had cited his reason for growing the drug as a less risky venture than trying to buy marijuana off the streets.

"How such an attitude commends itself to him is beyond me," Ostler said.

The judge set a $250 fine on each charge for a total of $560 and placed Williams on one year's probation. One condition of probation is that the accused continue his treatment on the methadone program.

Michael Illes, 21, and his wife Kathy, 19, were charged Tuesday when drug squad members discovered 195 marijuana plants growing in plates on the window sills of the Illes's residence at 3389 Whittier. Three small jars of seeds were found in the house.

Police said the plants were two to six inches high.

A similar $200 fine was were doing was in the privacy of our house and was for our own use." But Ostler wasn't impressed. The fines he set were nearly three times the normal for conviciton on the charge.

A simular $200 fine was handed down to David Martin Towner, 21, of 128 Bushby, who pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana — two 15-inch plants which police found flourishing in his bedroom.

Siphoning two gallons of gasoline from a car parked in the 1100-block Haultain June 30 proved a relatively costly experience for Darrell Curtis Lee, 18, of 1281 Centre, Gordon Moffatt, 18, of 18 Heywood Heights, and Douglas Edward Parker, 17, of 1402 Beatty.

Ostler placed Parker and Beatty on six months probation and ordered them to undertake 30 hours community service work and attend the Metchosin weekend camp.

In the case of Lee, whose probation report had given a more positive prognosis than the other two, Oslter set a $100 fine. All three pleaded guilty.

In Judge Fred Green's traffic court, Robert George Adams, 34, of 318 Benhomer, Vilma Jean Smith, 40, of 1357 Ryan, and Michael Anthony Nowle, 17, of 966 Nicholson, were ordered to attend the impaired drivers' course after pleading guilty to impaired driving.

Green set a $150 fine for Lorraine Joe, 42, of Duncan after she pleaded guilty to impaired driving on the Trans-Canada Highway on June 27. The judge also prohibited her from driving for 15 months.

Claude Laval Routhier of HMCS Kootenay was fined $450 and prohibited from driving for six months, and Frank George Cope, 17, of 472 Kipling, was fined $125.

LAST APOLLO LANDS TODAY

HOUSTON (AP) — The last Apollo comes home from space today, ending a history-making flight with the Soviet Union and closing a pioneering chapter in the United States space program.

Astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald Slayton steered their Apollo toward a fiery re-entry and a 2:18 p.m. (Victoria time) splashdown in the Pacific Ocean 200 miles west of Hawaii.

The carrier USS New Orleans waited in the recovery zone to make the last ocean pickup planned in the U.S. space program.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton are to be the last Americans to fly into space for at least four years.

Future astronauts must await the Space Shuttle, the reflyable rocket plane that will operate much like an airliner, landing on concrete runways.

The last Apollo crew returns after nine days in space during which it laid a foundation for a new age of space cooperation with the Soviet Union after linking with a Soyuz spaceship and working in orbit for two days with two cosmonauts.

In Moscow, the cosmonauts, Gen. Alexei Leonov and Col. Valeri Kubasov, who returned to earth Monday, met reporters and Leonov said the joint mission went "smoothly as a peeled egg."

In a news conference from space Wednesday, Apollo commander Stafford said the major accomplishment of the joint flight was the completion with the Soviets of a "very difficult and tedious task."

"It can show that in spite of great political differences, if people meet committments, then a lot can be achieved."

CALL-UP IN ISRAEL, ALERTS IN EGYPT

War Flirted in M-East

Times News Services

Israel and Egypt are playing a dangerous game of military moves to strengthen their negotiating positions as talks for peace in the Middle East appear to be making progress.

U.S. intelligence officials are concerned that one side or the other might go too far in military gestures and start an outbreak of fighting, even though neither apparently wants it to happen.

The Israelis were reported to have called up about 7,000 military reservists after the Egyptians indicated last week they might not agree to an extension of the UN force in the buffer zone separating Egyptian and Israeli forces.

U.S. diplomats in Israel were told about the call-up by Israeli officials who said the action was in response to Egyptian moves, including some military alerts.

One Egyptian move that caught the attention of both the U.S. and Israel was the deployment of air defence missile radar to within about four miles of the Suez Canal's west bank.

This was the first known movement of Egyptian surface-to-air missile units into this area since the troops disengagement agreement about 18 months ago.

Such missile units, which caused heavy Israeli air losses in the early stages of the 1973 war, would be vital in protecting any major Egyptian troop movement across the canal for an attack on the Israeli army in the Sinai.

Away from the Egyptian-Israeli front, there was no sign of any immediately menacing military moves by other Arab countries which might be expected to join in a co-ordinated assault on Israel in event of another war.

On the political front an Israeli government source in Tel Aviv said today Egypt has "accepted in general terms" Israel's concept for an interim agreement in the Sinai.

It was not known whether Egypt had also agreed to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's call Wednesday night for the withdrawal accord to be completed "in direct negotiations" between the two countries.

The Israeli negotiating team — Rabin, Foreign Minister Yigal Allon and Defence minister Shimon Peres — met today to discuss the Egyptian reply to the latest Israeli proposals received Wednesday night from Washington. U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger had conveyed the Egyptian stand to Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz.

A government source in Jerusalem said that, while the Egyptians accepted Israel's concept of a strong defence line in Sinai, details of the line still had to be worked out. Also to be decided, the source said, was the future of Israeli radar stations in the Sinai mountains and curtailment of anti-Israel political and economic activity by Egypt.

The source said issues in the agreement dealing with Israeli-U.S. relations had been nearly settled. These included the value of American economic assistance and American aid in replacing oil supplies which would be lost if Israel withdrew from the Sinai oilfield of Abu Rudeis. Israel now draws more than 50 per cent of its oil needs from the occupied Egyptian field, which will be returned as part of any agreement.

Meanwhile, an unexpected disagreement over a single word delayed a meeting today of the United Nations Security Council to extend the mandate of the buffer force separating Egypt and Israel in the Sinai. The council had reached an understanding Wednesday night to extend the mandate another three months after Egypt ended objections.

Diplomats said Egypt was objecting to a clause in the proposed resolution "expressing satisfaction" at its last-minute consent and wanted instead the stronger phrase "expressing appreciation."

But Israeli Ambassador Jacob Doron said he was against the resolution even expressing satisfaction at the Egyptian consent.

The Bucks Stop Here

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party, in a letter to Canadian businessmen, is appealing for funds, but there likely will not be any results from some of the addresses.

The letter told Treasury Board President Jean Chretien that "the national sustaining program, made of committed Canadians like yourself, provides the PC party with the resources to continue our efforts to get the federal government back on track."

A similar letter arrived at the transport department, and other Liberal cabinet ministers were believed to have received them.

Million Jobless In U.K.

LONDON (Reuter) — Unemployment in Britain has passed one million, the highest level in 35 years, the government said today.

Employment Minister Michael Foot called the figures "appalling" and said the situation was grim.

He said nothing major could be done to improve the economy and relieve unemployment until inflation is defeated. He urged support for the government's $13.20-a-week ceiling on pay increases.

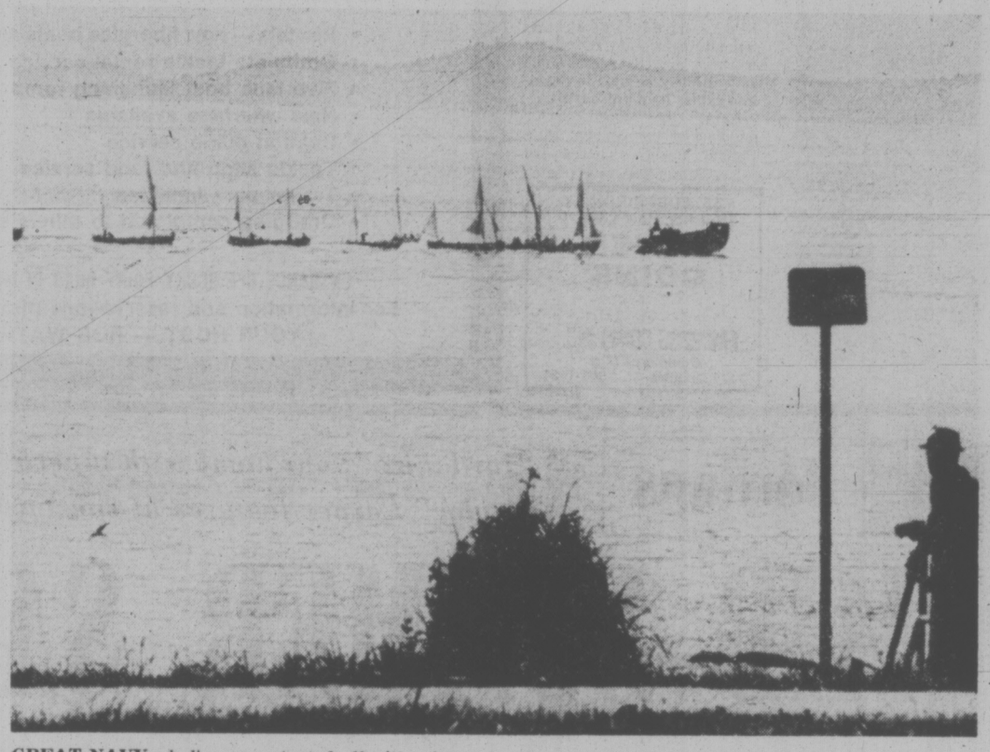
In the European Economic Community about 4.5 million persons are unemployed—50 per cent more than last year—and the number is growing, says an economic survey released today.

The report, prepared by the EEC Commission, said seasonally adjusted unemployment figures for May continued to rise in all EEC countries except Ireland, where the number of jobless has stabilized in recent months. Demand for labor is falling, notably in Belgium, France and West Germany.

The number of people out of work throughout Britain on July 14, when the statistics were gathered, was 1,087,869, or 4.7 per cent of the normal work force. This is a one-percent rise over June and the biggest single jump on record.

Three-fifths of July's increase was caused by young adults leaving school and adult students registering for state unemployment benefits. Many of these will leave the ranks of the unemployed by October. Without them, the "hard-core" total of unemployed was 927,936.

The one million milestone was passed a month ahead of most forecasts and suggests a total of about 1.25 million unemployed by the end of the year.



GREAT NAVY whaling race started off with a bang early Wednesday morning with 17 whalers heading off to Race Rocks. But the weatherman, who had predicted moderate breezes throughout the day, didn't keep his part of the bargain and at 3:30 p.m. a motorized landing craft was sent out to rescue the becalmed ships and bring them back to port. Navy is hoping to reschedule the race for sometime in October, when, hopefully, the breezes will blow. (John McKay photo.)

Four Missing

PEMBERTON (CP) — RCMP and two mountain rescue squads are searching for four Vancouver-area men who may be buried in a large landslide 40 miles west of Pemberton in the Meager Creek basin, 75 miles north of Vancouver. The four are part of a nine-man geophysical team marking lines in the area. When a helicopter came to pick the men up Tuesday the rendezvous point was covered with a large landslide and there has been no sign of the four men since.

MONTREAL (CP) — Hundreds of thousands of Montrealers were finding their own means of transport today as 3,400 bus drivers, subway operators and other public transit workers stayed away from work to back demands in a contract dispute with the Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission.

Bus Line Talks Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than four months of negotiations to provide a new contract for Pacific Stage Lines employees have broken down. Bill Link, business agent for the Amalgamated Transit Union, said Wednesday the union will hold a strike vote Aug. 1 among the 237 workers.

Indian Test Case

PEMBERTON (CP) — With 53 members of the Mount Currie Indian band charged with obstructing a public highway, one case was selected to be tried as a test case. Eugene Kwang, a lawyer acting for the band, said one Indian, Melvin John Williams, will be tried Aug. 28 as a test case at the suggestion of David Winkler, crown counsel.

Cuba Snub Nears End

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — The organization of American states has tentatively endorsed a resolution to end the western hemisphere's economic isolation of Cuba.

Fourteen OAS nations, including the United States, agreed Wednesday night to support a "freedm of action" resolution to circumvent the organization's 11-year-old sanctions against Cuba.

The countries, which have the necessary two-thirds majority for approval, decided to vote in favor of the resolution Tuesday at a meeting of western hemisphere foreign ministers in San Jose.

The resolution, initiated by Mexico and endorsed by the United states, would leave it up to each OAS nation to decide whether to maintain diplomatic and economic relations with Cuba.

The measure would fall short of actually lifting the 1964 sanctions against the Communist government of Premier Fidel Castro, but would make the trade boycott obsolete.

Nations supporting the move were the United States, Argentina, Colombia, Costa Rica, Venezuela, Mixico, Haiti, Panama, Peru, the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Trinidad-Tobago, El Salvador and Honduras.

Diplomats said 12 of the nations have pledged in writing to sponsor the resolution. The remaining two — the United States and the Dominican Republic — have promised in writing to vote in favor of the measure.

Chile, Uruguay and Paraguay were expected to vote aginst the resolutin. The rest of the members — Brazil, Nicaragua, Bolivia and Guatemala — were considered likely to abstain.

The OAS revised the western hemisphere's 1947 Mutual Defense Pact earlier Wednesday, modifying the treaty's adamant opposition to communism with an endorsement of "ideological pluralism."

The updated version of the Treaty of Rio also endorsed "collective economic security" in the hemisphere and made provisions for member nations to appeal to the OAS in case of "special economic problems."

Delegates from the OAS nations began meeting in San Jose July 16 to revise the Mutual Defense Pact under which Cuba was expelled from the hemispheric organizatin in 1964.

COMPLACENT ON CRIME

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney-General Edward Levi blames the continuing increase of crime in the United States on frightened judges, a complacent public and prosecutors and police who are reluctant to enforce laws in black communities.

"Judges throughout the U.S. are afraid to enforce the criminal law," Levi said in response to questions about the crime rate during an interview recorded Wednesday for Saturday broadcast.

Asked whether he believed the U.S. public accepts the high level of crime, Levi said: "Yes, I do. It's amazing."

Another Big Wheat Buy By Russians

Times News Services

WINNIPEG — The sale of an additonal one million tons of wheat to the Soviet Union was announced today by the Canadian wheat board.

Wheat board officials declined to place a value on the latest order, but based on current Thunder Bay, Ont., export prices, it could bring roughly $226 million.

The announcement of the sale — for approximately 37.3 million bushels of durum wheat — brings total Canadian sales to the Soviet Union for the next crop year to three million long tons or about 112 million bushels.

The sale of two million long tons of wheat to the Soviet Union was announced last week by the wheat board.

The Soviet Union has purchased 12.6 million tons of grain so far this year and speculation that total purchases may top 15 million tons have been partially confirmed, the International Wheat Council said today in London.

The council said in its monthly report this includes between seven million and 10 million tons of wheat, 4.5 million tons of maize and 1.1 million tons of barley.

The council said since last month "the grain market has been dominated by rumors that the Soviet Union was negotiating for large purchases of grain including wheat.

Durum is normally used in the making of spaghetti and other pasta products, but it can also be used as a blending wheat for bread flour.

Prisoners Ignore Back-to-Work Call

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Prisoners at the British Columbia Penitentiary have ignored a demand by Andre Therrien, Canadian penitentiary service commissioner, that they call off their strike today.

Nolan Rembruff, acting regional director of the service, reported that the prisoner kitchen crew did not leave their cells to prepare breakfast for the other convicts.

"It looks pretty much like the same kind of day as yesterday," Hembruff observed, adding that other prisoners due to start performing penitentiary tasks later in the morning could be expected to follow suit.

The prison population went on strike Wednesday in a bid to get official recognition of a prisoners' union.

They asked that Therrien come from Ottawa to look into prisoners' grievances and that a collective bargaining system be set up.

But the prisoners were notified Wednesday afternoon that the commissioner had no intention of meeting with them or sending a representative.

A spokesman for the service said this morning it has not been decided what measures will be taken if the prisoners continue to defy the demand.

Prison authorities reproted no incidents as the prisoners sat quietly in their cells, at the urging of chanted advice from supporters outside the prison walls.

About 100 members of the Prisoners Union Committee and 50 members of the American Indian Movement demonstrated Wednesday outside the prison in support of the prisoners.

100 Injured in Athens Riots

More than 100 persons were hurt in the rioting Wednesday, which began after police clashed with 2,000 building workers marching to demand more pay.

The demonstrators attacked police with stones and pieces of wood and overturned cars and buses to use as barricades. The disturbances continued until evening, leaving 106 injured, including 58 policemen.

The government of Prime Minister Constantine Karamanlis said some rioters were former military policemen — considered supporters of the former seven-year-old military regime.

93% Tax Slashes Mine Profit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Western Mines Ltd. reported net profit for the six months ended June 30, 1975, of $122,205 or two cents a share compared with $2,772,469 or 53 cents a share for the first half of 1974.

The effective tax rate for 1975 is 93 per cent of profits, the company said.

In the first half of 1974, the company paid $1,042,323 in dividends, while no dividends were paid in this year's first half.

The 1974 figures for income taxes and royalties are restated in the report in accordance with the tax laws in effect at the end of the year.

Concentrate revenue in this year's first half was $7.5 million compared with $11 million in the 1974 first half.

Provision for income taxes this year is $966,085 compared with $2,035,500 in the 1974 first half.

PLO to Attend UN Conference in Vancouver

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Palestine Liberation Organization intends to attend a United Nations conference in Vancouver next year, despite the controversy over the crime conference in Toronto.

His statement poses serious questions about the planning for the Habitat human resources conference in Vancouver.

Canada asked the UN to postpone the Toronto crime conference, which was to have been held next month, following a bitter domestic controversy about attendance by the PLO.

The decision was "unfortunate, regrettable," PLO spokesman Hassan Rahman said in a telephone interview.

Asked whether the PLO still intends to attend the Habitat conference in Vancouer, he added: "Yes—this is the exercise of our right to participate in the work of the General Assembly and in any conference under the auspices of the UN."

That right, he said, "is clearly indicated" by the General Assembly's approval, last Nov. 22, of observer status for the PLO.

"The action by Canada is clear-cut antagonist to the PLO," Rahman said.

Despite this view, Rahman said the PLO would still send observers to Habitat. "This is not because it is held in Canada, but because it is a conference for the UN," he added.

It was not possible to confirm, either in New York or Washington, reports that Middle Eastern countries might retaliate against Canada. The reports, originating in Beirut, suggested that the retaliation might consist of cancelling economic agreements with Canada.

"I would not be surprised," Rahman said.

In Washington, the U.S. was officially noncommital about Canada's decision.

Privately, however, one official described the decision as "unexpected."

However, he said he wondered whether there would be more trouble with Habitat. One possible problem, he suggested, might be an attempt to bar Israel from participating.

The official pointed out that the U.S. may not like some of the things that have been happening at the UN, but continues to abide by its decisions.

PLO spokesman Rahman made the same point, referring to objections in Canada to PLO observers attending either the crime conference or Habitat.

"We have been conducting our work in the U.S.," he said. "Last year when the Palestinian delegation came to New York, the U.S. provided the appropriate security."

The Habitat situation may become clearer next month, when the UN planning committee meets in New York to discuss arrangements for the Vancouver conference.

The Blueberry Caper That Changed My Life

July 25 is the 40th anniversary of my writing a regular newspaper column, though I've taken time off for good behavior and attempts to kick the habit. It's an awful temptation to go on about it. So I will.

The hardest part about being a columnist, I've found, has been to convince your readers that you've absolutely no qualifications whatever for the job. Too many people assume that when you write under your own name you must have some special knowledge that makes it all the easier to hate you or, occasionally, to regard you highly. In other words readers are inclined to take you too seriously.

It's something I've always tried to beat. Don't hate me, please, I've kept saying. Don't love me, please. I'm not worth either. Sure, I believe these things. That doesn't mean you have to. All I'm asking is that you occasionally read me, not that you agree or disagree, approve or disapprove.

The best advice I ever had — his only advice, in fact — came from the editor who first gave me the assignment. "A columnist is just an opinionated guy who lives down the block," as he defined it. "If you ever aspire to be anything more we'll find a replacement for you."

There may be lapses in this philosophy. I have gone through periods when I really thought I was endowed with omnisience and might even be destiny's tot. But after awhile you learn that your opinion rarely changes a reader's opinion, that what you say only fortifies—for or against—some judgment that's already been made. In that sense I look back on 40 years of total failure in what you might think is the basic function of the columnist—to influence opinion—without any regrets whatever.

I suppose that's one reason I seldom write about politics any more, though there was a time when I wrote about little else. It's a subject that can only mirror your own deep prejudices. When you've done that once too often you become a Johnny-One-Note, the very worst thing that can happen to a columnist. An example: I happen to think, provincially that the present administration is doing a pretty good job, but it's boring to repeat it for me and I'm sure it's equally boring for the reader.

Yet if the columnist can't be said to influence his audience he may salvage his self-esteem if that's what he wants, with the knowledge that, at least, he reaches them.

I often think that my own coming of age occured when my wife and I went picking blueberries on Grouse Mountain. That was when the road up the mountain to the chalet was open. There were millions of fat, succulent blueberries, a discovery that we appeared to have made almost alone. So, a day or two later, I had a brief, final note in my column suggesting that my readers ought to drive up there on Sunday, maybe, and get their share. "Take a pail along," I advised.

That Sunday the night desk phoned me. There had been enormous day-long log-jam traffic tie-ups on the Grouse Mountain road. A reporter had written that people were angrily shaking empty pails from the windows of their stalled cars and using my name in the most unflattering terms.

It shook me up as nothing had before or since. In fact, it scared the hell out of me. I realized for the first time the awesome responsibility that went with the job and the need to keep in mind that you were reaching a rather large number of people.

My hunch is that that sore of communication is why the daily newspaper column, though hurriedly done, usually expendable, has never waned.

Often it is the only place in the paper where the reader may find a sense of self-identification. The columnist finds, very early, that if he writes of having a fight with his wife or recalls some incident from his youth or chronicles the washing of a Labrador dog or any other trivia it usually has more impact than the earth-shaking pronouncements he yearns to make. It may not be the way he wants it, but the verdict, "Something like that once happened to me" becomes a cherished accolade.

It is fatal, of course, to forget that your first duty is to entertain, that no matter what else you do you must amuse or titilate or somehow grab at your reader by the lapels.

That is the fundamental difference between a reporter and a columnist. The reporter always has the story to tell. He may bring it to life by his powers of description, but even if it is lifeless the reader may peruse it to the end.

The columnist can never rely on such a compunction—though he is never shackled by it, either—but must depend only upon his own devices to keep the reader going.

I have watched readers on buses and ferries coming to my own column, occasionally have seen them flick the page after a paragraph or two and have known that I have failed. Yet once I saw a man actually laugh aloud at a piece that was meant to be funny and lived in a lunatic glow for a whole day.

I don't think that I would do it again if I had a choice, mind you. Even with those columnists like Al Fotheringham who seems born to do it, or Art Mayse, who never writes anything less than beautifully, it may be created out of an anxiety. This makes it hard on a man who was born anxious. You eventually get so that anything that happens to you — tragedy or achievement or whim — is instinctively put to the test —"Will it make a column?—and, believe me, that's no way to live.

Still, it's mostly been fun and isn't that what it's all about? And if it isn't don't blame me.

Curb Remains on Imports To Save B.C.-Made Wines

By LINDA HUGHES

Inexpensive imported wines will continue to be excluded from B.C. liquor store shelves in order to give special protection to B.C. wineries.

The B.C. wine industry could be "ruined overnight" if cheap foreign wines were allowed to flood the market, liquor distribution branch manager Keith Warnes said Wednesday.

Inexpensive imported wines will continue to be excluded from B.C. liquor store shelves in order to give special protection to B.C. wineries.

The B.C. wine industry could be "ruined overnight" if cheap foreign wines were allowed to flood the market, liquor distribution branch manager Keith Warnes said Wednesday.

But local wines have always been given protection on prices and, despite the liquor branches new listing policy, which will set sales quotas, B.C. wineries will continue to corner the market on cheap products.

Some French wines, priced under $2 a bottle, could easily be brought in, said Warnes, and Brazil has been promoting a wine costing under $1 a bottle.

California and Yugoslavia are also offering good inexpensive wines.

But no imported wines priced under $3 have been included in the list of 101 new wines and liquors approved recently for addition to B.C. liquor store stocks.

The new products, chosen from 4,000 applications from outside B.C., are the first new listings approved in two years and the first results of the government's new listing process.

A seven-member listing committee, made up of branch officials, experts and lay people, selected the new listings and also "delisted" 75 products from outside B.C. which were not selling up to quota.

Warnes said most of the delisted products were liqueurs and liquors in bottle sizes which were not proving popular.

About half the new additons are quality imported wines. A handful are from Ontario, a couple from California and the remainder from outside the North American continent, said Warnes.

Also included in the new listings are two new brands of tequila, some lighter rums, several new kinds of liqueurs and Italian grappa.

The listing committee's next task is to deal with local products and Warnes said he expects listing applications for about 60 new B.C. wines.

About 100 B.C. products are not selling up to quota, he said, and wineries will be warned those products may be removed if sales do not improve.

But Warnes said most of the products not selling well are particular sizes of bottles, rather than brands, and wineries will more likely be asked just to eliminate certain sizes of products.

Imported and domestic products will face the same kind of sales quotas and thus be competing for shelf space.

Worker Loses Fingers

Victoria police said Norman John Wolski of 4101 Douglas was re-cutting shakes on a bandsaw when the usable part of the shake fell into a chute instead of into the bin where it should have fallen.

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Public Works Minister Bill Hartley entered the former service station on the Causeway this morning and asked for a fill-up — of coffee.

It was the first day of business for the provincial government's new sandwich bar in the converted gasoline outlet, and Hartley was there to supervise preparations for the 11 a.m. start.

The public works department's $10,000 facelift on the old building has apparently tried to create the atmosphere of a European-style sidewalk cafe, complete with outdoor tables, frilly sunshades and flower-filled planters.

Amid the controversy which surrounded the plans for the food operation, city of Victoria officials termed it "Barrett's Beanery," but on opening day at least there wasn't a bean to be seen.

Executive chef Yvon Chouinard, who also runs the catering arrangements in the Legislative Buildings restaurant, said the menu will offer coffee, tea, milk, soft drinks and five or six types of sandwiches.

Forty people can be accommodated at the small tables inside the building, and many more at the 10 picnic benches scattered around the Wharf-Causeway forecourt and the terrace overlooking the Inner Harbor.

Around midnight Wednesday some enterprising person tried to make off with one of the heavy picnic tables in a truck, but security people caught him in the act.

Will the cafeteria go truly European and offer thirsty passers-by wine or beer with their food? Chouinard said he'd welcome that, and Hartley said the cabinet might be prepared to consider the matter.

City council has criticized Hartley for proceeding with the sandwich bar operation, despite city objections that Victoria purchased the site and turned it over to the Capital Improvement District Commission as part of the over-all improvement of the Inner Harbor area.

But, sipping coffee this morning with reporters, the minister denied that he had in any way "betrayed" the city's or the CIDC's plans.

HARTLEY
. . . fill 'er up

"I think more and more of the citizens of Victoria realize that some of these people who lip off really don't know what they're talking about," he said.

"To say this is detracting from the Inner Harbor is rather ridiculous, because everyone who has come by in the past day or two has said it's beautiful . . . a lot better than the old gasoline alley."

Hartley said his department had merely carried out the CIDC's request, embodied in a resolution at the agency's last meeting, "when they asked us to beautify, develop and maintain this property."

Mayor Peter Pollen wanted the city's objections to be aired at a special CIDC meeting, but the meeting set for today was postponed at the request of provincial representatives.

So, You're Itchy After a Swim

Among the hordes of people splashing about in lakes of the Capital district this summer some are ending up scratching — and scratching — and scratching.

They are victims of "swimmer's itch," caused by minute free-swimming organisms called cercaria, and they can blame an unhappy combination of weather and water conditions — and snails, Dr. Allan Arneil, regional health officer, said Wednesday.

The rash on swimmers' bodies, which can vary in the same way some people are highly susceptible to mosquito bites, is caused by the wee beasts burrowing into the skin where they expire.

If that sounds bad, said Arneil, be thankful the situation isn't the same as in the tropics where a related organism doesn't stop at the skin but borrows into internal organs, causing thousands of deaths.

A good deal isn't known about the organism found in B.C. but it's thought to be deposited in the water from feces of gulls and perhaps small animals. In the water it must find a snail to host one of its life stages, emerging as the swimming organism which produces the itch. Where weather warms shallow waters of lakes in the right combination, as it has this summer, cercaria thrives — and swimmers scratch.

Arneil said the problem isn't any more severe in this region than elsewhere in the province, but there have been a number of complaints.

One way of attacking the problem is to poison the snails and this has been tried in some locations but it is tricky because the poison used can also kill fish, he said.

Is there anything swimmers can do to avoid the itch?

Arneil said towelling oneself dry as soon as one leaves the water appears to help. And swimmers can apply oil to themselves before swimming, an approach he personally doesn't find very appealing.

And if the itch arrives?

He said he favors the old-fashioned approach to such irritations, treating with cold water, perhaps baking soda or calamine lotion.

Any acute stage of itching lasts six to 12 hours, with the rash gone in two to three days.

A $1,000 BAD JOKE

It was a phone call worth at least $1,000 of the taxpayers' money — and it may have been someone's idea of a joke.

Just how expensive marine rescue alarms — particularly false ones — can be is illustrated by an example Wednesday.

A "May Day" call about 11 a.m. was relayed through a Vancouver marine operator to Victoria's Pacific Rescue Co-Ordination Centre. The message was that an unidentified boat at the north end of Active Pass was badly holed in her bow and unable to use engine or bilge pumps.

The U.S. Coast Guard immediately dispatched a helicopter under a reciprocal help arrangement which has the closest rescue units responding.

The 41-foot RCMP cutter Harvison, based at Ganges on Salt Spring Island, was sent to the scene, as was a two-man Zodiac inflatable rescue craft of the Canadian Coast Guard.

The B.C. Ferries Sechelt Queen stood by in the area for a time and checked out some locations for the rescue co-ordination centre.

The area was thoroughly searched. There was an armada of pleasure craft at the scene, many of them fishing, but no boat in trouble was found.

Cost of the exercise:

The helicopter, on the call for 1.7 hours — about $850.

The RCMP cutter Harvison, one hour on the job — about $100.

Saanich Won't Reward Early Birds

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Between $8,000 and $9,000 is owing in interest to Saanich taxpayers who paid their taxes in advance but Mayor Ed Lum says there's little chance they'll ever get it.

He said Wednesday it would cost $25,000 in overtime and other costs to "sort the thing out" and reimburse the taxpayers.

Due to the civic labor dispute Saanich was unable to get its tax notices out on time and had to extend the date taxes are due from June 30 to Aug. 15.

Those Saanich residents who paid in advance are now claiming they should be paid interest for the six-week extension.

One woman, who doesn't want her name used because "my husband is employed by government and this could make things difficult," told the Times:

"It is not our fault the date of payment has been changed. I consider this highly illegal and immoral, providing a very good profit for Saanich."

Lum concedes it's unfair for those residents who paid in advance but says the task of sorting out who should receive interest for the six-week period is staggering.

"It's a monumental job to go through 50,000 tax notices to see who paid in advance," Lum said, "We know we received about $800,000 in early tax money.

"This means there would be about $8,000 to $9,000 due in interest. But it would cost $25,000 in overtime and other costs to sort the thing out."

Since receiving complaints, Lum said he had reviewed the matter with municipal solicitor D. M. Patterson, municipal administrator Bill Tremayne and the municipality's accounting department.

He said Patterson had assured him that Saanich is on sound legal ground because it has a bylaw cutting off the interest-payable date at June 30.

LAST APOLLO LANDS SAFELY

HOUSTON (AP) — The last Apollo came home from space today, ending a history-making flight with the Soviet Union and closing a pioneering chapter in the United States space program.

Astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald Slayton steered their Apollo to a fiery re-entry and a 2:18 p.m. (Victoria time) splashdown in the Pacific Ocean 200 miles west of Hawaii in full view of television cameras.

The carrier USS New Orleans waited in the recovery zone to make the last ocean pickup planned in the U.S. space program.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton are to be the last Americans to fly into space for at least four years.

Future astronauts must await the Space Shuttle, the reflyable rocket plane that will operate much like an airliner, landing on concrete runways.

The last Apollo crew returns after nine days in space during which it laid a foundation for a new age of space cooperation with the Soviet Union after linking with a Soyuz spaceship and working in orbit for two days with two cosmonauts.

In Moscow, the cosmonauts, Gen. Alexei Leonov and Col. Valeri Kubasov, who returned to earth Monday, met reporters and Leonov said the joint mission went "smoothly as a peeled egg."

In a news conference from space Wednesday, Apollo commander Stafford said the major accomplishment of the joint flight was the completion with the Soviets of a "very difficult and tedious task."

"It can show that in spite of great political differences, if people meet commitments, then a lot can be achieved."

CALL-UP IN ISRAEL, ALERTS IN EGYPT

War Flirted in M-East

Times News Services

Israel and Egypt are playing a dangerous game of military moves to strengthen their negotiating positions as talks for peace in the Middle East appear to be making progress.

U.S. intelligence officials are concerned that one side or the other might go too far in military gestures and start an outbreak of fighting, even though neither apparently wants it to happen.

The Israelis were reported to have called up about 7,000 military reservists after the Egyptians indicated last week they might not agree to an extension of the UN force in the buffer zone separating Egyptian and Israeli forces.

U.S. diplomats in Israel were told about the call-up by Israeli officials who said the action was in response to Egyptian moves, including some military alerts.

One Egyptian move that caught the attention of both the U.S. and Israel was the deployment of air defence missile radar to within about four miles of the Suez Canal's west bank.

This was the first known movement of Egyptian surface-to-air missile units into this area since the troops disengagement agreement about 18 months ago.

Such missile units, which caused heavy Israeli air losses in the early stages of the 1973 war, would be vital in protecting any major Egyptian troop movement across the canal for an attack on the Israeli army in the Sinai.

Away from the Egyptian-Israeli front, there was no sign of any immediately menacing military moves by other Arab countries which might be expected to join in a co-ordinated assault on Israel in event of another war.

On the political front an Israeli government source in Tel Aviv said today Egypt has "accepted in general terms" Israel's concept for an interim agreement in the Sinai.

It was not known whether Egypt had also agreed to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's call Wednesday night for the withdrawal accord to be completed "in direct negotiations" between the two countries.

The Israeli negotiating team — Rabin, Foreign Minister Yigal Allon and Defence minister Shimon Peres — met today to discuss the Egyptian reply to the latest Israeli proposals received Wednesday night from Washington. U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger had conveyed the Egyptian stand to Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz.

A government source in Jerusalem said that, while the Egyptians accepted Israel's concept of a strong defence line in Sinai, details of the line still had to be worked out. Also to be decided, the source said, was the future of Israeli radar stations in the Sinai mountains and curtailment of anti-Israel political and economic activity by Egypt.

The source said issues in the agreement dealing with Israeli-U.S. relations had been nearly settled. These included the value of American economic assistance and American aid in replacing oil supplies which would be lost if Israel withdrew from the Sinai oilfield of Abu Rudeis. Israel now draws more than 50 per cent of its oil needs from the occupied Egyptian field, which will be returned as part of any agreement.

Meanwhile, an unexpected disagreement over a single word delayed a meeting today of the United Nations Security Council to extend the mandate of the buffer force separating Egypt and Israel in the Sinai. The council had reached an understanding Wednesday night to extend the mandate another three months after Egypt ended objections.

Diplomats said Egypt was objecting to a clause in the proposed resolution "expressing satisfaction" at its last-minute consent and wanted instead the stronger phrase "expressing appreciation."

But Israeli Ambassador Jacob Doron said he was against the resolution even expressing satisfaction at the Egyptian consent.

The Bucks Stop Here

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party, in a letter to Canadian businessmen, is appealing for funds, but there likely will not be any results from some of the addresses.

The letter told Treasury Board President Jean Chretien that "the national sustaining program, made of committed Canadians like yourself, provides the PC party with the resources to continue our efforts to get the federal government back on track."

A similar letter arrived at the transport department, and other Liberal cabinet ministers were believed to have received them.

Million Jobless In U.K.

LONDON (Reuter)— Unemployment in Britain has passed one million, the highest level in 35 years, the government said today.

Employment Minister Michael Foot called the figures "appalling" and said the situation was grim.

He said nothing major could be done to improve the economy and relieve unemployment until inflation is defeated. He urged support for the government's $13.20-a-week ceiling on pay increases.

"The fight against inflation and the fight against unemployment are part of the same struggle," Foot, the government's leading left-wing socialist, said in a radio interview.

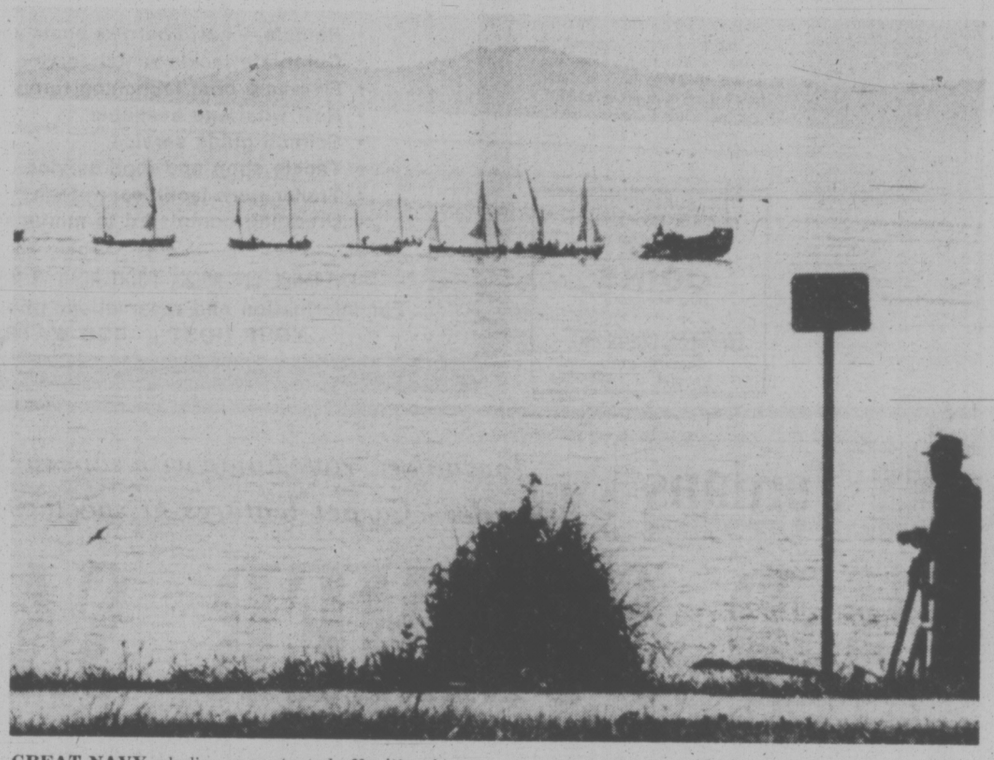
In the European Economic Community about 4.5 million persons are unemployed—50 per cent more than last year —and the number is growing, says an economic survey released today.

The report, prepared by the EEC Commission, said seasonally adjusted unemployment figures for May continued to rise in all EEC countries except Ireland, where the number of jobless has stabilized in recent months. Demand for labor is falling, notably in Belgium, France and West Germany.

The number of people out of work throughout Britain on July 14, when the statistics were gathered, was 1,087,869, or 4.7 per cent of the normal work force. This is a one-per-cent rise over June and the biggest single jump on record.

Three-fifths of July's increase was caused by young adults leaving school and adult students registering for state unemployment benefits. Many of these will leave the ranks of the unemployed by October. Without them, the "hard-core" total of unemployed was 927,936.

The one million milestone was passed a month ahead of most forecasts and suggests a total of about 1.25 million unemployed by the end of the year.



GREAT NAVY whaling race started off with a bang early Wednesday morning with 17 whalers heading off to Race Rocks. But the weatherman, who had predicted moderate breezes throughout the day, didn't keep his part of the bargain and at 3:30 p.m. a motorized landing craft was sent out to rescue the becalmed ships and bring them back to port. Navy is hoping to reschedule the race for sometime in October, when, hopefully, the breezes will blow. (John McKay photo.)

Four Missing

PEMBERTON (CP) — RCMP and two mountain rescue squads are searching for four Vancouver-area men who may be buried in a large landslide 40 miles west of Pemberton in the Meager Creek basin, 75 miles north of Vancouver. The four are part of a nine-man geophysical team marking lines in the area. When a helicopter came to pick the men up Tuesday the rendezvous point was covered with a large landslide and there has been no sign of the four men since.

Montreal Walkout

MONTREAL (CP) — Hundreds of thousands of Montrealers were finding their own means of transport today as 3,400 bus drivers, subway operators and other public transit workers stayed away from work to back demands in a contract dispute with the Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission.

Bus Line Talks Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than four months of negotiations to provide a new contract for Pacific Stage Lines employees have broken down. Bill Link, business agent for the Amalgamated Transit Union, said Wednesday the union will hold a strike vote Aug. 1 among the 237 workers.

Indian Test Case

PEMBERTON (CP) — With 53 members of the Mount Currie Indian band charged with obstructing a public highway, one case was selected to be tried as a test case. Eugene Kwang, a lawyer acting for the band, said one Indian, Melvin John Williams, will be tried Aug. 28 as a test case at the suggestion of David Winkler, crown counsel.

Cuba Snub Nears End

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — The Organization of American States has tentatively endorsed a resolution to end the western hemisphere's economic isolation of Cuba.

Fourteen OAS nations, including the United States, agreed Wednesday night to support a "freedm of action" resolution to circumvent the organization's 11-year-old sanctions against Cuba.

The countries, which have the necessary two-thirds majority for approval, decided to vote in favor of the resolution Tuesday at a meeting of western hemisphere foreign ministers in San Jose.

The resolution, initiated by Mexico and endorsed by the United States, would leave it up to each OAS nation to decide whether to maintain diplomatic and economic relations with Cuba.

The measure would fall short of actually lifting the 1964 sanctions against the Communist government of Premier Fidel Castro, but would make the trade boycott obsolete.

Nations supporting the move were the United States, Argentina, Colombia, Costa Rica, Venezuela, Mexico, Haiti, Panama, Peru, the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Trinidad-Tobago, El Salvador and Honduras.

Diplomats said 12 of the nations have pledged in writing to sponsor the resolution. The remaining two — the United States and the Dominican Republic — have promised in writing to vote in favor of the measure.

Chile, Uruguay and Paraguay were expected to vote against the resolution. The rest of the members — Brazil, Nicaragua, Bolivia and Guatemala — were considered likely to abstain.

The OAS revised the western hemisphere's 1947 Mutual Defense Pact earlier Wednesday, modifying the treaty's adamant opposition to communism with an endorsement of "ideological pluralism."

The updated version of the Treaty of Rio also endorsed "collective economic security" in the hemisphere and made provisions for member nations to appeal to the OAS in case of "special economic problems."

Delegates from the OAS nations began meeting in San Jose July 16 to revise the Mutual Defense Pact under which Cuba was expelled from the hemispheric organization in 1964.

COMPLACENT ON CRIME

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney-General Edward Levi blames the continuing increase of crime in the United States on frightened judges, a complacent public and prosecutors and police who are reluctant to enforce laws in black communities.

"Judges throughout the U.S. are afraid to enforce the criminal law," Levi said in response to questions about the crime rate during an interview recorded Wednesday for Saturday broadcast.

Asked whether he believed the U.S. public accepts the high level of crime, Levi said: "Yes, I do. It's amazing."

Another Big Wheat Buy By Russians

Times News Services

WINNIPEG — The sale of an additonal one million tons of wheat to the Soviet Union was announced today by the Canadian wheat board.

Wheat board officials declined to place a value on the latest order, but based on current Thunder Bay, Ont., export prices, it could bring roughly $226 million.

The announcement of the sale — for approximately 37.3 million bushels of durum wheat — brings total Canadian sales to the Soviet Union for the next crop year to three million long tons or about 112 million bushels.

The sale of two million long tons of wheat to the Soviet Union was announced last week by the wheat board.

The Soviet Union has purchased 12.6 million tons of grain so far this year and speculation that total purchases may top 15 million tons have been partially confirmed, the International Wheat Council said today in London.

The council said in its monthly report this includes between seven million and 10 million tons of wheat, 4.5 million tons of maize and 1.1 million tons of barley.

The council said since last month the grain market has been dominated by rumors that the Soviet Union was negotiating for large purchases of grain including wheat.

Durum is normally used in the making of spaghetti and other pasta products, but it can also be used as a blending wheat for bread flour.

Tornado Kills 3

CANTON, Ill. (AP) — A tornado that slashed through a three-block downtown area of the city Wednesday killed three persons and injured at least 55 others, authorities said. Fifteen of the injured were taken to hospital.

Prisoners Ignore Back-to-Work Call

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Prisoners at the British Columbia Penitentiary have ignored a demand by Andre Therrien, Canadian penitentiary service commissioner, that they call off their strike today.

Nolan Rembruff, acting regional director of the service, reported that the prisoner kitchen crew did not leave their cells to prepare breakfast for the other convicts.

"It looks pretty much like the same kind of day as yesterday," Hembruff observed, adding that other prisoners due to start performing penitentiary tasks later in the morning could be expected to follow suit.

The prison population went on strike Wednesday in a bid to get official recognition of a prisoners' union.

They asked that Therrien come from Ottawa to look into prisoners' grievances and that a collective bargaining system be set up.

But the prisoners were notified Wednesday afternoon that the commissioner had no intention of meeting with them or sending a representative.

A spokesman for the service said this morning it has not been decided what measures will be taken if the prisoners continue to defy the demand.

Prison authorities reported no incidents as the prisoners sat quietly in their cells, at the urging of chanted advice from supporters outside the prison walls.

About 100 members of the Prisoners Union Committee and 50 members of the American Indian Movement demonstrated Wednesday outside the prison in support of the prisoners.

93% Tax Slashes Mine Profit

VANCOUVER (CP) Western Mines Ltd. reported net profit for the six months ended June 30, 1975, of $122,205 or two cents a share compared with $2,772,469 or 53 cents a share for the first half of 1974.

The effective tax rate for 1975 is 93 per cent of profits, the company said.

In the first half of 1974, the company paid $1,042,323 in dividends, while no dividends were paid in this year's first half.

The 1974 figures for income taxes and royalties are restated in the report in accordance with the tax laws in effect at the end of the year.

Concentrate revenue in this year's first half was $7.5 million compared with $11 million in the 1974 first half.

Provision for income taxes this year is $966,085 compared with $2,055,500 in the 1974 first half.

100 Injured in Athens Riots

More than 100 persons were hurt in the rioting Wednesday, which began after police clashed with 2,000 building workers marching to demand more pay.

The demonstrators attacked police with stones and pieces of wood and overturned cars and buses to use as barricades. The disturbances continued until evening, leaving 103 injured, including 58 policemen.

The government of Prime Minister Constantine Karamanlis said some rioters were former military policemen considered supporters of the former seven-year-old military regime.

But most of the guards appeared to have been withdrawn this morning.

PLO to Attend UN Conference in Vancouver

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Palestine Liberation Organization intends to attend a United Nations conference in Vancouver next year, despite the controversy over the crime conference in Toronto.

Canada asked the UN to postpone the Toronto crime conference, which was to have been held next month, following a bitter domestic controversy about attendance by the PLO.

The decision was "unfortunate, regrettable," PLO spokesman Hassan Rahman said in a telephone interview.

Asked whether the PLO still intends to attend the Habitat conference in Vancouer, he added: "Yes—this is the exercise of our right to participate in the work of the General Assembly and in any conference under the auspices of the UN."

That right, he said, "is clearly indicated" by the General Assembly's approval, last Nov. 22, of observer status for the PLO.

"The action by Canada is clear-cut antagonist to the PLO," Rahman said.

Despite this view, Rahman said the PLO would still send observers to Habitat. "This is not because it is held in Canada, but because it is a conference for the UN," he added.

It was not possible to confirm, either in New York or Washington, reports that Middle Eastern countries might retaliate against Canada. The reports, originating in Beirut, suggested that the retaliation might consist of cancelling economic agreements with Canada.

"I would not be surprised," Rahman said.

In Washington, the U.S. was officially noncommital about Canada's decision.

Privately, however, one official described the decision as "unexpected."

However, he said he wondered whether there would be more trouble with Habitat. One possible problem, he suggested, might be an attempt to bar Israel from participating.

The official pointed out that the U.S. may not like some of the things that have been happening at the UN, but continues to abide by its decisions.

PLO spokesman Rahman made the same point, referring to objections in Canada to PLO observers attending either the crime conference or Habitat.

"We have been conducting our work in the U.S.," he said. "Last year when the Palestinian delegation came to New York, the U.S. provided the appropriate security."

The Habitat situation may become clearer next month, when the UN planning committee meets in New York to discuss arrangements for the Vancouver conference.
